GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT.

The 22nd April 1919.

MANY rumours are afloat regarding the contents of the Act recently passed by the Government of India known as the Rowlatt Bill. People have vague ideas and think that the police and executive officers will be free to arrest them on mere suspicion and keep them under confinement without any trial.

The Act is intended only to cope with anarchical and revolutionary crime. Peaceful and law-abiding citizens will have nothing to fear from it. An important feature which has been frequently overlooked is that the provisions of the Act will not be applied in any part of India until the Government is satisfied that it is required in the public interest on account of the prevalence of anarchical or revolutionary movements leading to the commission of serious offences. Even when such conditions prevail three different parts of the Act will be separately brought into force in three successive stages according to the seriousness of the situation.

When the first part is enforced the Government is merely provided with power of securing trial of grave offences in a more expeditious manner than under the ordinary law. That is to say, certain offences instead of being enquired into by a Magistrate and then tried by the Sessions Judge with a right of appeal to the High Court shall be decided once for all by a Special Court.

This Special Court will consist of three Judges of the High Court : the impartiality and ability of the Tribunal cannot therefore be questioned. Provision is made in the law for securing a full and impartial hearing.

The second part of the Act can be introduced only when the Government is satisfied that anarchical and revolutionary movements are widely prevalent. Before taking action against any person Government is bound to take the opinion of a senior Judge and cannot act upon a mere police report. If on the advice of the Judge Government is satisfied that a person is actively concerned in a revolutionary movement he may be ordered to give security for good behaviour or to remain in a specified area, or he may be asked merely to notify his residence or change of residence. This order will remain in force for one month only and meanwhile the case will be submitted to two Judges and one non-official, who after considering all the evidence and hearing the explanation and evidence of the person concerned will report to Government. Government may then discharge the suspected person, or if the case against him is proved, it may continue the restrictions already referred to for a period of one year only.

The third part of the Act can only be applied when revolutionary movements are prevalent to the extent of endangering the public safety. Under those circumstances only Government will have the additional power of arresting without warrant persons believed to be actively concerned in revolutionary movements and of keeping them under confinement. The cases of such persons will also be enquired into by two Judges and one non-official.

NO REASON FOR FEAR.

This will show that peaceful citizens will have nothing to fear from the Act. No part of this Act would be brought into force except for the purpose of coping with revolutionary movements, and even if the whole Act were enforced the powers of the Government will be less than the powers which Government has possessed under the Defence of India Act for over four years. If the people maintain their loyalty to the King Emperor there is no reason why the enforcement of any part of the Act should be apprehended.

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Burdwan Water Supply Improvement Scheme.

IN addition to the details required on the reverse, clear information should be given below under the following heads :—

(a) If the ordinary surplus is insufficient to meet the charges of the proposed loan, the particular steps which the Municipality has taken, or has agreed to take in order to make good the deficiency.

(a) Column 20 shows a deficit of Rs. 3,401. A revision of the valuation of holdings is in progress and from present information it appears that the revaluation will result in an increase of 15 per cent. on the annual value, which will give the following additional income :—

	Rs.
Tax on houses and lands	6,447
Water rate ...	4,332
Latrine fees ...	2,697

In addition the scale of latrine fees has been revised and the new scale is expected to result in an increased income of Rs. 5,600 in 1919 20 apart from the enhancement of latrine fees due to revaluation.

(b) The reserve of taxation or other possible means of increase in the revenues of the Municipality.

(b) The tax on houses and lands is now imposed at the highest legal rate.

The water rate is levied at the highest legal rate in the case of holdings with house connections but holdings which lie within the water-supply area but have no house connections are charged at 6 per cent. on the annual valuation; there is thus a reserve of taxation in case of the water rate.

The latrine fees are susceptible of increase and are at a lower rate than those imposed in several municipalities.

(c) A statement of all outstanding loans specifying, in respect of each loan, the date when taken, the purpose (very briefly, the amount, the annual charges involved, and the amount still payable.)

(c) Nil.

(d) Any explanations in regard to receipts and expenditure to show the true financial position of the Municipality when such position is otherwise than the ordinary surplus would indicate.

(d) The average deficit of Rs. 3,401 shown in column 20 would disappear if a sum of Rs. 11,000 paid in repayment of loan in 1916-17 was excluded.

No. 1277M.—The 29th April 1919.—Under rule 7 of the Local Authorities Loans Rules, 1915, it is hereby notified, for general information, that the Governor in Council intends to sanction the following application from the Magistrate of Burdwan and Mr. D. Burdwan Latrine Service Improvement Scheme.

In addition to the details required on the reverse, clear information should be given below under the following heads :—

(a) If the ordinary surplus is insufficient to meet the charges of the proposed loan, the particular steps which the Municipality has taken, or has agreed to take, in order to make good the deficiency.

(a) Column 20 shows a deficit of Rs. 3,401. A revision of the valuation of holdings is in progress and from present information it appears that the revaluation will result in an increase of 15 per cent. on the annual value which will give the following additional incomes —

	Rs.
Tax on houses and lands	6,447
Water rate ...	4,332
Latrine fees ...	2,697

In addition the scale of latrine fees has been revised and the new scale is expected to result in an increased income of Rs. 5,600 in 1919-20 apart from the enhancement of latrine fees due to revaluation.

(b) The reserve of taxation or other possible means of increase in the revenues of the Municipality.

(b) The tax on houses and lands is now imposed at the highest legal rate.

The water-rate is levied at the highest legal rate in the case of holdings with house connections but holdings which lie within the water-supply area but have no house connections are charged at 6 per cent. on the annual valuation ; there is thus a reserve of taxation in case of the water-rate.

The latrine fees are susceptible of increase and are at a lower rate than those imposed in several municipalities.

(c) A statement of all outstanding loans specifying, in respect of each loan, the date when taken, the purpose (very briefly, the amount, the annual charges involved, and the amount still payable).

(c) Nil.

(d) Any explanations in regard to receipts and expenditure to show the true financial position of the Municipality when such position is otherwise than the ordinary surplus would indicate.

(d) The average deficit of Rs. 3,401 shown in column 20 would disappear if a sum of Rs. 11,000 paid in repayment of loan in 1916-17 was excluded.

Special Endowment Rules.

(a) Scholarships for European boys.

1. The income of this Special Endowment shall be applied in payment of scholarships for male British subjects of pure European blood ordinarily resident in Bengal, or coming to Bengal, for the purpose of residing there, or otherwise definitely connected with Bengal, including the children of persons, resident in or connected with Bengal though such children may not for the time being be in Bengal. Preference shall be given in cases of equal merit to candidates from or connected with Calcutta.

2. The object of such scholarships is to provide for or promote or advance the higher general or professional or technical education of the recipient and is not intended to provide for the ordinary school education of young children.

3. The recipients of the scholarships shall be selected by the Administrator in manner herein provided.

4. The Administrator shall use such means as he shall think reasonable and at such cost as he shall think fit, having regard to the funds available, to find suitable candidates for the scholarships and may if he considers necessary invite applications by advertisement and by circularising European schools in Bengal or otherwise.

5. The Administrator shall consider all applications and any information which he may receive as to suitable recipients, and may offer a scholarship to any person without formal application by or on behalf of such person.

6. Recipients shall be selected with reference to the following considerations. Selection shall be restricted to those who appear to the Administrator to be likely by age, ability, physical qualifications, and social circumstances to justify the opportunity provided, and preference shall be given, other things being equal, to a candidate whose parents or relatives are prepared to contribute reasonably to his education in the United Kingdom. The scholarships shall be tenable at a university or medical school or Inn of Court or technical institute, or some other suitable institution in the British Isles. As far as possible selection shall be restricted to candidates whose age will be about the normal age of entry to the course or institution proposed.

7. The scholarships may vary in amount and length of tenure according to the course proposed to be taken by the recipient and having regard to the support or contribution offered by the recipient's relatives and any scholarship may vary in amount from year to year, but a scholarship shall not be less than £150 or more than £240 in any one year, plus passage money to the United Kingdom and on return to India on satisfactory completion of the course, and (if necessary) a contribution towards initial expenses, and shall be tenable in ordinary cases for four years, but this period may be reduced or extended for special reasons in any case. The Administrator shall be further empowered to make advances on loan to selected scholars towards initial expenses or unforeseen expenses at any stage of their course on such terms as regards security and repayment as he may think fit, having regard to the circumstances and prospects of the recipient. Provided always that the Administrator may forego the repayment of any such advance or any part thereof if satisfied that the recipient is unable to repay the amount or that it has become impracticable to recover the same.

8. The Administrator shall be satisfied as to the European origin of the candidates and may call for such evidence as he considers reasonably necessary in each case and his decision shall be final.

9. The amounts awarded for scholarships shall be paid out as far as possible in like manner to that adopted by Government for Government scholarships.

10. Scholarships shall be held subject to good behaviour and to the recipient remaining a British subject, and so long only as the recipient shall continue the course for the purposes of which the scholarship was granted.

11. The Administrator shall not be bound to award any scholarships in the absence of suitable candidates.

B.—Scholarships for European girls.

1. The foregoing rules of Special Endowment A shall mutatis mutandis apply for scholarships for female British Europeans, provided that in normal cases the age of the recipient on selection should not exceed 23 years, but this limit may be relaxed in special circumstances if the Administrator thinks fit.

C.—Scholarships for Domiciled Community.

1. The income of this special endowment shall be applicable for providing scholarships or grants for boys and girls of the Domiciled Community in Bengal (preference being given to inhabitants of Calcutta) or for procuring apprenticeships for such boys and girls, or otherwise providing for their advanced education or professional or business training, such scholarships to be held or apprenticeships to be followed in India or elsewhere.

2. The rules of Special Endowment A, so far as the same shall be applicable for the Domiciled Community, shall apply to this special endowment with such variations as are hereinafter contained.

3. The Administrator shall be solely entitled to decide whether any candidate for a scholarship belongs to the Domiciled Community and may call for such evidence as he considers reasonably necessary in this respect.

4. A scholarship may consist of a lump sum paid for apprenticing any recipient, or may be spread over a number of years as in ordinary scholarships, or may consist partly of one and partly of the other.

D.—Primary School for Indian Boys.

1. The object of this special endowment is to provide, equip and maintain a primary school for Indian boys in Calcutta without distinction of creed, cast or denomination.

2. Such part of the special fund of Rs. 1,00,000 may be expended on acquiring land and building a school or in purchase of any existing suitable premises and in the equipment thereof for a school as the Administrator shall think fit, and the income of the remainder shall be applied towards the upkeep and maintenance of the school, provided that in addition to the capital sum originally expended further expenditure may be made out of capital at any subsequent time for extension, alteration or renovation of the premises or in removal of the school to other premises if in the opinion of the Administrator sufficient capital funds shall be left to provide for the upkeep and maintenance of the school, or if the Administrator is satisfied that other sources of income will be available for such upkeep and maintenance. Any land or premises purchased for the school shall be taken in the name of the Treasurer.

3. If at any time and from time to time it shall appear desirable for any reason to remove the school to other premises the Administrator may contract for the sale of the school premises for the time being, and thereupon the Treasurer in pursuance of such contract as bare Trustee thereof shall convey the said premises to the purchaser thereof as the Administrator shall direct, and the sale proceeds, after payment of all costs and expenses in connection with the sale, shall be received by the Treasurer and the capital money of this special endowment so received with any other part of the said capital money may again be expended in acquisition of premises, building and equipment as aforesaid.

4. The Administrator may, instead of purchasing any premises, take on lease any suitable land or premises (with or without buildings), such lease to be taken in the name or names of such person or persons on behalf of the school as the Administrator may select who are willing to act, and in any such case the Administrator shall pay the rent, rates, taxes and any other outgoings for which the lessee or lessees would be liable out of the income of this special endowment, and shall out of such income keep such lessee or lessees indemnified from and against any such outgoings and any costs and expenses in connection with such lease. Any such lease may be sold, transferred, surrendered or cancelled by direction of the Administrator and another or other lease or leases taken in lieu thereof. The terms of any lease shall be settled by the Administrator. The proceeds of sale or surrender of any such leasehold shall be treated in like manner to the sale proceeds mentioned in paragraph 3 of these special rules.

5. In the event of any premises being taken on lease as aforesaid, if without buildings, the Administrator may expend such capital sums for buildings and equipment of the school as he shall think fit, and if with buildings he may expend such capital sums in alterations, repairs and fittings and equipment as he shall think fit, and may subsequently expend further capital sums in like manner as aforesaid. The Administrator may also expend such capital sum or sums as he may think fit by way of premium or salami for any lease or as consideration for surrender thereof.

6. The said school shall be managed and controlled by such authority and in such manner as the Administrator after consultation with the Corporation of Calcutta shall decide, but shall be conducted as and for a primary day school in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Education Department of the Government of Bengal for the time being in force.

7. The appointment and dismissal of the teaching staff and of all servants, caretakers and other employees shall be made by the school authorities, subject at all times to the control of the Administrator if he shall think it necessary to interfere therein.

8. The expenses of the school, including repairs or insurance, shall be paid from the income of the residue of the said special endowment fund and from any income arising from other sources such as donations, grants-in-aid or school fees.

9. The school authorities may charge such fees to scholars as may be approved by the Administrator.

10. The Administrator shall see that proper accounts of all receipts and expenditure are kept by the school authorities and are submitted to him at regular intervals.

11. In the event of there being a greater number of scholars desirous of being taught in the said school than the school can accommodate the selection of scholars shall be made in such manner as the Administrator shall prescribe.

12. The Administrator shall direct the Treasurer to set apart from the income of the said special endowment such proportion thereof as he shall think proper to be accumulated for repairs to the school premises, and such proportion shall be set apart accordingly and may from time to time be expended by the Administrator on repairs as occasion shall arise.

13. The Administrator shall direct the Treasurer to set apart from the income of the said special endowment such proportion thereof as he shall think proper to be accumulated and invested as a sinking fund for replacement of the school buildings and equipment upon the same being destroyed or worn out, such contribution to the sinking fund to be continued until a sufficient sum, in the opinion of the Administrator, shall have been accumulated, and being recommended and continued for so long as may be necessary upon the sinking fund or any part thereof being required to be expended, and such proportion shall be set apart and the accumulations thereof from time to time invested by the Treasurer. The income of such sinking fund may be applied in increasing the Fund or towards the general expenses of the school as the Administrator may think fit. As and when occasion shall arise the said sinking fund shall be expended by the Administrator in the replacement of any buildings or equipment which shall have been destroyed or become unserviceable or worn out.

14. If funds permit more schools than one may be founded and maintained, and in that event the foregoing rules shall apply to each such school.

E.—Primary Schools for Depressed Classes.

1. The object of this special endowment is to provide and maintain primary schools in villages adjoining Calcutta for the children of the classes officially recognised as "Depressed Classes."

2. The rules hereinbefore contained for the Indian Boys' Primary school special endowment shall, as far as they are applicable mutatis mutandis apply to each school founded under this special endowment, with such additions and alterations as appear below.

3. The villages in which schools are to be founded shall be selected by the Administrator after consultation with the Society for the Improvement of the Backward Classes.

4. Part of the capital money of this special endowment may from time to time be expended in founding schools in like manner as in the Indian boys' primary school special endowment rules, at the discretion of the Administrator, and the income of the residue for the time being shall be applied towards the upkeep of the schools. It is intended that about Rs 15,000 shall be used for capital expenditure, but this sum may be exceeded or reduced as the Administrator shall think fit according to the anticipated income available from all sources.

5. The schools of this special endowment may be for either boys or girls or for both.

6. The Administrator may frame such rules as in his opinion will ensure the reservation of these schools for the classes for whom they are intended. Provided that such rules may permit the admission of a small percentage of children of other castes or classes.

F.—Technical Scholarships for Students of the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur.

1. The object of this special endowment is to provide scholarships for past and present students of the Sibpur Engineering College for the purpose of completing or advancing the education or training of such students, either in the British Isles or in India, or in other British possessions.

2. The rules for the special endowment for scholarships for male British European subjects shall mutatis mutandis so far as the same may be applicable apply to this special endowment, with such additions and alterations as appear below.

3. Recipients of scholarships shall be selected by the Administrator in consultation with the Principal of the Sibpur Engineering College. Regard shall be had to the ability, energy, physical qualifications and age of candidates, and also to the industrial and engineering needs of India and to the course of training or study proposed to be undertaken by each candidate, and preference shall be given to candidates intending to return and work in India, but this shall not be an essential condition to the selection of recipients.

4. Scholarships may be granted in one sum or spread over a number of years, or may be applied towards apprenticing a recipient or as a premium on placing him with some engineering or manufacturing firm, including railway companies. Scholarships may include passage money from and on return to India as well as entrance fees to colleges or institutions or any other special expenditure.

5. In the event of the Sibpur Engineering College ceasing to be carried on for any reason or being removed from Bengal this special endowment fund shall be applied in or towards the furtherance of engineering instruction and training in any of its departments in such manner as the Local Government in consultation with the donor (if then still in India) shall decide.

General miscellaneous provisions.

1. Whereas the securities aforesaid have already some time since been deposited by the donor with the Treasurer in anticipation of the foregoing notification, and interest has accrued thereon and has been collected by the Treasurer, and has, with the consent of the donor already been partly applied by the Administrator in or towards some of the objects of the above-mentioned special endowments, it is (with the consent of the donor which has been obtained by the Administrator) hereby declared that such application of income shall be included in the accounts of the Administrator as if this scheme had come into force at the time of collection of the said income.

2. Any such income collected as aforesaid and not already expended (being the interest referred to in schedule I above written) may be applied by the Administrator in continuing any scholarships already awarded in anticipation of this scheme or in or towards any of the objects above-mentioned.

3. Any scholarship already awarded as aforesaid may be continued by the Administrator out of the funds of any special endowment in respect of which such scholarship would have been awarded if this scheme had been in force at the time of such award.

4. The Administrator may from time to time with the approval of the Local Government frame such rules or regulations as may appear to be necessary or proper in connection with the administration of any of the special endowments aforesaid, such rules and regulations to be published by Notification in the local Gazette and to form part of this scheme, provided always that such rules and regulations shall not be inconsistent with the objects of the endowment for the time being.

5. This scheme may from time to time be amended or altered by Notification of the local Government published in the local Gazette, provided that if the donor be still in India no such amendment shall be made or published without his consent, and provided that in the absence of the donor no such amendment or alteration shall be inconsistent with the main principles of the objects aforesaid.

6. The awarding of any scholarships under any of the foregoing special endowments in that behalf may be suspended if in the opinion of the Administrator no suitable recipients are forthcoming, provided that if the awarding of any one class of scholarship is suspended for more than two consecutive years the Administrator shall report such fact to the donor (if then in India) and to the local Government with a view to amendment of this scheme as lastly hereinbefore provided.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

ESTABLISHMENT.

Calcutta, the 9th May 1919.

No. 49.—The following Regulations issued by the Secretary of State for India regarding the appointment of Assistant Engineers in the Indian Public Works Department and State Railways in 1919 are republished for general information.

C. P. WALSH,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

INDIAN PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT AND INDIAN STATE RAILWAYS.

REGULATIONS AS TO APPOINTMENT OF ASSISTANT ENGINEERS IN 1919.

[The Secretary of State is unable to give any undertaking that the Regulations will remain unaltered in the future.]

1. Until further notice the Secretary of State for India in Council will, during each year, make a number of appointments of Assistant Engineers in the Public Works and State Railway Departments of the Government of India.

In making these appointments he will act with the advice of a Selection Committee, including at least one eminent representative of the Engineering profession.

In 1919 it is intended that 75 appointments of Europeans and 3 of Indians should be made.*

The Selection Committee will hold three sittings in April or May, July or August, and October or November, respectively. The Committee will fix a maximum of appointments to be filled up at each sitting; they may allow a candidate who has failed at the first or second sitting to appear at a later sitting if they consider it necessary or advisable.

2. Applications must be made on a printed form, which may be obtained from the Secretary, Public Works Department, India Office, Whitehall, S. W. 1, or, in the case of officers in India and Mesopotamia, from the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, Delhi. Applications to the India Office must be received not later than 31st March, 30th June, and 30th September for the three sittings, respectively, of the Selection Committee. Applications to the Government of India must be received not later than 31st July.

Application from natives of India must be received at the India Office not later than 30th June, and Indian candidates will be examined by the Selection Committee only at their meeting in July or August.

3. An Indian candidate must have attained the age of 21 and not attained the age of 24 years on the first day of July of the year in which he offers himself for appointment.

Every European candidate must have been born on or after the 2nd August 1891 and on or before the 1st August 1897.

[N. B.—Natives of India must obtain a certificate of age and nationality in the form explained in Appendix II. As the production of this certificate is a necessary condition of appointment, intending candidates are advised to procure it without delay. The certificate should be forwarded to the India Office together with the candidate's form of application or at the earliest subsequent opportunity.]

* It has been a standing rule that natives of India shall be selected to the extent of 10 per cent. of the total number of Assistant Engineers recruited by the Secretary of State, if otherwise duly qualified. Since 1914 only six Europeans have been recruited (all in the year 1915). During the same period 11 natives of India have been recruited. In 1919 it is proposed to recruit 75 Europeans and three Indians, making a total since 1914 of 81 Europeans and 14 Indians.

4. Every European candidate in 1919, subject to the exception stated below, must have served in His Majesty's Naval, Military or Air Forces during the war for at least one year, or if his service be less than one year, have been discharged on account of wounds or sickness resulting from such service.

In the case of Europeans who have been prevented on adequate grounds from joining His Majesty's Forces, applications to be exceptionally admitted as candidates may be made to the India Office for consideration.

5. Every European candidate must be a British subject and, except as provided in Regulation 6, if he or his father or his mother was not born within His Majesty's Dominions and allegiance, the father must at the time of the candidates's birth have been a British subject and still be (or have continued to be until his death) a British subject. The decision of the Secretary of State in Council whether a candidate satisfies these conditions shall be final. A candidate must also be of good moral character and sound bodily health and, in the opinion of the Secretary of State for India in Council, in all respects suitable to hold an appointment in the Indian Public Works Department or State Railway Department.

6. Natives of India are eligible for the three appointments open to Indians provided that they are British subjects or that the Governor-General in Council has made a declaration under section 96A of the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by section 3 of the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, that they are to be considered eligible

7. Applications sent in to the Government of India will, in the first instance, be examined by an Advisory Committee in India, who will, in the case of applicants whom they think fit for appointment, submit their names with the necessary papers to the Secretary to State to be laid before the Selection Committee. Facilities will, if possible, be offered to the candidates whose names are so submitted to appear in person, if they so desire, before the Selection Committee in England.

8. Indian candidates must produce evidence that they have either (1) obtained one of the University degrees mentioned in Appendix 1; or (2) passed Sections A and B of the A. M. I. C. E. examination; or (3) obtained such other diploma or distinction in Engineering as the Secretary of State may decide to accept in any particular case. It is preferred that candidates should have taken a college course and obtained one of the degrees mentioned in Appendix I. It is advisable that in addition they should have had at least one full year's practical experience of Civil Engineering under a qualified Civil Engineer at the time when they appear before the Selection Committee. Those whose qualifying diploma has been obtained without a college course should have had a full three years of such practical experience.

9. European applicants eligible under Rule 4 who can produce evidence of the above qualifications will be admitted as candidates; others not holding one of the recognised degrees or diplomas must produce evidence—

(a) of having received a general education high enough to fit them to receive proper professional training and to become members of the Engineering profession;

(b) of such technical education (University or otherwise) in Engineering as they have received; and

(c) of their practical training and experience in Engineering as civilians and in military or quasi-military service.

An applicant, if serving at the time of his application, must produce, if possible, a report by his Commanding Officer on his character, administrative capacity and powers of organisation, and aptitude, natural bent, and Engineering experience.

10. In the event of any candidate being selected who has not, in the opinion of the Selection Committee, had sufficient practical experience, he may be required to undergo, after arrival in India, such period of probation in charge of works as may be decided upon, and his final appointment will be made dependent upon the result of such probation.

11. Candidates must be prepared, if called upon, to attend at the India Office, at their own expense, for a personal interview with the Selection Committee. Applicants to the Government of India (see Rule 7 above) must be prepared to attend before the Local Advisory Committee authorised by the Government of India to investigate their candidature.

12. Candidates will further be required, before final appointment by the Secretary of State in Council, to appear, at their own expense, before the Medical Board at the India Office for examination as to their physical fitness for service in India. or in case of applicants selected without attendance at the India Office, before such Medical Board as the Government of India may appoint.

The Regulations governing the physical examination of candidates for the Public Works and State Railway Departments of the Government of India are given in Appendix V.

*13. Selected candidates will also be required to satisfy the Secretary of State of their ability to ride.

14. They will on appointment be provided with a free first-class passage to India and they will be expected to proceed thither about the end of September or later in the year in which they are appointed.

Their pay will begin from the date of their landing in India, and, if they so desire, they will be able to obtain an advance of two months' pay, recoverable by monthly instalments of one-third of salary. Of this advance a portion, not exceeding one-half, may be drawn in England. The pay of candidates appointed in India will begin from the date of reporting for duty as they may be directed.

15. If less than 24 years of age on 1st August 1919, European candidates will enter the service as Assistant Engineers on a salary of Rs. 4,560 a year. If above 24 years, they will be credited with service as though they had been appointed in their 24th year. The years of service so credited will subsequently count for purposes of pay and promotion, but not for leave or pension.

16. The instruments required by Assistant Engineers are supplied to them in India.

17. Particulars as to pay, pension, etc., are contained in Appendices III and IV.

India Office,
January 1919.

(b) a certificate from the Civil Service Commissioners of minimum proficiency in riding.

In the latter case they will be subjected, on their arrival in India, to such further tests in riding as may be prescribed by their Government.

Candidates are warned that the certificate of minimum proficiency in riding, without which they will not be allowed to proceed to India, is only granted to those who can qualify in a series of tests, which includes jumping.

The chief tests will be saddling and bridling ; mounting and dismounting ; trotting and cantering ; riding at a trot without stirrups ; riding at a trot with stirrups but without reins ; jumping a hedge hurdle about 3 feet in height.

Although the examination will, in the main, be confined to these points, the examiner will not be debarred from applying any other tests which may appear desirable.

APPENDIX IV.

PARTICULARS RELATING TO PENSIONS, PROVIDENT FUND, AND LEAVE.

[N.B.—This Appendix is compiled from the regulations for the time being, and is subject to alterations from time to time. The full leave and pension rules are contained in the Civil Service Regulations published by the Government of India.]

1. The following is a summary of the principal pension rules applicable to Engineers appointed to the Imperial Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom.

An officer is eligible for a pension on voluntary retirement after completing 20 years' qualifying service or attaining the age of 55 years. If at an earlier date he is compelled to retire from the Service through ill-health not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, becomes eligible for an invalid pension or a gratuity according to the length of his service.

The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows:—

After a service of less than 10 years, an invalid gratuity not exceeding one month's emoluments for each completed year of service.

After a service of not less than 10 years an invalid pension not exceeding the following amounts:—

Years of Completed Service.	Maximum Limit of Pension.
10	Rs. 1,000 a year.
11	„ 1,400 „
12	„ 1,800 „
13	„ 2,200 „
14	„ 2,600 „
15, 16, 17, 18, 19	„ 3,000 „

After a service of not less than 20 years, a retiring pension not exceeding the following amounts:—

Years of Completed Service	Maximum Limit of Pension.
	Rs.
20 to 24	4,000 a year.
25 and above	5,000 „

Officers who have shown special energy and efficiency during an effective service of three years in certain appointments may, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year, subject to the condition that the officer must not retire voluntarily before the completion of a total qualifying service of 28 years.

Subject to certain prescribed conditions, rupee pensions are now issued at the rate of exchange of 1*s.* 9*d.* the rupee to pensioners residing in countries in which the Indian Government rupee is not legal tender.

2. A general provident fund to which all Civil Engineers entering the Public Works Department in the future will subscribe has been established for all Civil Engineers of the Department on the following basis:—

(1) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent., on salaries, with not more than a further 9⅜ per cent. voluntary contributions. Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(2) Compound interest on such payment is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing, the rate being at present 4 per cent. per annum.

(3) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the Fund, and is handed over to him unconditionally on quitting the Service: or in the event of his death before retirement, to such person or persons as, under the rules of the Fund for the time being in force, may be entitled thereto.

(4) Other forms of life insurance will, however, if they fulfil certain conditions, be accepted in lieu of the contributions in (1).

LEAVE.

3. The following is a summary of the principal regulations relating to the leave admissible to Engineers appointed to the Imperial Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom.

(a) Short Leave.

4. Privilege leave is a holiday which may be granted to the extent of one-eleventh part of the time that an officer has been on duty without interruption; and it may be accumulated up to three months, earned by 33 months' duty. During privilege leave the officer retains a lien on his appointment, and receives an allowance equal to the salary which he would receive if he were on duty in the appointment on which he has a lien. An interval of not less than six months must elapse between two periods of absence on privilege leave.

Privilege leave may be prefixed to furlough, special leave, or extraordinary leave without allowances. The whole period of leave thus taken in combination is known as combined leave. Combined leave cannot be granted for a shorter period than six months, nor, except on medical certificate, may it be extended beyond two years.

5 Extraordinary leave without allowances may be granted in case of necessity, and, except in certain specified cases, only when no other kind of leave is by rule admissible. It may be granted in continuation of other leave.

6. Subsidiary leave in India for a minimum of ten days, usually with half average salary, may be granted to an officer proceeding on or returning from leave out of India, or on retirement, to enable him to reach the port of embarkation or to rejoin his appointment. It is admissible only at the end, and not at the beginning, of combined leave.

7. Short leave is also granted to enable officers to appear at examinations, etc.

(b) Long Leave.

8. Furlough and special leave with allowances (see paragraph 10) are admissible to an aggregate maximum amount of six years during an officer's service. The amount of furlough "earned" is one-fourth of an officer's active service, and the amount "due' is that amount less any enjoyed.

Furlough without medical certificate can, if due, be generally taken after eight years' active service, and again after intervals of not less than three years' continuous service. It is limited to two years at a time.

Furlough on medical certificate may be granted (a) to an officer who has rendered three years' continuous service, for not more than two years, but capable of extension up to three years, and (b) to an officer who has not rendered three years' continuous service, up to one year in any case, and up to such longer period, if any (but not exceeding two years), as the officer may have furlough 'due" to him.

9. The allowances admissible during furlough are:—

(1) During the first two years of furlough without medical certificate and during so much of furlough with medical certificate as may be "due,"—half average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

(2) After the expiration of the period for which the foregoing allowances are admissible,—one-quarter of average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

10. Special leave may be granted at any time for not more than six months, with intervals of six years service; allowances, calculated as during furlough, are given during the first six months only, whether taken in one or more instalments.

General Rules.

11. Leave of absence, whether on furlough or on privilege leave, can never be claimed as of right, and is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

12. After five years' continuous absence from India, an officer is considered to be out of the employment of Government.

13. When leave allowances other than privilege leave pay are paid at the Home Treasury, or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, rupees are converted into sterling at the rate of exchange fixed for the time being for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and India Treasuries, unless any other rate has been exceptionally authorised. But for the present the rate of conversion is subject to a minimum of 1*s.* 6*d.* to the rupee.

APPENDIX V.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

Note.—These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after hearing the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service; and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.

It is not the practice to communicate to candidates who may be reported as physically unfit for servi e in India the reasons for the Medical Board's opinion.

General Physical Requirements.

1. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health, and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

2. In the examination of candidates the Medical Board will apply the following table of correlation of age, height, and chest girth :—

Age.	Height without Shoes.	Chest.
		Girth when expanded.	Range of Expansion.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
21 and upwards ...	62½ and under 65	35	2
	65 „ 68	35½	2
	68 „ 70	36	2
	70 „ 72	36½	2½
	72 and upwards	37	2½

3. Measurement of Height.—The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or outside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks, and shoulders touching the standard; the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar, and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eighths. In the Indian Police Force a minimum height of 5 feet 4 inches is required, but in other Departments no fixed limit of height is imposed.

4. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest, with its posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulder blades, and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered to hang loosely by the side, and care will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as is possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to its utmost capacity. This maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and the maximum will then be recorded.

5. The hearing must be good.

6. The speech without impediment.

7. The teeth in good order, i.e., decayed or broken teeth must be properly stopped or crowned, and deficient teeth replaced by artificial teeth where necessary for effective mastication.

8. The chest must be well formed, the lungs and heart sound.

9. Rupture, hydrocele, varicocele, varicose veins in a severe degree, or other condition likely to cause inefficiency will disqualify a candidate, unless such condition is cured by operation.

10. The limbs, feet, and toes must be well formed and developed, with free and perfect motion of all the joints.

11. A candidate must have no congenital malformation or defect likely to interfere with efficiency.

12. A candidate must not be the subject of chronic skin disease.

13. Evidence of previous acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution will disqualify.

14. The Regulations as to the standard of vision required are shown separately for each department. In all cases of "colour blindness" a note of the same will be made on the candidate's papers.

Candidates may, if they wish it, undergo a preliminary examination by the Medical Board, which meets at the India Office every Tuesday, under the following conditions :—

(a) Applications must be addressed to the Under-Secretary of State, India Office, Whitehall, London, accompanied by a fee of two guineas, and a statement as to the particular appointment which the candidate desires to obtain.

(b) Candidates must pay their travelling expenses.

(c) Candidates considered to be unfit by the Medical Board at this preliminary examination are not bound to accept its opinion, but may, at their own risk, continue their studies with the knowledge that they will have to submit themselves for a final medical examination by the Medical Board, prior to the examination, or to their appointment.

(d) On the other hand, it must be distinctly understood that the preliminary examination by the Medical Board is held solely for the candidate's information, and that, if after that examination he is reported to be apparently fit, he has not on that account any claim to be accepted as physically fit when he presents himself for the final Medical Examination, upon which alone his acceptance or rejection will depend. Candidates may be considered fit for the Service at the preliminary examination, but may be found at the final examination to be unfit, either on account of some physical defect which did not exist or passed undetected at the preliminary examination, or for other reasons.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE STANDARD OF VISION.

1. If myopia in one or both eyes exists, a candidate may be passed provided the ametropia does not exceed 3·5D, and if, with correcting glasses not exceeding 3·5D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{9}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

2. Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate, provided the lens, or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses, required to correct the error of refraction, does not exceed 3·5D; the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other $\frac{6}{9}$, together with normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

3. A candidate having total hypermetropia not exceeding 4D is not disqualified, provided the sight in one eye (when under the influence of atropine) equals $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$, with + 4 D glasses, or any lower power.

4. Hypermetropic astigmatism does not disqualify, provided the lens or combined lenses required to cover the error of refraction do not exceed 4 D, and that the sight of one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$, and the other $\frac{6}{9}$, with or without such lens or lenses.

5. A candidate having a defect of vision arising from nebula of the cornea is disqualified if the sight of one eye be less than $\frac{6}{12}$. In such a case the better eye must be emmetropic. Defects of vision arising from pathological or other changes in the deeper structures of either eye, which are not referred to in these rules, may exclude a candidate.

6. Squint or any morbid condition, subject to the risk of aggravation or recurrence, in either eye, may cause the rejection of a candidate. Any imperfection of the colour sense is a disqualification for appointment to the engineering branch of the Railway Department. In other cases the existence of imperfection of colour sense will be noted on the candidate's papers.

FOR ALL APPOINTMENTS UNDER THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT A DECLARATION, AS FOLLOWS, IS REQUIRED FROM CANDIDATES.

No. 63.
Simla, the 28th April 1919.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Home Department.

During the session of the Imperial Legislative Council at Delhi in the cold weather of 1913-14, a resolution was adopted recommending that a joint Commission of officials and non-officials be appointed to investigate the whole subject of jail administration and to suggest improvements in the light of the experience of the West. Such a course is consistent with the manner in which prison management has developed in this country. Four general enquiries have already been held, in the years 1838, 1864, 1877 and 1888-89, respectively, into the whole question of the administration of jails. There have, of course, been numerous independent discussions and declarations of policy on special points, either of a general character or in relation particularly to individual provinces, but the main lines of advance followed have been the result of the reports then submitted. This, therefore, is the first reason for advocating such a procedure now, namely, that it has yielded beneficial results in the past and that a considerable period of time has elapsed since resort was last had to a general enquiry.

2. But an even stronger ground than this exists. Without in any way desiring to underestimate the valuable results which have accrued from the labours of these different committees, and while fully cognizant of the great advances which have been made in jail management, thanks to the energetic efforts of local Governments, the Governor General in Council considers that, as a general statement, it is not unfair to say that attention has mainly been directed hitherto to the improvement of prison administration on lines and standards which in recent times have undergone considerable modification, at any rate in the West. This was, indeed, inevitably the case. When an attempt was first made in 1838 to deal with the subject comprehensively and thoroughly, the foundations of an efficient system had practically still to be laid. Diversity of practice in different provinces was the rule rather than the exception, and this complaint recurs even in connection with the latest enquiry of 1888-89. The Prisons Act of 1894 (Act IX of 1894) was the first recognition by the Legislature that in certain respects uniformity must be insisted upon, and its enactment was the result of Surgeon-Major Lethbridge's recommendations, as subsequently re-examined in 1891-92 by a departmental committee. In appointing the committee of 1888-89, the Government of India (vide their resolution nos. 458—464, dated the 9th October 1888) expressly stated that they had no wish to reconsider the principles laid down by the three preceding investigations, and so great has been the leeway to be made up in what may be termed the essentials of any prison system, e.g., an efficient jail service, proper buildings and diet scales, suitable forms of labour, and the classification of prison offences and punishments, etc., etc., that progress in these directions has absorbed much of the attention of the capable officers to whom the control of the Department is now entrusted. In all these directions a great advance has been achieved, but a review of the development of prison administration in the various provinces, in order to see what has been accomplished and what still remains to be done, would naturally form part of any further enquiry now held.

3. But, over and above this, something more is required. Ideas on the subject of the treatment of prisoners have advanced rapidly in recent years, largely under the stimulus of the quinquennial International Conferences, of which the first was held in London in 1872 and the latest in America in 1910, and the deliberations of these bodies point to the importance of reformation as a main end to be sought for in a large number of cases. The Probation of Offenders Act, 1907, the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1908, and the Children's Act of the latter year are all instances of modern English legislation on the subject, of which the Borstal system (with the after care Borstal Association) and the encouragement given to Discharged Prisoners Aid Societies are conspicuous results. The Government of India are well aware of the differences in prison practice in England and India, and they do not desire in any way to imply that all the latest experiments of the West are necessarily suitable for introduction in the East, but they are of opinion that the subject well merits detailed expert examination if the prevalent system in this country is to be saved from the reproach that it is failing to keep pace with modern ideas. It is true that in various provinces experiments with the Borstal system and with preventive methods as applied to criminal tribes are being made, but action is being taken by provinces individually, and the scrutiny and co-ordination of the results attained are likely to ensure that lines of future policy are defined and mistakes avoided in the early stages. Exact uniformity of procedure in all provinces is no doubt impossible, and possibly undesirable, but, with adaptation in degree and detail to varying local conditions, there is no reason why the general principles governing the treatment of criminals should not be the same throughout the country.

4. There remains the very important subject of transportation, about which much has been written in the past and into a discussion of the merits of which it is not proposed to enter, but recent enquiries and events have led the Government of India to doubt whether the administration of the Andamans as a penal settlement is not susceptible, with advantage, of material change, or whether in fact the continuance of the Settlement in its present shape is in itself expedient. An enquiry in this direction may be expected to yield results of special value.

5. Subsequent to the discussion in the Legislative Council referred to above, the Government of India consulted all Local Governments regarding the proposed enquiry into prison administration in India and found that opinion was unanimously in favour of such an undertaking. They then secured the consent of His Majesty's Secretary of State to the appointment of a Committee of Enquiry and the steps for the constitution of the Committee were in progress on the date of the outbreak of war. That event rendered the conduct of the proposed enquiries outside India impossible and the project for appointing a Committee had to be for the time abandoned. Experience of the past 5 years has emphasized the necessity for this enquiry and the Government of India have now resolved, with the concurrence of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State, to take up the matter again. Accordingly it has been decided now to appoint a Committee to investigate the whole system of prison administration in India with special reference to recent legislation and experience in Western countries. The constitution of the Committee will be as follows :—

Chairman.

The HON'BLE SIR ALEXANDER CARDEW, K.C.S.I.,
Member of Executive Council, Madras.

Members.

The HON'BLE SIR JAMES DUBOULAY, K.C.I.E., C.S.I.,
Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. JACKSON, C.I.E., I.M.S.,
Inspector-General of Prisons, Bombay.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR WALTER J. BUCHANAN, K.C.I.E., I.M.S.,
Inspector-General of Prisons, Bengal.

KHAN BAHADUR HAMID HUSSAIN, Delhi.

MR. D. M. DURAI RAJA, B.A. B.L.,
Madras.

Mr. N. G. MITCHELL-INNES,
Inspector of Prisons, Home Office, London.

Secretary.

Mr. D. JOHNSTONE, I.C.S.

This Committee will assemble at an early date in London, and after examining the working of the prison system of Great Britain, and possibly of other countries including the United States of America, will return to India and, in the course of the next cold weather, visit the various provinces of India and the Andamans. The Committee's inquiries will have particular reference to the following subjects, namely :—

(i) the efficacy and appropriateness of the existing systems of prison administration and restraint on liberty in India, including the Andamans and any settlements constituted under the Criminal Tribes Act, 1911;

(ii) the possibility of strengthening the reformatory influence of prison administration and discriminating in regard to the treatment of criminals of different classes and ages; and

(iii) the best means of assisting prisoners after release to regain a position in society.

The Governor General in Council does not propose to attempt an enumeration of the different points which, under these main heads, should occupy the attention of the Committee but, generally, it will be its duty to consider how far the methods which have been shown by recent experience in other countries to be beneficial in the treatment of prisoners, can usefully be applied to Indian conditions; how far the existing Indian prison system is susceptible of improvement; and what steps should be taken to render it both more deterrent to crime and more reformatory in its influence.

ORDER.—Ordered that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India and that a copy be forwarded to local Governments and Administrations, the Departments of the Government of India, and the Superintendent, Port Blair, for information.

The 1st May 1919.

1. Three classes of students are admitted for study in the College—

(a) "Regular," or those who enter for the full University course.

The admission to this class is restricted to students (male and female) who are natives of, or whose parents are domiciled in, the area within the territorial limits of the Calcutta University and the province of Bihar and Orissa.

(b) "Casual," or those who enter for selected or isolated subjects.

The admission to this class is regulated by the Director-General, Indian Medical Service.

2. The minimum preliminary qualification for admission to the—

(a) "Regular Class" is the I. Sc. Pass certificate of the Calcutta University.

(b) "Casual."—The Matriculation or Entrance Pass certificate of the Calcutta or other Indian Universities, or the Pass certificate of an examination equivalent to the Matriculation or Entrance Examination.

3 The session commences on the 15th June.

4. All new students must apply for admission to the Principal, Medical College, Calcutta, in the prescribed form available in his office, before the 25th May, except in the case of Biharis, Uriyas, Chota-Nagpuris and Assamese students, who should apply to the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals of their respective provinces for admission within such date as the latter may prescribe.

Selected candidates must pay the following fees on or before the 10th June, failing which their names will be struck off the selected list:—

	Rs.	A.
Admission fee	20	0
Fees for Summer term	62	8
Athletic Club fee	1	0
Total ...	83	8

5. The number of regular students to be admitted each year is generally 120, but the Principal may, at his discretion, increase or decrease this number. Preference for admission will usually be given to candidates who have superior qualifications, but the final selection lies entirely with the Principal.

One-fourth of the total number to be admitted shall be Muhammadans. Twelve candidates will be nominated by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals of Bihar and Orissa and six candidates by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals of Assam. These candidates must possess the qualifications mentioned in rule 2 (a). In addition, the Bihar and Orissa Government will nominate six scholars, who, after 1918, must possess the I. Sc. Pass certificate. These nominations must reach the Principal, Medical College, Calcutta, before the 10th June in each year, failing which the Principal will fill up vacancies with local candidates.

6. Female students of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Assam and Burma, belonging to the Calcutta University will be admitted to the College, provided they possess the requisite preliminary qualification and provided there is a vacancy in the Surnomoyee Hostel in which all female students must reside.

7. Failed students must apply for admission and pay fees before the 15th May, otherwise their prior claim lapses.

8. All regular students must pay an annual fee of Rs. 125 in two instalments, viz., Rs. 62-8 for the Summer term and Rs. 62-8 for the Winter term. Fees once paid cannot be refunded.

9. The fees for each term are to be paid in one instalment. Except in the case of new students, the fees for Summer term are due on the 15th June, and those for the Winter term on the 1st November, and must be paid on those dates or on such subsequent dates as the Principal may direct, after which a daily fine of annas 4 will be levied along with the fee in each case of default.

10. All regular students excepting the female students must pay an annual fee of Re. 1 to the Medical College Athletic Club along with the fees for the Summer term.

11. Students relegated to a further course of study after their failure at the Preliminary Scientific M. B. and at the First M. B. Examinations shall pay Rs. 80 for the whole session in one instalment by the 1st June.

12. Students taking up subjects outside the curriculum of the year in which they are studying shall pay Rs. 30 for each such subject, including lectures and practical classes.

13. The fees for Casual students or for certificates issued to Regular students leaving the College before completing their study, or for those issued to military students, shall be Rs. 40 per each course of lectures and practical classes and Rs. 30 for every three months of hospital practice.

14. Students who fail at the Final M. B. Examination shall pay fees for the whole session at the following rates in one instalment by the 1st June :—

	Rs
For one subject	25
„ two subjects	50
„ three or more subjects	75

15. In calculating the sum to be paid under rule 12 by a regular student, the amount of College fees paid by him, or in the case of a student enjoying a stipendiary scholarship and free tuition, the amount which would have been paid by him had he been a paying student, shall be deducted.

16. The fees payable by a Muhammadan student requiring certificates in the same way will be calculated on the same principle, i.e, he will be allowed a deduction for the full annual fee, half of which has been paid by himself and half by the Mohsin Fund.

17. Students of the military class requiring certificates in the same way will be required to pay the rate of fees laid down in paragraph 12 for the full curriculum or for such portion as they have attended. No deduction will be made in this case as they are not free students in the sense in which that term is defined in Bengal Government Resolution (Education) No. 601 of the 7th December 1880.

18. No fees are payable by female students.

19 The fee for post-graduates undergoing a course of training in the Pathological, Bacteriological, Physiological or Chemical Laboratory is Rs 90 for a period not exceeding six months.

20. Holders of a stipendiary scholarship of a value less than Rs. 20 per mensem are not required to pay the annual fee of Rs. 125 for the year in which they hold a scholarship. All other scholarship-holders shall pay the same fees as regular students.

4. The Local Government, after considering the statement required by section 3 and the conditions and resources of the Municipality, and after determining the amount of financial assistance from the Government which may be necessary in order to provide for primary education within the Municipality, may, if satisfied that the Municipality is able to meet the expenditure involved, direct the Commissioners to provide the necessary school accommodation, staff and equipment for all children, not being less than six or more than eleven years of age, likely to attend primary schools voluntarily within the Municipality and to assume the direct management and control of all such schools.

PART III.

Compulsory Primary Education.

Operation of Part III.

5. The provisions of this Part shall not come into operation until a notification has been issued under section 6, sub-section (2).

Primary education when to be declared compulsory

6. (1) If, after complying with the directions of the Local Government under section 4, the Commissioners are of opinion that the primary education of all boys, not being less than six or more than ten years of age, should be made compulsory within the Municipality, or any part thereof, they may apply to the Local Government, in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government, for permission to introduce therein compulsory primary education for such boys.

(2) The Local Government, after considering the application and after determining the financial assistance from the Government which may be necessary to provide for compulsory primary education within the Municipality, shall, if satisfied that the Municipality is able to meet the expenditure involved, grant the permission asked for, and the Commissioners shall thereupon cause a notification to be issued declaring that primary education shall be compulsory for all such boys within the Municipality, or any part thereof, as the case may be.

The Bengal Primary Education Act, 1919.

(Part III.—Compulsory Primary Education.—Sections 7—9.)

(3) Every notification issued under this section shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette and in the local newspapers, if any, and shall be posted up at the Municipal office and at such other places, as the Commissioners shall deem necessary, specifying the date on and from which primary education shall be compulsory within the Municipality, or any part thereof.

(4) No notification shall be issued by the Commissioners under this section except in pursuance of a resolution passed at a special general meeting convened for the purpose and at which not less than two-thirds of the total number of Commissioners are present.

Constitution of School Committee.

7. When a notification has been issued in any Municipality under section 6, sub-section (2), the Commissioners shall appoint a School Committee, to be constituted in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made under section 15:

Provided that a Deputy Inspector or a Sub-Inspector of Schools, at least one Commissioner and one or more residents of the Municipality, other than a Commissioner, shall be members of the Committee.

Duty of guardian to send boy to school.

8. (1) In every area to which the provisions of this Part apply, it shall be the duty of the guardian of every boy, not being less than six or more than ten years of age, residing within that area to cause such boy to attend a recognized primary school unless, in the opinion of the School Committee, there is a reasonable excuse for his non-attendance.

(2) Any of the following circumstances shall be deemed to be a reasonable excuse within the meaning of this section :—

(a) that there is no recognized primary school within a distance of one mile, measured by the shortest route, from the residence of the boy which he can attend, and to which the guardian has no reasonable objection to send the boy;

(b) that the boy is prevented from attending the school by reason of sickness, infirmity, domestic necessity, the seasonal needs of agriculture or of his being the sole bread-winner of his family;

(c) that the boy is receiving education in some other satisfactory manner.

Order of Magistrate to compel attendance.

9. (1) If the School Committee is satisfied that a guardian who is required under section 8 to cause a boy to attend a recognized primary school, has failed to do so, it shall, after giving a warning in writing to such guardian, apply to a Magistrate for an order to compel the guardian to enforce the attendance of such boy; and the Magistrate shall fix a day for the hearing of the application and cause notice thereof to be given to such guardian.

(2) On the day fixed for the hearing of the application or on any subsequent day to which it may be adjourned, and after hearing the guardian or his authorized agent, if present, the Magistrate, if satisfied that the facts alleged in the application are true, may pass an order directing the guardian to cause such boy to attend a recognized primary school from a date to be specified in such order.

Penalty for failure to obey order.

10. (1) Any guardian who fails to comply with an order passed under section 9 shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees, and also to a recurring fine not exceeding one rupee for each day after the first during which he continues so to offend.

(2) No Magistrate shall take cognizance of an offence under this section except on the complaint of the School Committee.

Prohibition of employment of boys.

11. No person shall, without the permission of the School Committee, employ any boy, not being less than six or more than ten years of age, who is required to attend a recognized primary school under this Part:

Provided that such permission shall not be necessary if the employment of the boy does not interfere with his attendance at such school.

Employer's liability.

12. (1) The School Committee may prosecute any person who, after due warning, contravenes the provisions of section 11.

(2) Unless such person satisfies the Magistrate that there is a reasonable excuse, within the meaning of section 8, sub-section (2), for the non-attendance of the boy, or that the time and nature of employment of the boy are such that he is not prevented from attending a recognized primary school, or that the boy was taken into employment under false representations as to age, residence and other conditions, such person shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

Delegation of some of the functions of the School Committee.

13. An application to a Magistrate under section 9 or a complaint to a Magistrate under section 10 or section 12, may be made on behalf of the School Committee by such person as may be authorized by the School Committee by general or special order in this behalf.

The Bengal Primary Education Act, 1919.

(Part III.—Compulsory Primary Education.—Part IV.—Education Cess.—Sections 14 –17.)

Remission of fees.

14. When primary education has been made compulsory in any Municipality, or any part thereof, if a guardian, who is required under the provisions of this Part to cause a boy to attend a recognized primary school, satisfies the School Committee that he is unable to pay the fees or any part of the fees ordinarily charged in such school, such boy shall be admitted to such school free of charge, or at such reduced fees as the School Committee may determine, for the period during which the guardian is required to cause the boy to attend a recognized primary school.

Power of Commissioners to make rules.

15. The Commissioners may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make rules prescribing—

(a) the manner in which the School Committee shall be constituted, the number of its members, its duties and its mode of transacting business;

(b) the steps which the School Committee may take to secure the attendance of boys at school.

Exemption from compulsory education.

16. The Local Government may, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, exempt any class of persons or any community, in any area to which this Act extends, from the operation of this Part.

PART IV.

Education Cess.

Education cess.

17. (1) If the existing resources of any Municipality including any grant from the Government, are not sufficient to cover the cost of primary education within the Municipality, the Commissioners may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, impose a tax, to be called the "education cess"; and all amounts derived therefrom shall be devoted solely to the purposes of primary education, whether voluntary or compulsory, within the Municipality.

(2) An education cess shall not be imposed unless the Commissioners by a resolution, passed at a special general meeting convened for the purpose and in favour of which two-thirds of the Commissioners have voted, determine to impose such cess.

(3) The education cess shall be levied in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government, and the cess so levied shall be a rate amounting to the sum required, after deducting the Government grant, the school receipts and the receipts from endowments and contributions, to meet the expenditure on primary education, together with ten per cent. above such sum to meet the collection charges and the probable losses due to non-realization from defaulters.

The Bengal Primary Education Act, 1919.

(Part V.—Supplemental.—Sections 18—21.)

PART V.

Supplemental.

Power of Local Government to make rules

18. (1) The Local Government may, after previous publication, make rules to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(a) applications under section 6, sub-section (1), shall be made; and (b) the education cess shall be levied.

(3) All rules made under this section shall be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Schools to be open to inspection.

19. All primary schools maintained by the Commissioners within a Municipality, or any part thereof, under the provisions of this Act shall be open to inspection free of any charge by the inspecting officers of the Education Department of the Local Government and such other persons as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf.

Certain persons to be deemed public servants.

20. Every person authorized by the School Committee under section 13 and every officer and servant of the School Committee, shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of section 21 of the Indian Penal Code. Act XLV of 1860.

Withdrawal of notification on default.

21. When, in the opinion of the Local Government, the Commissioners have made default in any of the requirements of Part III of this Act, the Local Government may, after considering any explanation of the Commissioners, by a notification in the Calcutta Gazette, stating the grounds of such order, cancel any notification which has been issued under section 6, sub-section (1).

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 1.

The following questions which had been starred were put and answered :—

By the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur:—

*I.

Transfer of the hackney-carriage department from the Calcutta Corporation to the Commissioner of Police

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state—

(i) when the Calcutta hackney-carriage department will be taken over by the Commissioner of Police from the Corporation ; and

(ii) whether the entire staff of the present hackney-carriage department will be taken over by the Commissioner of Police?

(b) If it is not proposed to take over the entire staff, will the Government be pleased to state what provision will be made for those of the staff who will be thrown out of employment?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

" (a) (i) It is proposed that the Commissioner of Police should take over charge of the department when the sanction of the Government of India to the entertainment of the necessary staff has been obtained.

(ii) The answer is in the negative.

(b) The matter is under consideration."

By the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur:—

*II.

New scientific scheme of public finance.

(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to a memorandum by Mr. Nilambara Mukherjee, C.I.E., retired vice-chairman of the Corporation of Calcutta and formerly Finance Minister, Kashmir, elaborating a new " scientific scheme of public finance " ?

(b) Is it a fact that Sir Daniel Hamilton recorded a testimony in relation to its introduction to the effect that the proposal of Mr. Nilambara Mukherjee is the only scientific system?

(c) Is it also a fact that the author of the scheme alleges that benefit would accrue both to the Imperial and Provincial Government?

(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they are considering the matter and whether they propose to take any steps in the matter?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Donald:—

" (a) Government have seen a copy of the memorandum referred to.

(b) Sir D. Hamilton's views are contained in the following extract from a letter written by him to Mr. Mukherjee :—

> ' I understand your proposal to be that Government should withdraw all silver money from circulation, and print and issue in its stead, whatever paper money may be required to keep every able-bodied man and woman fully employed on productive work, leaving the small metallic money to help out the paper.
> What you propose is, in my opinion, the only scientific form of currency, but whether it would be wise to withdraw all silver money immediately is a point on which there is room for difference of opinion.'

Questions and Answers.

(c) The intention of the scheme is the creation of money exclusively in inconvertible paper currency notes to an extent not exceeding the sum total of the rupee values of the natural assets of the country. It is claimed that benefit would thus accrue to the whole Empire.

(d) The scheme has been prepared for the consideration of the Government of India, and as currency problems are a matter for that Government this Government do not propose to take any action."

By the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur:—

III.

Effect of the Bengal Secretariat reorganization scheme of 1910.

(a) Is it a fact that the reorganisation scheme of 1910 has adversely affected the pay and prospects of the lower grade assistants of the Bengal Secretariat who entered that office long before the reorganization scheme and of those assistants who were transferred from the Eastern Bengal and Assam Secretariat in April, 1912?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state what steps have been taken to remove the hardship in the case of the lower grade assistants who entered the Secretariat before the reorganization scheme of 1910 or were transferred from the Eastern Bengal and Assam Secretariat in April, 1912?

(c) What is the pay of a typist and of a lower grade assistant in the Secretariat?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Donald:—

"(a) and (b) In 1910 the clerical staff of the Bengal Secretariat was reorganised and a lower division and an upper division were constituted. It was then laid down that up to 1915 half the appointments to the upper division should be made by promotion from the lower division, and thereafter the lower division should ordinarily have no claim to promotion to the upper division. The position was that the lower division was intended for clerks doing routine work only, and the orders of 1910 contemplated the promotion to the upper division only of clerks fit to undertake the more important work of the upper division. In December 1913 assistants in the lower division submitted a memorial to Government complaining of their prospects and position. The memorial was duly considered; it was found that the memorialists had a genuine grievance, as between 1910 and 1913 promotion from the lower to the upper division had not been in accordance with the orders of 1910, and instructions were issued with a view to the removal of this grievance. The assistants again memorialised Government in 1917, and it was held that the lower division clerks had no case for complaint except that in the case of two departments orders passed in 1910 and 1913 regarding the promotion of such clerks to the upper division had not been fully adhered to. Steps have been taken to remedy this grievance and promotion is now being made in these cases.

(c) The pay of a typist is Rs. 40—2—80 per mensem and that of a lower division clerk varies from Rs. 40 to Rs. 100."

By the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur:—

IV.

The post of the Collector of Calcutta.

(a) Is it a fact that a member of the Indian Civil Service has been appointed to the post of Collector of Calcutta?

(b) Was not the post hitherto reserved for a member of the provincial executive service, who was also in charge of the treasury?

Questions and Answers.

(c) If the answers to (a) and (b) are in the affirmative, will the Government be pleased to state why a departure has been made in the present case?

(d) Will the Government be also pleased to state who will do the work of the treasury officer under the new arrangement?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

"(a) Yes.

(b) No. The appointment of Collector of land revenue, Calcutta, is reserved by statute for a member of the Indian Civil Service. Until recently the post was held by the Collector of the 24-Parganas ex officio and the functions of deputy collector of land revenue, Collector of Stamp revenue and Collector of Excise in Calcutta were exercised by an officer selected from the provincial executive service. Another deputy collector was ordinarily employed as treasury officer and on other miscellaneous work, but in 1916 the deputy collector of land revenue was relieved of most of his duties in connection with excise and no second deputy collector has since been employed.

(c) The arrangement has been found unsatisfactory, and in view of the increasing complexity of the work, particularly in the matter of excise administration, and the magnitude of the financial interests involved, it has been considered necessary to appoint a member of the Indian Civil Service as whole-time Collector of Calcutta. This officer will also be able to discharge a number of other functions which in an ordinary district are performed by the District Officer, but which in Calcutta have hitherto devolved upon the Commissioner of Police.

(d) A deputy collector has been selected to hold charge of the treasury and to perform routine duties in the Calcutta Collectorate."

By the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur:—

V.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is in contemplation to sanction grain compensation allowance to all classes of employés under Government drawing pay up to Rs. 30 per mensem? Grain compensation allowance.

(b) If so, what amount will an individual employé get per mensem as grain compensation allowance under the scheme?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Donald:—

"(a) and (b) No, but a proposal has been made to the Government of India for the grant of a war bonus to such employés."

By the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray:—

VI.

(a) Will the Government be pleased to state how many new newspapers, periodicals and journals, with political aims, have been started during the last three years, stating their names and also the amount of security which has been taken from each of them under the Indian Press Act, 1910 (I of 1910)? Newspapers, periodicals, etc., started with political aims during the last three years.

(b) Is it a fact that no security has been taken from newspapers published under European management?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

Gazetting of the appointments of officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police.

Are the officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police gazetted officers? If so, are their appointments, postings, transfers, etc., made by Government and published in the Calcutta Gazette, like those of gazetted officers of other Departments and of permanent Deputy Superintendents of Police? If not, what are the reasons?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

"Officiating deputy superintendents of police are gazetted officers. Their appointments, postings, and transfers are made by the Inspector-General of Police, to whom the power was delegated in 1911."

By the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta:—

Special powers of the Inspector-General of Police to make appointments of officiating Deputy Superintendents.

(a) Is it a fact that the Inspector-General of Police has been vested with special powers to make the appointments of officiating Deputy Superintendents?

(b) If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reason for this innovation in the case of the Police Department, while in other services Government retain the power in their own hands regarding gazetted officers?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

"(a) Yes.

(b) The Police Department is not the only department in which the powers of making such appointments has been delegated to the head of the department. In the Education Department the Director of Public Instruction has been empowered to make appointments to the two lowest grades of the Provincial Educational Service. Such delegations are made for greater convenience in the transaction of business."

(b) Is efficiency or seniority the test of selection?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

"(a) Yes. A copy of the rules is laid on the table.

(b) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the rules."

Rules referred to in the answer by the Hon'ble MR. KERR to question No. 10 (Unstarred) asked by the Hon'ble BABU AKHIL CHANDRA DATTA, at the Council Meeting of the 7th April, 1919, regarding the system of selection of Inspectors for promotion to the rank of Deputy Superintendent.

The attention of Deputy Inspectors-General and Superintendents of Police is drawn to rule 18, Part I of the Police Regulations regarding the appointment of Deputy Superintendents. Clause (h) of the rule deals with the promotion of Inspectors to the rank of Deputy Superintendent, but it does not lay down definite instructions as to the manner of selection, with the result that there is no uniformity of procedure. The Inspector-General has given the matter his careful consideration and, with the approval of Government, the following provisional rules are issued for the guidance of all officers concerned :—

Questions and Answers.

(1) No Inspector shall be appointed to act as Deputy Superintendent unless all the local officers concerned (the Superintendent, District Magistrate and Deputy Inspector-General) are unanimous in their opinion that he has the necessary qualifications for the post of permanent Deputy Superintendent and is likely to prove a success as such. In submitting their nominations, the local officers and the Deputy Inspector-General must clearly understand that no officer should be nominated for promotion who does not possess a thoroughly clean record as regards honesty and who is not of marked ability. The name of an officer is not to be submitted solely on the ground of seniority, but what is required is seniority combined with merit and it is rather the latter than the former that should be the determining factor. If seniority is strictly observed it will not be possible to promote especially smart junior officers, and this will practically mean that the cadre of promoted Inspectors will consist of officers of only ordinary intelligence and capability. It is, therefore, essential that in selecting officers for this important post it should not be sufficient for a possible candidate to be able to point to a clean sheet. Most Inspectors can do this. Apart from the question of conduct an officer must possess qualifications and ability such as will enable him to perform the duties required of a superior officer of the rank of Deputy Superintendent. If regard is had only to good conduct as the sole qualification, the principle of selection ceases to exist.

(2) The Inspector-General will interview all the officers who are nominated, and if he is satisfied that they are suitable, their names will be entered in a provisional list and they will be appointed to act as vacancies occur.

(3) After an officer has acted for a year the local officers and the Deputy Inspector-General will be required to submit a full report on his work and conduct with a definite opinion whether his outturn of work is of the standard required of a Deputy Superintendent. If the report is favourable his name will be entered in an "approved list" and he will be allowed to continue for another year provided there is a vacancy for him. After an officer has acted for two years the local officers and the Deputy Inspector-General will be required to submit a further report regarding his work and if it is found that he has maintained his efficiency throughout, the fact that he is fit for permanent promotion shall be noted against his name in the "approved list" from which all sub. pro tem and permanent promotions shall ordinarily be made in order of seniority. Ordinarily a Superintendent or Deputy Inspector-General should be in position to report after a year on the fitness or otherwise of an Inspector to be placed on the "approved list" and it is only in very exceptional cases, which will have to be clearly explained, that a second year's trial will be permitted. If the Superintendent watches the work of an Officiating Deputy Superintendent as he should, there ought to be no difficulty in arriving at a conclusion at the end of a year. The Deputy Inspector-General should have a list of the officiating men in his charge with a column showing the date on which the year's trial will expire and he should make a point of examining their work within the year so as to be in a position to give a decided opinion. It should be understood that transfers of officers under trial should be avoided as far as possible. If an officer serves under two or three Superintendents in the course of a year, difficulties will arise and if his transfer is essential in the interests of the public service, the Superintendent under whom he is employed shall at once submit a report to the Deputy Inspector-General for the period he served under him.

Questions and Answers.

(4) If after a year's work as an acting Deputy Superintendent an officer is found to be unfit or unsuitable, he will revert to his substantive rank and will ordinarily not be allowed to act again. If, however, his case is found to be doubtful and the local officers and the Deputy Inspector-General are unable to express a definite opinion regarding his fitness or otherwise for promotion to gazetted rank, he will be allowed to act for a further period, but in no case shall the name of an officer be ordinarily retained in the "approved list" for more than two years unless he can show within that period that he is fit for promotion.

(5) All acting Deputy Superintendents shall be required to pass the prescribed departmental examinations within two years unless exempted by Government from passing in any subject or unless they have already passed a corresponding examination in any of the subjects prescribed under the rules for the departmental examination of subordinate police officers.

(6) Clause (j) of the rule lays down that Deputy Superintendents shall be on probation for two years and that at the end of that period, if favourably reported on, if they have passed the prescribed departmental examinations, they will be confirmed. Under the existing system an Inspector who has already acted as Deputy Superintendent for two years or more is required to serve the full period of probation on being promoted to a permanent vacancy. This is unnecessary in the case of an officer who has already shown by his work and conduct that he is fit for permanent promotion. In future, if an officer has acted as Deputy Superintendent for two years and has passed the prescribed departmental examinations he will be promoted permanently if the vacancy is permanent. In the case of an officer who has not acted as Deputy Superintendent for full two years his period of probation shall count from the date on which he began to act as such.

2. The cases of all existing acting Deputy Superintendents will be regulated by the foregoing rules.

By the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta:—

Principle of selection of permanent Deputy Superintendents of Police.

(a) What is the principle of selection of permanent Deputy Superintendents of Police from the ranks of officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police?

(b) When an officer is selected to officiate on the ground of efficiency, is the length of the officiating period taken into consideration for permanent promotion, or is age or seniority in the service held as the criterion for selection?

(c) What principle has of late been followed in making these selections?

(d) Do the Government recognise the principle that efficiency in their work as officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police should be the only test in making these appointments?

(e) Will the Government be pleased to publish the names of officiating Deputy Superintendents of Police, noting how long each has been officiating and in what vacancy each has been provided with the acting appointment?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr:—

"(a) (b) (c) and (d) The Hon'ble Member is referred to the rules which have been laid on the table in reply to question No. 10 (unstarred).

(e) A list of the officers who were officiating as deputy superintendents on the 1st January, together with the date from which each has been acting, is laid on the table. It is not possible to state in what vacancy each officer has been provided with an acting appointment, as acting arrangements are made in leave vacancies in the cadre and also to fill deficiencies in the rank of assistant superintendents, and the chain of arrangements is constantly fluctuating."

Teaching of needlework and domestic economy in girls' high and middle schools.

(a) What arrangements are there for the teaching of needlework and domestic economy in girls' high and middle schools?

(b) Are the Government considering the desirability of having specially trained teachers in these subjects, particularly for the Government high schools for girls?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

" (a) Needlework is taught in all high and middle schools for girls, and the teachers are well qualified. The position with regard to domestic economy is not so satisfactory. In Eastern Bengal, apart from the Eden High School where lectures are given on hygiene, first aid, home nursing and infant welfare, little is done. In West Bengal most high schools and all middle schools under mission management teach cooking and various household duties.

(b) For needlework the present arrangements are adequate. The need of efficient teaching in domestic economy is fully recognised, but the comparatively slow progress is due to the lack of properly qualified teachers. Arrangements for special training are under consideration "

Nature and scope of the Kala-azar survey

What will be the nature and scope of the Kala-azar survey for which a non-recurring provision of rupees eleven thousand has been made in the budget for 1919-20?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

" A Deputy Sanitary Commissioner possessed of special qualifications in tropical medicine, together with a small staff and travelling laboratory, will be employed on the inquiry. Circulars are being issued to all dispensaries in Eastern Bengal to ensure that special particulars will be recorded of all cases showing the typical symptoms of kala-azar, i.e., enlarged and hardened spleen and great emaciation with irregularly recurring chronic attacks of fever resistant to ordinary treatment. There are 217 dispensaries in Eastern Bengal (Dacca and Chittagong Divisions) and the staff will first visit those dispensaries from which cases of kala-azar have already been reported, and after examining such cases as attend, will pay visits to the villages from which the patients come with a view to discovering whether or not other cases exist. After having visited and mapped out the prevalence of the disease in the areas known to be affected, other areas from which reports of suspected cases have been received will be visited in turn and examined in the same way. An opportunity will be taken during the inquiry of demonstrating to the local dispensary medical officers the most recent methods of diagnosis and treatment, and, where necessary, arrangements will be made as far as possible to see that measures of prevention are adopted against the spread of the disease. It is estimated that the inquiry will occupy at least a year."

With regard to the provision made in the budget for 1919-20 for the appointment of a special officer to scrutinize college and school buildings from a hygienic point of view, will the Government be pleased to state their scheme in this matter and the circumstances and considerations which have prompted them to make the appointment?

Special officer to consider hygienic conditions of school and college buildings.

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

" The appointment is to be made in accordance with the recommendations of an expert committee appointed in 1913 to inquire into questions connected with school and college hygiene. This committee commented severely upon the insanitary condition of educational buildings and hostels, and pointed out the need for expert supervision. It is considered desirable not only that the condition of existing buildings should receive careful scrutiny, and that any serious defects that may be brought to light should be removed or remedied, but also that closer attention should be paid than the present staff of the Sanitary Commissioner can afford to the planning of all school and hostel buildings in future with strict regard to sanitary requirements. It is accordingly proposed that a Deputy Sanitary Commissioner should be appointed as an experimental measure for 5 years to inspect existing school buildings and hostels from the sanitary and hygienic point of view, to draw up general directions for the lighting, ventilation and sanitation of new school buildings and to scrutinize all plans for new buildings. He will also be in general charge of the medical inspection of school children, make special studies of the diseases to which children are particularly liable and suggest suitable measures for their prevention."

Scheme of cattle census.

With regard to the provision of Rs. 5,500 in the budget for 1919-20, for a temporary establishment in connection with census of cattle, will the Government be pleased to explain the nature of the scheme of work?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. McAlpin:—

"It has been decided, under instructions from the Government of India, that a census of livestock, ploughs and carts should be taken in the Presidency during the year 1919-20 and that it should be repeated at quinquennial intervals thereafter. Accordingly a census will be taken in this Presidency in January, 1920. The census in villages will be carried out by the agency of panchayats under the general supervision of the sub-divisional officer or the deputy collector who may be deputed by the district officer for census duty in each sub-division. In municipal areas the census will be conducted by the municipalities, while on tea gardens the managers will be requested to undertake the enumeration. The abstract totals will be computed in the office of the Director of Agriculture and the temporary establishment, provided for in the budget and referred to in the question, is required for that work. Copies of the proposed schedules and instructions are laid on the Library table.

For information regarding the last cattle census in 1912, the Hon'ble Member is referred to "A Survey and Census of the Cattle of Bengal" by Mr. J. R. Blackwood, I.C.S., published by Government in the year 1915."

"The special grant given by the Government of India for non-recurring expenditure in connection with the reorganization of the police in the area which now forms the Presidency of Bengal amounted to Rs. 22,52,000. The whole of this sum has now been spent, and any further expenditure on police buildings will have to be met from provincial revenues and provided for in the Civil Works budget. "(a) In certain villages purdahnashin ladies (Hindus and Muhammadans) gather together a number of pupils and teach them in their own houses. The schools so conducted are known as home girls' schools. The idea is to enable ladies who are fit to teach but are averse to serving in public schools to teach children of members of the orthodox communities who are unwilling to send their girls to public schools. Each teacher gets a stipend of Rs. 10 a month.

(b) What is the number of the pupils in each school?

(c) (i) What is considered a full staff of teachers for purely scholastic studies, for each school, and (ii) what is the average number of scholars allotted to each teacher?

Questions and Answers

(d) How does the proportion of teachers to scholars compare with what is usual in similar Government schools in England?

(e) (i) Is there a full staff of teachers in each school at present?

(ii) If not, what are the respective numbers and are they adequate to perform the duties expected of them?

(f) What is the sanctioned scale of pay of the masters and mistresses employed and how does it compare with the salaries paid in other similar schools in the country?

(g) Are the Government aware that having regard to the present conditions of life in India the salaries now paid are not considered adequate?

(h) Is it a fact that some of the teachers are, at present, after more than 20 years' service, drawing a salary of Rs. 250 per mensem only, and that they will be entitled to a pension of Rs. 125 per mensem only, after serving the full term required to entitle them to a pension.

(i) Is it a fact that there is considerable difficulty in obtaining the services of competent teachers for the staffs of these schools?

(j) Are the Government considering the desirability of taking steps to insure that these schools shall be maintained in condition of efficiency in so far as that depends upon competent and properly paid masters and mistresses?

Answer by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley:—

"(a) Yes.

(b) The Victoria School has 190 boys on the rolls, including 17 small boys, who are taught at the Dow Hill School. The Dow Hill School has 107 girls.

(c) (i) Victoria School—11 teachers, excluding the headmaster and drill instructor.

Dow Hill School—12 teachers, excluding the headmistress, three music mistresses and a drill mistress.

(ii) The Victoria School has at present 9 teachers, excluding the headmaster and the gymnastic instructor, and there are therefore 19 scholars per teacher, but the ratio is not really so high, as the headmaster does a good deal of teaching work. The Dow Hill School has at present 10 teachers, excluding the headmistress, the three music mistresses and the drill mistress, and there are approximately 12 scholars per teacher.

(d) There are no such Government schools in England.

(e) (i) and (ii) No. The Hon'ble Member is referred to the answer to (c) (i) and (ii) above. The staff in both schools is at present not up to full strength.

(f) Two statements are laid on the table. At the Victoria School the pay of the teachers is lower than in schools like St. Paul's, Darjeeling, but the average pay of the teachers of the Dow Hill School is about the same as the average in similar girls' schools in the Presidency. No information is available regarding schools outside Bengal.

(g), (h), (i) and (j) The answer is in the affirmative."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

LIST OF BUSINESS, ITEMS Nos. 2 and 3.

THE BENGAL VILLAGE SELF-GOVERNMENT BILL, 1919.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler moved that the further report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919, be taken into consideration.

He said :

"There is a long list of amendments before the Council, but I hope that it will be found that it is somewhat shorter than it looks, as various amendments are more or less identical and others are merely consequential. However, in view of the fact that there is a lengthy agenda paper before us, I do not propose to make any further remarks on the Bill at this stage."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler also moved that the clauses of the Bill be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 1 (APPENDIX TO THE LIST OF BUSINESS).

In the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved the following amendment :—

that in sub-clause (1) of clause 1 for the word "village" the word "rural" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Member has not given any arguments in support of the change suggested, which, in effect, is one of drafting, and as a general principle, I think that matters of drafting are best left to the Legislative Department and the Select Committee. The facts are that in the Bill originally introduced the title and preamble were as follows :—

'A Bill to extend Village Self-Government in Bengal.—WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the system of Village Self-Government in Bengal, etc.'

When we were considering the point in Select Committee we thought that in place of the general phrase 'to extend the system of Village Self-Government in Bengal', it was more correct to say that it was intended to develop the system of Self-Government in the rural areas of Bengal ; and we accordingly changed the title and preamble to that effect, viz.,—

'A Bill to develop Self-Government in the rural areas of Bengal.—WHEREAS it is expedient to develop the system of Self-Government in the rural areas of Bengal, etc.'

We did not alter clause 1(1) which runs : 'This Act may be called the Village Self-Government Act, 1919 ; as we thought that this was clear and concise, identifying the object of the Bill with the unit of the village. We, therefore, left it as it was.

As I understand the amendment, the idea underlying it is that we should adjust clause 1 (1) in the terms of the amended preamble. It is not necessary that we should do so, and the Select Committee after again examining the point when the Bill was re-committed to it, decided to adhere to the present wording."

Another objection to altering the drafting is that it involves various consequential amendments in such places as the schedule, where the Bill is referred to by its title, and these amendments have not been worked out by the Hon'ble Member. I would, therefore, oppose the amendment, as purely one of drafting, the acceptance of which might lead to complications in other parts of the Bill."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, in the absence of my friend, the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul Haq, I moved it at his request. I do not see much difference in the wording and do not press this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 2.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for sub-clause (3) of clause 1 the following be substituted, namely :—

"(3) It shall come into force in the whole of Bengal and on such dates as the Local Government may, by notification, fix within a period not exceeding three years from the date on which this Act is passed, and the Local Government may, by notification, withdraw this Act from any district or part of a district provided that the reasons for such withdrawal shall be stated in the notification."

He said :

"My Lord, as the clause stands now, it will come into force in such districts or such parts of districts and on such dates as the Local Government may, by notification, direct. The two things that I want to draw your Excellency's attention to are that it is proposed that it shall come into force in such districts to which it may be made applicable, and that such dates as may be fixed by notification. In place of this, I want to submit that it should come into force in the whole of Bengal, and in the second place it should be introduced within such period as may be fixed by the Local Government, that period not exceeding three years from the date of the commencement of the Act.

In connection with this amendment, I crave your Excellency's indulgence just to say a word or two about the general applicability. My Lord, we have been taken to task for sending in notice of many amendments. As I entered the Council Chamber this morning, the Hon'ble Mr. Phelps drew my attention to the impropriety of such a large number of amendments and suggested in fact that it would be playing the part of an obstructionist to press for so many amendments. I have, of course, accepted the suggestion in the spirit in which it was offered. My only answer to this charge is to be found in the amendments themselves. This amendment goes to show that we do not want to be obstructionists ; in fact, we rather welcome this Bill. All my complaint is that it should not be delayed, but brought into operation at once ; and on the other hand it should not be withheld from any particular district or districts, but should be made applicable to the whole of the province. That goes conclusively to show what is my real attitude with regard to this important measure. In fact, my Lord, I can claim this that of all the 50 Hon'ble Members of this Council, I am the one who wants that the whole of this important measure should be introduced at once, and in all districts, so that it goes to show that although we want amendments and changes here and there, in some cases in matters of principle and in the others in regard to details, on the whole we welcome this measure and we are anxious that it should be given effect to at once.

The object of this amendment is that we know from our past experience that however statesmanlike and wise a measure may be, its operation is sometimes delayed owing to the report of some local officers, as there may be some officers who may not like the measure. I, therefore, suggest that this measure should be introduced all at once, as such reports may be submitted by local officers as may lead to delay. For that reason I have suggested the period of three years. Three years being a sufficiently long period, the local government should be able to know when the people want this measure and when the Government want it. This period is sufficiently long in which the Government ought to be able to introduce it in the whole of this province.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

Then, my Lord, with regard to the last portion of this amendment, what I want to submit is that the local Government may, by notification, withdraw the Act from any district or part of a district. I want to add to it a proviso, namely, 'provided the reasons for such withdrawal shall be stated in the notification'. This is, I submit, not an unreasonable proposal. If a district is given the privilege of the extension of the Act and if later on it is to be deprived of it, it is only proper that the reasons should be stated for such withdrawal. That it is all I have got to say."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I do not propose to follow the Hon'ble Member in his general explanations of his attitude towards this Bill. Whatever may be the number of the amendments, I do not know that, personally, I have commented on them in particular, and their value can best be judged by the Council when we conclude our labours.

This particular amendment raises two points which are distinct from each other. The Bill, as framed, contemplates elasticity in its extension to various parts of the province. It only comes into operation in various areas on notified dates, and such areas may be either districts or parts of districts. The Hon'ble Member says : 'No, the Bill must rigidly come into operation throughout the whole province in three years'. I think, Sir, that the reasons in favour of elasticity are overwhelming, and they are both theoretical and practical.

In the first place, the conditions of this province are not homogeneous. It is often overlooked that the conditions of India are not homogeneous, and it is equally true that the conditions of any particular province within India are not homogeneous. Merely to give a few instances, we have tracts like Darjeeling, portions of the Chittagong Hill Tracts and the Duars, which are mainly inhabited by aboriginees; also there are parts of Midnapur and Bankura which are inhabited by Sonthals and the like. These tracts are absolutely different from more advanced portions, such as the Munshiganj subdivision of the Dacca district, for example, or the subdivisions of Mymensingh. It is not wise in that view to say that the whole province in respect of village self-government must be treated on the same lines. It is merely to court failure, not to recognize that an advance may be possible in some areas, but impossible in the less advanced ones ; and it is in recognition of that fundamental fact that the Bill has provided for elasticity. The extension or the development of self-government will first be tried in the advanced areas where it has most chance of success, and in the light of the experience so gained we shall go on extending it to others. It is impossible to believe that within the short space of three years the differences between the different parts of the province will have disappeared.

That is the theoretical argument, and there is also a practical argument. To introduce this system without careful supervision and encouragement from the outset will also be to invite failure. To exercise supervision we must have a staff; and it will be difficult to recruit that staff within so short a space as three years, much less to train them. The opinion of the District Administration Committee, on whose report this measure is largely based, was that three or four districts might be taken up every year, but I would deprecate any rigid programme. What we want is elasticity, so that we can be guided by what seems best in the light of the actual work done. So, both on theoretical and practical grounds, I would press for the less rigid provision in the Bill. The clause hurts nobody, and it is the wish of the Local Government to extend the system as much as possible ; the only point on which it lays stress is that in so doing it should not be bound absolutely by impossible dates.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The second point raised in the amendment is that in any notification we should give the reasons for our action. My objection to that is that a notification is a statutory declaration, which states a certain fact in concise and clear language in order that the existence of that fact may be easily available on record on whatever occasions reference has to be made to it, whether in the Courts or elsewhere. A notification is not meant to be argumentative ; it is merely meant to declare that such and such a thing took place. I would, therefore, deprecate the cumbering of it by arguments. It is not necessary that it should give reasons. The Act could not be withdrawn from any district without full opportunity of the question being raised, say, in this Council either by question or resolution, or by the other various means that are at the disposal of Hon'ble Members. There is, therefore, no hiding of the reasons simply because they are excluded from the notification. On these grounds, Sir, I would deprecate the acceptance of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, the two points that have been raised by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler in reply are that in the first place the system should be first tried in some of the advanced districts ; and that in the second place, necessary arrangements have got to be made. Now, with regard to the first objection, I would submit that the system has already been tried for some years past. It was introduced first, if I remember rightly, in 1904—I speak subject to correction—at all events about the time when it was first introduced. It has been tried in several districts and the result of that experiment is the report of the District Administration Committee recommending the legislation which is now before us. Therefore, it is not a matter of first impression ; the system has already been a trial and it has been found to be successful.

As regards the arrangements to be made, I admit that arrangements have, of course, to be made, but at the same time the period of three years is tolerably long, and if it is supposed that that period is not sufficiently long for making preliminary arrangements, I think that is a question of detail and that the period may be extended to five years. In any case, all my anxiety is that the whole of this province may be given the benefit of this legislation within a reasonable period of time.

My Lord, I do not like to add anything to the remarks which I have already made with regard to the second point about the inclusion of the reasons in the notification."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, with reference to the last remarks of the Hon'ble Member may I ask him three questions? Will he name a single area in this province in which the system of the combined functions of the chaukidari panchayet and the local self-government union are in force? Will he name a single area in this province in which the enlarged powers of the union board proposed in this Bill are in force? Will he name a single area in which the system of village courts or benches is in force."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I admit, of course, that there are two bodies now, namely, the Panchayet Unions under the Chaukidari Act of 1870 and the Union Committees under the Local Self-Government Act (Bengal Act III of 1885)

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Sir Henry Wheeler.

Certainly, these are two separate bodies working separately and not in combination as it is now proposed to make under this Bill; but all the same, there are the Panchayeti Unions working side by side with the Union Committees, which have worked under the President system. They have been tried, for instance. in Tippera, in Burdwan, and also I believe in Bakarganj. I admit, however, that they have not been tried exaclty in the manner in which it is now proposed, namely, combining the two functions in one body; in substance it is the same, as by the change that is proposed to be introduced under this Bill, we are going to have one body, instead of two bodies, doing the duties of the Chaukidari Unions as well as of the Union Committees."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 3.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that the words "and the Local Government may, by notification, withdraw this Act from any district or part of a district" in lines 3 to 5 of sub-clause (3) of clause 1 be omitted.

He said:

"My Lord, my point is this. This seems to be a new provision in this Bill; in the Local Self-Governmnent Act and the Municipal Act there is no parallel to this provision. Of course, Government will be cautious enough to introduce this measure wherever they consider these privileges should be granted. My point is this: that once this is done, the privilege should not be withdrawn. If the new bodies are found wanting in any respect, then the remedial measure of suspension may be introduced, but as these privileges are being introduced for the first time, there may be failures here and there, in that case I submit that all the privileges may not be withdrawn. That is my contention. I suggest in those cases remedial measures should be taken. Three bodies are mentioned here; the village panchayet, the Union Committee, and the chaukidari punchayet. As regards the last two they are working tolerably well, and as regards the first, option is given to the local people if it is not working well, not to go to them, but to go to the district tribunal. My suggestion is that suspension or some such measure may be resorted to in case of failure, and the people may be given an opportunity of gaining experience in local self-government with the help of the district officers and the district board, and I pray that they may not be deprived of the privileges once granted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, the justification for this provision is somewhat similar to that which I have just been arguing in connection with another amendment, viz., that we should have elasticity in introducing these changes—the power to go forward when we find it desirable to go forward, and the power to go back when we find it necessary to go back. The Hon'ble Member speaks of the inexpediency of withdrawing a concession when once it has been given, but it is really in the interests of village self-government that we should have this power, because, if we feel that the position is easily retrievable, and if we know that if an experiment is not succeeding we can abandon it, then we need have less hesitation in giving the new system a trial. Therefore the clause, as it stands, really helps the object which the Hon'ble Member has in view, which is, apparently, that the Bill should be extended as rapidly as possible throughout the province and should be a success in working. There is much about the Bill which is experimental. I maintain that the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta was entirely in error in representing that it is merely a continuance under another name of what has been working in this province for some time. It is true that we have chaukidari punchayets ; it is true we have local self-government unions ; but the bodies which this Bill will create will be bodies with largely increased powers and responsibilities and rights of taxation. They will be bodies which will work under a different degree of supervision to those which now exist, and they will be bodies which will exercise judicial powers for which at present there is no counterpart whatever. Therefore, the Bill is in the nature of an experiment, and I submit that we are justified in being guided in this experiment by the light of the experience which we gain. The only valid argument for the amendment is one which the Hon'ble Member has not mentioned, and that is, that the words in the clause are unnecessary. They are unnecessary since section 22 of the General Clauses Act provides that—

'Where, by any Bengal Act, a power to make orders, rules, by-laws or notifications is conferred, then that power includes a power, exerciseable in the like manner and subject to the like sanction and conditions (if any), to add, to amend, vary or rescind any orders, rules, by-laws or notifications so made.'

So the power which the Bill mentions is a power which already exists in the Bengal statutes. It may be said why then include it in the Bill? We did so for the sake of completeness ; the Bill will be read by men who are not acquainted with the General Clauses Act or with the Bengal statutes, and there are one or two other small points which we have mentioned in this Bill, although they are also covered by Acts elsewhere. Therefore, Sir, I think the wording of the clause should be retained."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, in reply I have to say that I do not want that the provision should be introduced at once into the whole of Bengal, within a certain time. Wherever necessary and where circumstances admit it may be introduced, but my suggestion is that once introduced it may not be taken away at a moment's notice. Of course, there is the power under the General Clauses Act. My point is that wherever anything is found wanting, some remedial measures may be taken."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 4.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri :—

If motion No. 3 be not carried, also to move that after the words "or part of a district" in line 5 of sub-clause (3) of clause 1 the following be inserted, namely :—

"and shall in the notification state in detail the reasons for such withdrawal."

He said :

"My Lord, I want to know whether this has been already disposed of. In that case, I will withdraw it."

The President said :—

"Yes, it is not in order now."

The amendment was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar ; Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

AMENDMENT No. 5.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that the definition of "circle officer" in sub-clause (2) of clause 2 (now clause 4) be omitted.

He said :

"This is not a very important amendment. In fact, it is not one of those amendments which in the words of my friend, the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, would break the heart of anybody on this side of the House, nor the backbone of anybody on the other side, if it is or is not carried. It is simply intended to remove an incongruity. There were certain clauses in the original Bill relating to circle officers and circle boards. Those provisions have been altogether eliminated from the present Bill so that the words 'circle boards' or 'circle officers' find no place here. We do not define a word which does not find a place in the body of the Bill itself, so I consider this definition to be inappropriate in the present shape of the Bill. It might be argued that Government may appoint certain officers to be called circle officers. In that case this definition may well come in under the rules, but I do think that the definition of a word which does not find a place in the Bill, itself is unnecessary."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I imagined that the Hon'ble Member was going to base his amendment upon the ground that he saw no necessity for having circle officers at all ; if he had done so, I would have had a good deal to say, from which I can now fortunately spare the Council. But as he has not used that argument, I oppose the amendment on the ground that it is not necessary. I think he is under a misapprehension. If he will look at clause 56 (now clause 51) he will find that a statutory duty is laid on circle officers to see that the proceedings of union committees are in conformity with the law and with the rules in force thereunder, while in schedule III, items 4 and 5, the circle officer is mentioned as a person to whom certain functions may be delegated, namely, the appointment, dismissal and fining of dafadars and chaukidars. In the light of these facts, there is perhaps some misapprehension on the Hon'ble Mover's part, and I cannot therefore accept he amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry my attention was not drawn to clause 56 (now clause 51) as now modified and I beg to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 6.

The following motion which was covered by the decision on the previous motion was then held to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the definition of "circle officer" in sub-clause (2) of clause 2 (now clause 4) be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 7.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, withdrew the following motion with the permission of the President, viz.—

that after the words "district board" in line 3 of clause 3 (now clause 5) the words "and of the inhabitants" be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Mr. O'Malley; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 8.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that after the words "district board" in line 3 of clause 3 (now clause 5), the words "and the local boards" be inserted.

He said:

"My Lord, my reasons for this amendment are that whenever the Government are to consider the question of the formation of unions, the Select Committee have thought it desirable to have the opinions and views of the district board, and I submit that in the case of village unions, the local board's opinion should also be consulted, because there are people there from different parts of the subdivision and different parts within the jurisdiction of the local boards, and therefore they are the proper persons to advise the authorities as to the formation of village unions. As regards district boards, while they are quite competent to advise the creation of unions, the members of the board have not that intimate knowledge of rural areas as is possessed by the members of the local boards. I think their opinion should also be considered before passing orders for the formation of union boards."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said:—

"My Lord, Government recognize that it is a reasonable proposition that local boards as well as district boards should have the opportunity of expressing their views about the formation of unions, because they have an intimate knowledge of the areas under their jurisdiction, and also because they will be the controlling authorities over union boards. It is natural, therefore, that they should claim the right to have a right to be consulted when the formation of unions is proposed, and on this account I accept the amendment on behalf of Government."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 9.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, withdrew the following amendment with the permission of the President, viz.:—

that the words "and for the reasons stated in such notification" be added at the end of clause 3 (now clause 5).

AMENDMENT No. 10.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) be omitted.

He said:

"My Lord, in sub-clause (2), clause 4 (now clause 6), it is provided that the members shall be elected within such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by rules under clause 111 (now clause 101), so I do not see why there should be any provision for one-third of the members to be nominated by Government when there is a clear provision that all the members shall be elected. Practically it nullifies the provision made in sub-clause (2), therefore, I move that sub-clause (3) may be omitted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"Sir, this provision of the Bill is justified by the variations in the existing conditions in different parts of the province to which I have already made reference. Under clause 4(2) members of union boards will ordinarily be elected; but the system of full election to bodies of this kind is by no means at present in force throughout the province. Members of the chaukidari panchayet are appointed by the district magistrate, while the number of union commitees is comparatively few, and certainly, up to recently, some members of them were almost invariably appointed and not elected. Therefore, Sir, we have no precedent for imagining that successful elections can be conducted everywhere, and we know with fair certainty that whereas there may be places in which we can get a suitable board by election, there may be places in which it will be best to appoint a small proportion of the board. There is nothing particularly reactionary in a provision of this kind. It will be observed that we merely take power to appoint up to a third, whereas under section 41 of the Local Self-Government Act the Executive Government can, if necessary, appoint the whole body, so we are being more liberal than that existing provision of the Act. We are also being more liberal than the recommendation of the District Administration Committee which was to this effect :

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Maulvi Abul Kasem; Mr. O'Malley.

'The members of the union panchayets should be partly elected and partly nominated, in the proportion of two-thirds elected and one-third nominated. This departure from the provisions of sections 39 to 41 of the Local Self-Government Act and the rules for the election of members of union committees framed under section 138 (a), is, in our opinion, necessary, as in addition to their municipal functions the panchayets will perform certain judicial and executive duties, with which the District Boards will have no concern.'

Their proposal, therefore, was that in all cases there should be a third of nominated members. The Bill merely takes power to add such a third wherever it may be deemed necessary, and in the light of these facts, I submit that it cannot be regarded as either conservative or retrograde."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, the only thing that I should like to draw your Excellency's attention to is that in sub-clause (2) it is provided that the members shall be elected, it is not stated that it is ordinarily to be done in that way. If there is any failure, that failure may be covered by rules made under clause 111, (now clause 101) but the provision of one sub-clause practically nullifies that of another, which is not very desirable, so I think there will be no serious difficulty in omitting sub-clause (3)."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 11.

The following motion which was identical with the previous amendment was then held to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 12.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that in line 6 of sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) for the word "magistrate" the word "board" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, no reasons have been given in support of the amendment. However, I would explain that there are two main reasons why it is proposed that the appointments should be made by the district magistrate. The first is that the district magistrate will be able to remedy inequalities produced by election, and to protect the interest of minorities. The second reason is that a district board is not a suitable agency for appointment. It meets only once a month and there is therefore risk of delay in appointment. Delays are dangerous; they may give opportunities for unhealthy rivalry and canvasing for appointments. If this amendment were accepted, the union board could not be constituted until the district had held one of its monthly meetings. The district magistrate, however, can ascertain quickly and promptly, who will be acceptable to the villagers, and who will be worthy representatives of minorities. Therefore, Government cannot accept the amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

" My Lord, in view of the statement made by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley, I beg to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 13.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq :—

If motion No. 12 be not carried, also to move that after the words " district magistrate " in line 6 of sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the words " on the recommendation of the district board " be added

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, said :—

" My Lord, this amendment follows the same line as the previous one which has just been disposed of, therefore I do not wish to move it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 14.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that at the end of sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the following be added, namely :—

from among persons, other than police-officers, who may be for the time being resident within the limits of the union.

He said :

" My Lord, this amendment refers to sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6). One of the chief recommendations of the present measure is the distinct tendency which it exhibits towards developing the principle of election, and thereby laying a solid foundation for the growth and development of local self-government in its truest sense. Now, the Bill contemplates certain chances in which it may be necessary for the magistrate acting on behalf of Government to nominate not more than one-third of the total number of members. I beg to propose that at the end of this clause should be added the following words : ' from among persons other than police officers who may be for the time being residents within the limits of the union'. That is, I consider, Sir, to be very important. If police officers are to be appointed, then the very essence of the Bill will be minimized. On the other hand, if police officers are to be appointed the union boards will become unpopular bodies, and if unpopular they will also become unsuccessful. It goes without saying that if a police officer becomes a member of a union board, in that case whether he be or be not the chairman or vice-chairman, he will carry considerable influence, and the other members will always stand in some fear of either disobliging him or going against him, and as the Government intend really to make it an effective measure of local self-Government, I think the police officers ought to be excluded and the magistrate's discretion of not appointing not more than one-third should be confined to persons other than police officers, and that those persons should be for the time being residents within the union. With this in view I submit that this additional phrase ought to be added at the end of sub-clause (3)."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Kerr; Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, I am afraid it is not possible to accept this amendment. It seems to assume in the first place that no police officers would be fit to have the honour of being members of these union boards, and in the second place, that the district magistrate is going to pick out unfit police officers and put them on to the boards. I do not say that it will often happen that a police officer will be appointed a member of a union board. Police officers as a rule are too much occupied with their ordinary work, they often have to spend a large portion of their time in investigating cases and touring about in their jurisdiction, and people of that kind would not be suitable as members of the board. But there are some stationary police officers, like court sub-inspectors or head constables in charge of the thana records, who are often very worthy men, and if you come across men like that who take a real interest in village improvements, it might be desirable to put them on the board. I think it would be a great mistake to have a statutory provision preventing us from utilizing the services of such men. It is, however, not mainly on practical grounds that I oppose this amendment. I oppose it because it casts a stigma on the police officers of the province. I do not know whether the Council are aware that we are now recruiting as sub-inspectors men of good family and good education. Only the other day a man came to the Inspector-General of Police, an M.A., and asked to be enrolled as a head constable, His idea was to work his way up from the rank to the top of the force. That is the spirit that we want to encouarge if the country is to have the sort of police force it ought to have. I put it to the Council, are you going to encourage a proper spirit in the police force, if you put into a Bill of this kind a declaration that members of the police force are unfit to undertake the most elementary duties of citizenship? Government are not prepared to accept this, or to cast a stigma of this kind on the police force, and I would ask the Council as a responsible body to decline likewise to pass such a stigma on a body of public servants who, I may remind the Council, are mainly Indians."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, from the point of view of some of us on this side of the House I would like to associate myself with what has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr. I do not think we shall be encouraging men of the police force if we are going to have a statutory bar and disqualification like this. I do not know what a force, manned mostly by our own countrymen, have done to deserve this stur as a body. My hon'ble friend must be acqainted with a great many police officers who are worthy, honest and reliable and the tendency towards improvement is steady. I quite agree that there may be police officers quite unfit to be as members of the board, but I do not think that the district magistrate would go out of his way to appoint undesireable police officers. It would be a great wrong to a deserving body of men if we exclude them by a statutory provision, thus casting an undeserved reflection on the force."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, on behalf of Government it is first contended that it is not likely that the magistrate will appoint undesirable police officers. Well, I quite accept that, but I don't see any reason why some limit should not be placed upon him in the appointment of police officers. Then it is said that very efficient and very intelligent police officers are now being appointed. Well, as I have already said, by introducing police officers in these union boards we run the risk of wrecking this very important measure, and I have nothing more to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 15.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that after sub-clause (3) of clause (4 now clause 6), the following be inserted, namely :—

"Provided that the member or members so appointed shall be entitled to be elected as members of the union board under section 5 (now section 7)."

He said :

"What I mean by this amendment is, my Lord, that the choice of the district magistrate or the authorities appointing the members of the union boards should be limited to those who are qualified to be elected as members of the board."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, in the sense that the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem has explained the amendment, I have no objection to accepting it. His object is that we should not appoint a person to the union board who has not the qualification which is required of an elected member, and that is a reasonable suggestion. The amendment, however, is not very happily worded when it talks of the 'members so appointed shall be entitled to be elected'. I think we can put it in a better form, which, I gather, the Hon'ble Member will accept.

I would suggest that it be moved in the following way :—

'Provided that no member shall be so appointed unless he is entitled to be elected as a member of the union board under section 5 (now section 7)'."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I accept the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler and I hope that it will be accepted by the Council."

The motion was put in the following form and agreed to :—

After sub-clause (3) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the following be inserted, namely :—

'Provided that no member shall be so appointed unless he is entitled to be elected as a member of the union board under section 5 (now section 7)'."

AMENDMENT No 16.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the word "may" in line 3 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6), the word "shall" be substituted.

He said :

"My Lord, I hope this amendment will be accepted and so without putting forward any arguments I submit it for the consideration of the Council."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I have no objection to accepting this amendment. The clause, as worded, says that vacancies may be filled by another election or by appointment by the district magistrate : the word 'may' is used as there are two possible ways of filling vacancies ; but in a sense 'may' does mean 'shall', as the vacancies could not be left unfilled. Therefore, Sir, as 'may' practically means 'shall', I am quite willing to accept the amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 17.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "the vacancies may be filled by another election or by appointment by the district magistrate" in lines 3, 4 and 5 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the following be substituted, namely :—

> "the vacancies may be filled up by another election : but, if on the date fixed for such election, the electors of any union also fail to elect the full number of members prescribed, the vacancies may be filled by appointment by the district board"

He said :

"My Lord, my reason is that as the sub-clause stands the vacancies may be filled by another election or by appointment by the district magistrate. One of two things may happen—either there may be simultaneously an election and also an appointment by the district magistrate, or the opposite thing may happen, namely, that the members may think that the appointment will be made by the district magistrate and they need not make an election, while, on the other hand, the district magistrate may not take any steps thinking that the vacancy will be filled by election. This, I submit, will not be satisfactory in practice, and, therefore, I propose that the vacancies may be filled up by another election ; but if, on the date fixed for such election, the electors of any union also fail to elect the full number of members prescribed, then the vacancies may be filled by appointment by the district board. That is my first point. My second point is that in the case of an appointment the appointment should be made by the district board and not by the district magistrate."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, as the Hon'ble Mover has stated, there are two points involved in this amendment, and I will take them separately.

Let me first explain briefly how the clause came to take its present shape. As I have said before, this electoral system in these small village bodies, will, to a certain extent, be experimental, and we know by experience that even in larger bodies, such as municipalities, elections do fail, possibly because the people concerned are not sufficiently interested to come to the poll or it may be, by reason of technical difficulties. In these village elections there will be a greater likelihood of that kind of failure occurring. Therefore, in the Bill as originally introduced, it was provided that if within a period fixed in this behalf the electors of any village committee failed to elect the full number of members prescribed for the committee, the district magistrate should appoint the remainder ; that is to say, if the village committee did not take advantage of the right of election, they lost it once for all. When we were considering the matter in Select Committee, it was represented to us that this might be a little hard, as there might be valid reasons why the election had failed, for which it would be reasonable to give the villagers a kind of locus pœnitentiæ and another opportunity of electing their representatives. We considered the suggestion to be reasonable, and we therefore drafted the clause in its present elastic form, which says, that if one election fails then there may be another election or resort may be had to appointment. We left it elastic, because it is impossible to define under what circumstances precisely elections would fail; such a result might be due to a temporary cause or a permanent cause. The district magistrate would have to judge whether it was caused by an accident which was likely to be rectified by another election, or whether there were permanent influences at work which rendered appointment desirable. We have also in clause 111 (now clause 101) taken power to prescribe rules which would govern the exercise of this discretion. There is not the slightest wish of the Local Government to take away the right of election whenever it can be advantageously exercised. If the right of election is given at all, we would much prefer to see the union boards chosen in that way; but contingencies may arise which may render election impossible, and we have accordingly provided for them in a more elastic form than that originally inserted in the Bill.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

As regards the second proposal of the Hon'ble Mover, that appointment should be by the district board in place of the district magistrate, the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley has argued that point in connection with another amendment, and the same arguments are applicable here, rendering it undesirable to make such a change."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there is not much dispute about the principle underlying this provision. The question is not whether electors will be deprived of the right of election or they might not have any control. Quite apart from that my difficulty is this: The provision being alternative, the members might think that the appointment would be filled up by the district magistrate and the district magistrate in the same way might think that the appointment would be filled up by election; so that the result may be no action on the part of both the bodies. On the other hand, both might take necessary steps for filling up the vacancy simultaneously. Supposing the members elect and also the district magistrate appoints a man for the vacancy, what would be the result in that case? To avoid that, my Lord, I submit that vacancies may be filled up by another election. That will also make it very clear as appears from the line of argument advanced by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, because an election may fail on account of technical grounds. That is a case in which it is only fair that they should be given another election. So, both on the ground of expediency as well as on the ground of principle, I think that the amendment I have suggested is a better one than the provision as it stands."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 18.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that after the words "election or" in line 4 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the words "in the event of the failure of such second election" be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

He said :

"My Lord, my amendment follows the same lines as the previous amendment, with this difference, that in the event of the failure of such second election, the appointment will be made by the district magistrate, and in the previous amendment which was moved by my hon'ble friend, Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, the appointment was to be made by the district board. That is the difference. My Lord, I have heard the reply of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler to the first part of the amendment. That is, to ensure a second election, which is common to both the amendments. He says there may be temporary or permanent cause, and if it is temporary the district magistrate will grant a second election, and if it is permanent the district magistrate will make the appointment, and it is not the intention of Government to avoid a second election which he says will be regulated by the rules to be framed under clause 111 (now clause 101). The intention being clear, I think the Hon'ble Member would kindly consider whether the discretion would be left to the unaided judgment of the district magistrate. Well, there may be temporary or permanent causes, and the district magistrate may make a mistake, but nothing will be lost if a provision for a second election is made. Government will not lose anything by this. It will also emphasize very clearly the intention of Government. Further, if any mistake is made by the district magistrate, and if the district magistrate does not grant an election, then the chance of the second election will be gone, and perhaps it may lead to unpleasant feelings between the district magistrate and the people of the area concerned. Therefore, I hope my Lord, that my amendment will receive favourable consideration at the hands of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, it is true that the present amendment does not contain the second point to which I took exception in connection with the amendment which has just been moved, but the first point still remains, and the arguments which I have urged against it remain valid in objection to it. Briefly, it is preferable to retain the elasticity of the clause as it stands to the rigid prescription that there must be two elections. It may be reasonable to hold a second election or it may be entirely unnecessary; it is therefore best to leave a discretion to the district magistrate, and far from the exercise of that descretion being unfettered, it will be regulated by rules for the making of which we take power in clause 111(now clause 101)."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, if it is the intention, as I have said, of Government to frame rules under clause 111(now clause 101), is it not much more satisfactory to have that intention made clear in the specific clause of the Bill? The Hon'ble Member says that we do not want to make a rigid prescription that a second election will be allowed. I do not understand how a rigid rule can be framed under clause 111 (now clause 101), which will allow a second election in all cases where the first election fails. My Lord, I think, having regard to the pros and cons of the case, Government will do well to accept this amendment, because, after all, neither will Government lose anything nor will the administration suffer in any way, but on the contrary, the people will be highly gratified if this clause is accepted As this will be practically left in the hands of the district magistrate. I fail to understand what is the objection to this clause being inserted here. I would, therefore, ask the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill if he can yet see his way to accept this amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The following motions were then held to be withdrawn : —

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that after the words "election or" in line 4 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the words "in the event of failure of such second election" be inserted.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that after the word "or" in line 4 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the words "and if the electors fail again to elect the full number on the date fixed for the second election" be inserted.

AMENDMENT No. 21.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved—that for the words "district magistrate" in lines 4 and 5 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the following words be substituted, namely :—

> "divisional commissioner out of a panel of double the requisite number to be nominated by the chairman of the district board in consultation with their vice-chairman, within a time to be fixed by the district magistrate".

He said :—

"My Lord, in this case my proposal is that instead of the power of nomination being given to the district magistrate it might be exercised by the divisional commissioner on the nomination being submitted by the chairman of the district board. As far as I remember, under the provisions of the Local Self-Government Act the power of nominating the members of the union committee lies with the divisional commissioner and so I have taken the parallel case of the Local Self-Government Act. I hope my amendment will be accepted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I put it to the Council that we are in some danger of making a mountain out of a mole-hill. What is provided in this clause ? After all this clause merely says that if the right of election is given and the election fails, there may either be a second election or an appointment may be made by the district magistrate. Therefore, it is a contingency which should seldom arise, and it will always be within the power of the electors to prevent it arising by exercising their vote and electing their representatives in that way. Therefore, it is a minor point, and I submit that when the Council has just decided that it is preferable to leave ordinary appointments to the district magistrate in place of the district board, it would be rather illogical that in the case of a subsidiary contingency appointments should have to be made by this amazingly cumbrous procedure of appointment by the divisional commisioner out of a panel of double the requisite number, to be nominated by the chairman of the district board in consultation with their vice-chairman, within a time to be fixed by the district magistrate. Surely that is entirely inconsistent with what the Council has decided in connection with other amendments, and it is entirely inconsistent with the object of this clause itself. I therefore oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"I have already submitted what I had to say and I am not very particular about it."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

AMENDMENT No. 22.

The following amendment was held to be covered by the decision arrived at on amendment No. 17 and was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, to move that for the word " magistrate " in line 5 of sub-clause (4) of clause 4 (now clause 6) the word " board " be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 23.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Mauliv A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that sub-clause 1 (i), 1 (ii) and 1 (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) be omitted.

He said :—

" My Lord, this is an amendment of which notice was given by my hon'ble friend, Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, and I am extremely sorry that he could not attend the Council to-day. He is very keen on this. The object of this amendment is to give every man, resident within the union, a vote, universal suffrage as it is called. We want that at least in the election for a membership of a union board, every man ought to have a vote, whether he pays any tax or not, and the Bill provides that any one paying Re. 1 as chaukidari tax or cess, should be entitled to vote, but under the Local Self-Government Act, the qualification for a voter on a local board election is the same, and I, therefore, submit that in forming union boards, which are purely rural boards, at least every man ought to have a vote. I do not think there will be any objection on the part of the Hon'ble Member or of the House to accept this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

" My Lord, my objection to this amendment is, briefly, that in the blessed name of democracy it is going too far. It is, in effect, proposing universal suffrage, as the Hon'ble Member says, since it seeks to eliminate the three clauses in which we define what the franchise for these union boards should be. What is the existing position? We are concerned with two bodies—the village chaukidari panchayet and the local self-government union. At present the village panchayet is practically invariably nominated and not elected at all ; therefore we have no experience of how elected members will exercise functions concerning chaukidars. In the case of the local self-government unions, there is a tax-paying franchise which, is not so broad or simple as that which we have in the Bill, which, therefore, is already taking a step in advance, both in respect of the chaukidari panchayets and the self-government unions. I put it to the Council that that progress is sufficiently rapid, and that we should not do wisely now to take a dive into the unexplored sea of one man one vote."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

" My Lord, the Hon'ble Member very confidently urged the motion which he brought on behalf of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, but I am afraid he overlooked his friends on his right, and he perhaps might have considered whether the amendment which has been moved, would be acceptable to this side of the House. To my mind, it appears that it is democracy run riot. I do not know whether my hon'ble friend is in earnest in proposing that every man in the street should have a vote for returning members to the union board, irrespective of any qualifications, and irrespective of any responsibility. We have not yet come to that state of things and, I think it is dangerous to accept this motion even if the Government were prepared to accept it which they would not, as they have not yet been so democratized. I think it my duty to express my views on this matter."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

" My Lord, I am sorry that the amendment which I moved has neither been accepted by the Hon'ble Member in charge nor by my hon'ble friend

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abdul Kasem.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur. On the other hand, there has been some opposition from the right side of the House, but I do not think by moving this amendment anybody might think that I intended to make democracy run riot. What was intended is that in the village union there should be universal suffrage. I did not ask for that suffrage for district boards and municipalities. The day is not very distant when it is proposed to give a broad franchise to a large number of people, electing members to the legislative councils, and I do not see what objection there can be in the case of union boards now. The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur has said that it is intended to give every man in the street a vote, but those who live in villages and have a stake in villages, quite well understand what is in their own interest and I do not think it will be doing any ha m to anybody by giving every man a vote there. I am sorry I have to press this amendment to the vote."

AMENDMENTS Nos. 24, 25 AND 26.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that for the words "one rupee" wherever they occur in clause 5 (now clause 7), the words "eight annas" be substituted.

He said :

"This amendment refers to clause 5 (now clause 7) which lays down qualifications of voters and members of union boards. It has been laid down in this clause that the pecuniary qualification of a voter shall be the payment of not less than one rupee as road cess. This also applies to a member of a joint family. I propose that for the words 'one rupee' wherever they occur the words 'eight annas' shall be substituted. I will state certain facts to substantiate my proposition. Hon'ble Members will remember that not long ago a very valuable statement was published by the Government of Bengal with a view to assist the Reforms Committee showing the number of persons who paid one rupee as road cess, two rupees as road cess, and so on. Referring to that statement I find that in a district consisting of 21 lakhs of persons we have barely 50,000 people who pay one rupee as road cess. Now, my Lord, if out of 21 lakhs only 50,000 pay one rupee road cess then we get only a fortieth part of the people registrable for votes. Take, for instance, a union board to be constituted under the present enactment. A union board may consist of a population of 16,000 persons and in that case you have not more than 400 person qualified to vote under this clause. I ask, would that be a sufficient or adequate representation? And from this number too the minors and others are to be excluded. That is a point to be considered. Therefore, I have proposed eight annas instead of one rupee. There is another ground too which I would press for the consideration of the Council and that is this : in local boards you have the one rupee qualification and I think it stands to reason that the qualification if the union boards voters should be somewhat different from that of the local board members. As a matter of fact I believe that in case of chaukidari tax people are taxed only four annas or six annas. So my suggestion if accepted, would eliminate those persons. And it will not inconveniently swell the number of voters. There is another consideration still under the Road Cess Act—a tenant pays two pice per bigha. And if you insist on the one-rupee qualification then a man must have

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. P. C. Mitter; Maulvi Abul Kasem; The President; Sir Henry Wheeler.

at least 32 bighas of land in order to qualify himself as a voter under this clause. I think it is too high a figure. There are not many persons who have got 32 bighas of land. In fact, 16 bighas will be quite enough. For all these considerations I suggest that 'eight annas' may be substituted for 'one rupee'."

The Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter said:—

"My Lord, I have great pleasure in supporting this motion. The recent figures which were published relating to the franchise for the Council show that little over one million will be the total number of voters on the basis of Re. 1 cess for the whole province. Now, my Lord, only 12 millions is our adult male population, that is to say, only one man in 12 will be entitled to vote for the Council election. Now, if we take a village of 1,000 population, that is, accepting the figure which was published by the Government for the Council election, we find by a simple process of arithmetic, out of 1,000 men, 37 will be voters. That, I submit, my Lord will not be desirable, and I venture to think that eight annas, perhaps a lower sum, should be the proper minimum for voting in village union boards."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I also gave notice of an amendment which was indentical with that of the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, but I find from the list of business that Babu Akhil Chandra Datta has given notice of an amendment in which he wants it to be changed to six annas. The general impression seems to be that expressed by the Hon'ble Mr. Mitter, that is, that a lower rate should be accepted. I think, my Lord, that these two amendments should be taken together and that Babu Akhil Chandra Datta's amendment should be put first."

The President said :—

"If it would assist to take the two amendments together, I have no objection to the discussion taking place on the amendments now; the amendments, of course, will be put separately."

Amendment No. 26 was then held to be moved and was as follows :—

"That for the words "one rupee", wherever they occur in sub-clause(1) of clause 5 (now clause 7), the words "six annas" be substituted."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I have only to say this: as I have already explained the number of voters will be very limited if you put it at Re. 1. If you are not prepared to give universal suffrage—one man, one vote—we should at least give the vote to an appreciable number of people; therefore I would personally submit, my Lord, that six annas should be the minimum qualification for a man to empower him to vote at an election of the union board, and I hope that this will be accepted by the Council."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment does not go so far as Amendment No. 23, which we have just been discussing, but it goes in the same direction, viz., that of placing on the electoral roll more voters than would be the case under the scheme of the Bill. The scheme of the Bill contemplates a Re. 1 cess qualification, not a Re. 1 road cess qualification, and the suggestion is that it should be an eight annas cess qualification. In framing the Bill we had regard to the existing state of affairs, which, as I have already mentioned, on the chaukidari side gave us no precedent, or practically no precedent, for election at all, and on the local self-government side gave us the precedent only of a Re. 1 road cess qualification, and we thought that it would be going sufficiently far to take a Re. 1 cess qualification which is less,—in fact half—of the existing local self-government franchise, and therefore meets the point of the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar when he argues that it is only reasonable that there should be a lower voting qualification for these village bodies than there is for local boards. The qualification will be lower—it will be a rupee cess in place of a rupee road cess—in other words, half.

Well, as I have said, we thought that that was a sufficient step in advance, and there are practical reasons for not attempting to place the franchise too low, one of which is that the lower it is put, the more the preparation of the electoral roll is complicated, and in these elections (the same is true of the impending change of system of Council electorates) it will be a very serious practical difficulty to get the electoral rolls prepared and brought up to date. Another practical reason for not attempting to go still lower is that clause 5 (1) (i) now clause 7 (1) (i) only defines the preliminary qualification, when a union board has first to be created. Once the union board is in being voters will for the most part be qualified under sub-clause (ii), in other words by the payment of Re. 1 union rate. On that basis it will be easier to maintain the roll as the taxation papers will be in the union, and it will be easy enough to pick out those who pay a rupee. So that will be the working qualification in all elections subsequent to the first, and I put it to the Council that that is a sufficiently low qualification, especially in a country where the electoral system is new and the effect of a democratic franchise has yet to be seen. A one-rupee payment of the union rate means a payment of a little over one anna a month, and can that be said to be limiting the franchise to the well-to-do to the exclusion of the poor? For that reason I would deprecate the alteration of the franchise as inserted in the Bill. It will bring in the substantial raiyat and, in fact, will bring in anybody of responsible standing in the village."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"Sir, there is serious practical difficulty in the way of our making up our minds whether we should vote for the one rupee or the eight annas limit. and I had hoped that Sir Henry Wheeler would be good enough to give us some facts on which we could make up our minds. We have been told that under the one rupee limit there will be only 50,000 voters out of 20 lakhs and I should like to know what the proportionate increase would be in the number of voters if the amount were reduced to eight annas. This would help many members in making up their minds. The great difficulty in our way is that we do not yet know what the Reform Scheme is going to be based upon. This legislation has been undertaken in spite of protest in some quarters before we know exactly how matters stand in that direction. Suppose it turns out that the Reform Scheme proceeds on the one-rupee basis for the Legislative Council ; then it would be a serious anomaly if the same amount was to be fixed for union boards. Having regard to these difficulties, perhaps it would be well for the time being to accept the lower rate and see how things go on. On the other hand, one does realize the practical difficulties which Sir Henry Wheeler has referred to. However, when it is a question of more than doubt it would be safer to take the lower limit, particularly as it is not demonstrated that the acceptance of the lower limit would necessarily double the number of voters or make it very formidable. Some Hon'ble Member was comparing the report of the Universities Commission, with that of the Reforms Committee, the latter took 3 months, whereas the Universities Commission took 18 months in the matter of arriving at a quick decision. If the decision was quicker, so far as the Franchise Committee was concerned, we would have known where we stand and might have accepted the higher qualification."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, may I refer to the remarks which have fallen from the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari. They would rather lead to the inference that if Government have not got figures on an eight-anna basis which can be put before the Council, it has been rather guilty of a derilection of duty."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"Sir, I beg the Hon'ble Member's pardon, I did not make any such imputation."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"In any case it might be inferred. May I explain in this connection that the collection of figures which we published at the time of the visit of Lord Southborough and his committee to Calcutta, took our officers about six months to compile. It is therefore obvious that it would have been impossible, in the time at our disposal, to have taken in hand a second compilation of figures on an eight-anna basis for the purpose of this amendment."

The President said :—

"As we are taking the discussion on items 24, 25 and 26 together, the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta may like to make his speech now."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, the point has been discussed on both sides, and I do not think I can add anything profitable, but at the same time I do press for your Excellency's acceptance of my amendment No. 26, which is for a six-anna basis."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, Sir Henry Wheeler has no doubt pointed out that in the Local Self-Government Act the qualification is payment of one rupee as road cess, and here we have got the payment of cess as one rupee. But it seems to me that even with that distinction, the amendment which I have moved does not lose its force. As was pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari a lower qualification would not be so harmful as a higher one which might make the representation quite inadequate and Sir Deba Prasad was anxious to know what would be the number of voters if eight annas were substituted. Although we have not got those figures, I think we can deduce it from the figures given in the official statement published some months back.

There I have shown that if a union consists of three or four villages with an aggregate population of 16,000 then under one rupee it would be Rs. 400, but supposing it were half the rate, namely, not one rupee but eight annas, then it would be 800. Would 800 or even 1000 be an adequate representation of 16,000 population—that is my point. So that whatever view you take, I think annas eight ought not to be considered as too low a qualification, and I think if we want to extend the franchise to a reasonable extent among the village population, we should strive to have at least 1,000 people in a union of a population of 15,000 or 16,000 to vote for the election. Under these circumstances I hope that the Government might be induced to accept annas eight for one rupee."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.
The President.

The President said :—

"I might put amendment No. 26 first so that the Hon'ble Members may have a chance of recording their opinion on it if they wish to do so, and then if No. 26 is not carried I will put No. 24 afterwards."

Amendment No. 26 was then put and a division was taken with the following result :—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

The following motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that for the words "one rupee" wherever they occur in clause 5 (now clause 7), the words "eight annas" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 27.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the word "male" in line 1 of sub-clause (1) of clause 5 (now clause 7) be omitted.

He said:

"My Lord, I shall propose to give my reasons in the words of the District and Sessions Judge of Mymensingh: 'Some well-to-do ladies will otherwise be excluded. Many women of all classes will be tax-payers. Some female voters would be more educated than some male ones, while no female vote would be less educated than some male ones'."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, we have already had one amendment dealing with universal suffrage, and in order to be thoroughly fashionable and up-to-date we now have an amendment dealing with female suffrage. The question of female suffrage has loomed very large recently in the annals of the West. It has led to a good deal of disturbance and to a certain amount of window-breaking and policeman-hitting and various other unfeminine acts, but the vote has recently been conceded to women as one of the changes brought about by the war. Personally, I think that in the circumstances of the West the wisest course has been taken. But as matters stand at present in the East things have not yet arrived at a point—I purposely do not say advanced to a point—at which it would be well to put this change in a Bill of this kind. In fact, another amendment, which stands in the name of the same Hon'ble Member, supplies an effective answer to his proposition, namely, No. 36, which says: 'provided also that all female voters shall be entitled to vote through their agents holding powers of attorney.' If, Sir, circumstances are such that it will be impossible for many ladies, under the social usages governing them, to record their votes in person, there exist practical and valid objections which merit the consideration of this Council before adopting a proposal of this kind."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said:—

"My Lord, I must publicly acknowledge my sense of gratitude to my hon'ble friend, Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, and my admiration for his chivalry in moving this amendment. I do not know, my Lord, what arrangement he has in view to suggest to Government to provide for the voting of pardahnashin ladies. I do not know whether he really intends to press the amendment which stands in his name, and if he does, what arrangements he proposes to make for the recording of votes of pardahnashin ladies. I do not know and I should like to be enlightened—whether voting is to be by person or proxy. If it is to be by person, I do not think there will be any advantage in accepting this amendment, because not even one per cent. of the pardahnashin ladies who are entitled to vote would come forward to the polling station to record their votes.

There is another point: I do not know, although we are all crying for reforms in every direction and we are all anxious that reforms should be introduced not only in the legislature but also in the executive and administrative bodies, whether we have yet come to that stage of education even among the male population in this country that franchise should be extended to female population. I believe, my hon'ble friend will pardon me if I say that it will be simply ludicrous."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I had not intended to speak on this amendment, but certain observations of my hon'ble friend, Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, lead me to say something. There are no doubt practical difficulties in the way of pardanashin ladies otherwise qualified, but it ought to be borne in mind that we are legislating not only for the stronger sex but for the weaker sex as well, and it seems to me to put a bar upon the weaker sex—depriving them of the franchise in the formation of these union boards is going rather too far. Some may avail themselves of the permission if you choose to give the permission. If you choose to do away with the bar against the female sex that stands in the Bill, there may be ladies who might be willing to record their votes at the election. Why put a bar against them? I may mention that in the Presidency of Bombay and in the United Provinces there is no distinction of sex as regards voters, and ladies are equally entitled to vote in municipal elections as gentlemen. That being so, I think we might be a litte fair to the weaker sex if we take away the present embargo. I may be permitted to mention one thing. In connection with the pending Calcutta Municipal Bill the Corporation has passed a resolution suggesting an improvement in the matter of voting powers. They have recommended that the distinction of sex in voting qualifications should be taken away as regards the City of Calcutta. I am merely mentioning these facts with a view to show that it would do no harm if you take away the distinction in the matter of election to the union boards."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, this is a point upon which arguments can reasonably be advanced on both sides. Although female education in this country has not advanced so far as to justfy us in giving this franchise to the female, but in all fairness it may be pointed out that there are some lady zamindars who are more educated and otherwise more capable than, possibly in some cases, the rest of the villagers. They can resaonably complain and say why should not they have any right of franchise, especially when they are the proprietress of their estates and property in the absence of male proprietors. There are widow zamindars, for instance. So in these cases there may be some hardship. As regards the arrangement for the recording of votes of pardanashin ladies who would not come forward to give their votes by person I have suggested an agency in my amendment No. 36 where it is said that all female voters shall be entitled to vote through their agents holding powers of attorney. Besides the very fact we give them the right of franchise, it does not follow that they are bound to vote. It is quite optional to them to vote or not—they may exercise their right or not. I have been asked by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur to express my real wish with regard to this motion. My real position is simply this: I am not absolutely keen on this matter, but at the same time I find that there are some people who want that the females should vote and I find that their opinion is held in some responsible quarters, such as the District and Sessions Judge of Mymensingh. I, therefore, thought it only proper that the matter should be brought up for the consideration of the Council. I am not myself extremely keep about it."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 28.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after the word "residence" in line 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the words "or business" be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler, Rái Radha charan Pal Bahadur.

He said :

Now, my Lord, I need not say much on this point. I had in view the case of those persons who have a place of business in a certain village or within the jurisdiction of a certain union board, at the same time they may not have a place of residence there. This is a class of case in which I think there may be some hardship unless the words 'or business' be inserted after the word 'residence'."

The Honble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this is a small amendment and in answer to it I may merely explain the motives which actuated the Select Committee. The main principle upon which we proceeded was that the electors for these union boards should be people who are living in the villages and having a real genuine interest in the proper conduct of their affairs. The Council will remember that in the Bill, as we first amended it, we proposed to give the vote to persons resident within the union, and we defined what we meant by saying that 'resident' meant 'ordinarily resident', i. e., people who habitually live in the union and do not merely visit it at intervals. However, when we re-examined the Bill, judging by the amendments of which notice had been given, we found that there was a certain amount of opinion that the clause was too restrictive, since there might be people who might not be residents in the sense defined, but who, having places of residence within the union, might be deeply interested in its affairs Therefore, recognizing that feeling, we altered the phrase to what it now is, i. e., having a place of residence. We enlarged it, therefore, in the sense of what seemed to be the feeling of the Council. Now, the Hon'ble Member asks that we should insert the words 'or business'. I would deprecate the change, although it is a small one, as ordinarily a man who possesses a place of business of any moment will have residing at it a gomastha or a servant who will be able to exercise the vote. There may again be cases of temporary businesses which might give rise to complications, such as the shop-keeper who comes once a week to the hât and puts up his shop or stall under a tree. It might be said that as he had a place of business he was entitled to vote, as presumably he would be if he also paid the minimum taxation laid down. But I do not think it would be very desirable to give him a vote. Therefore, for these reasons, and also on the ground that it is wider than the existing rule governing elections to the local self-government unions, which requires a voter to be 'resident' in the sense of our original Bill, I would prefer not to accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I support this amendment which has been moved by my hon'ble friend, Babu Akhil Chandra Datta. I do not know why a simple amendment like this is not accepted by Government. It is only the addition of the words 'or business' after the word 'residence'. A man who has got a place of business and who also pays one rupee cess, I think, may very fairly claim the right of voting in that area because he has at least some interest in the area as regards conservancy, water supply and other matters for which the union board will be responsible. I think in this matter at least we will have the support of the non-official European members. In the Calcutta Municipality as well as in the mufassal municipalities the legislature makes provision for a place of business in certain areas, and why should the right of voting be now denied to those who have places of business within the union area. They are equally interested in the sanitation and improvement of that area, and I think it is reasonable and fair that they the right and voice in selecting a representa should have tive on the board. Further, it has been stated, and which has not been controverted by facts and figures, that the number of voters is very limited even if you prescribe 8 annas which has been rejected as the minimum rate. I think the people who have a place of business will not add very greatly to the list of voters, and I think in these days of enlarged franchise we ought to extend the power of voting to persons who have a place of business, and it is to be remembered, not merely to persons who have a place of business but who pay cess not less than one rupee."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there is one class of people in this country whose interest was really intended to be safeguarded by this amendment. In most parts of the country there are people who come and do their business in boats. For instance, there is a big bazar in the district of Mymensingh, namely, Bhairab, where a large number of men carry on business and they are interested in the regulation of traffic and many other questions which will have to be decided by the union boards. They are very wealthy people doing business who have a place of business there but who have not a place of residence. It is only fair to these people that they should have the right to vote."

AFTER LUNCH.

AMENDMENT No. 29.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after sub-clause (1) (ii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely :—

"(iia) who is a teacher in any high English, middle English or middle vernacular school within the union, or".

He said :

"My Lord, clause 5 (now clause 7) lays down the qualification of voters, but this clause does not include a very important class of people who play a very significant part in village life ; I mean the school-masters. They are the most intelligent and public spirited people in the village, and they may not even come under clause 5 (now clause 7) unless in their own capacity as teachers they are allowed to come in as voters, and I therefore propose this amendment. These people are very useful and in fact even on union boards they will play a very important part. I think they ought to be included in the list of voters. It may be that they may reside in another gentleman's house, as most of them do, and may not pay any chaukidari tax or road cess because they come from distant places, but they may reside in a village for more than ten months, and I think that they ought to be admitted to these union boards if these boards are to be successful in their operation."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"This amendment, Sir, is the first of six which follow, and which are all framed on somewhat similar lines, that is to say, they are all designed to add to the simple property qualification which is at present in the Bill, what I may call fancy qualifications, derived from miscellaneous tests of sorts other than the simple taxation qualification which is covered by clause 5 as it now stands. In reference to all these six amendments there are certain general considerations which I may now briefly state and which apply to all, and if I mention them now, it will avoid repetition later. In principle, all these kinds of special electorates are in a sense non-democratic, and they date, rather, from a time when a low property qualification was not in force. Even in those Acts which may be cited as authority, the precedents do not go so far as some of the amendments that have been filed in connection with this Bill, but it is true that in the franchise for local boards, one qualification is that of being a graduate or a licentiate of a University, or a holder of a certificate as a medical practitioner, or a pleader or a mukhtear. But the Local Self-Government Act was originally an Act of

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

1885, and the Municipal Act, in which there is a somewhat similar qualification, was an Act of 1884. So both these precedents are old, and I do not think they are altogether appropriate to modern conditions as effecting the present Bill. There is a great advantage in having a simple qualification. We must remember that these elections will, after all, be small affairs. The union board is not a very big body, and its functions cannot be viewed as very world-wide : they are essentially local, and the whole thing will be in the hands of simple people who are to be given a certain amount of control over their own affairs. Therefore the simpler the elections can be kept the better, and a simple qualification of low taxation, such as the Bill contains, is clear and definite, and is in conformity with what is the usual franchise practice in other countries where elections prevail. The usual scheme of suffrage is that of a property qualification, which is usually higher to begin with and lowered gradually in the course of successive reforms. That is what we have done here. We had a higher property qualification in the Act of 1885, and we have made it lower here, and I think we would be ill-advised to complicate it by going back to the old system of special electorates. Neither do the precedents bear the Hon'ble Member out in his present amendment. In neither of these two Acts can I find any precedent for inserting teachers of high English or middle vernacular schools among qualified voters. Therefore the amendment is a new embroidery on the two precedents which I have cited, and after all, is it unreasonable to expect from a voter the low cess qualification which will be in force at the first election, while as I have already said, after the first election, anybody will be able to vote who pays Re. 1 a year to the union board. Again, even at the first election this cess qualification, about which we have had some discussion to-day, will not be the only one in force, as equally at the first election a Re 1 chaukidari tax qualification will be valid, and if a teacher of one of the schools of the kind enumerated has not paid the small sum of Re. 1 as chaukidari tax in a year, I really do not think he is particularly deserving of the franchise. As a matter of fact, he is almost certain to be able to put in a claim to vote under the existing provisions, and I would deprecate, either in this case or in those that follow it, adding special qualifications which are now somewhat out of date, and which will merely complicate the franchise as designed in the Bill."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, let us not forget the actual conditions under which the villages are situated and in which we are going to give effect to this matter. In the first place, a person having an ordinary place of residence in the union will be entitled to be a member. In most villages, educated, public spirited, and competent men live away from their houses, so they do not come in. Thus, in the villages there are the school-masters of a number of middle English and vernacular schools. If you also exclude them, then who are to form the union board and discharge its functions? Very important duties are imposed under this enactment upon the union board—first, to preserve and maintain the conservancy and sanitation in the villages, secondly, to form the criminal court of the union, and thirdly, they are to administer civil law in certain classes of suits. All these require some sort of intelligence, some sort of public spirit, and some amount of sacrifice. If you exclude the teachers who ordinarily reside in the villages, I shudder to contemplate what will be the ultimate effect of this enactment Who are to form the boards, who are to discharge these functions? and in this view I think it is the intention of Government to work out successfully this important measure to see that sufficient scope is given for the application of the Act, and for its successful working—in this view I think, whatever may be urged on the other side, the school teachers ought to come in if we at all hope to succeed in working out this measure for the benefit of the people."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Bengal Village self Government, Bill, 1919.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

AMENDMENT No. 30.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur moved that after sub-clause (1) (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely :—

"or

(iiib) who, during the year immediately preceding the election, has paid an income-tax, or

(iiic) who has passed the middle vernacular or middle English examination, or

(iiid) who has passed any title examination recognized by Government, such as the tol examination or the final examination of a madrassa, or

(iiie) who has passed the entrance or matriculation or any higher examination of any University, or (iiif) who is a licentiate of any University, or holds a certificate as a pleader or mukhtear or revenue agent or a medical practitioner registered under the Bengal Medical Act, 1914, or an overseer".

He said :

"My Lord, my amendment covers a wider field. It can be divided into two parts. First, I think that educational qualifications ought to be considered, and secondly, I think that those who pay income-tax or license-tax or a trade tax ought to be included in the list of voters. My Lord, I am perfectly aware of the provisions of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act. Question after question is asked in the Council regarding the election rules, and the opinion of the Advocate-General was taken on the subject, but, inasmuch as his opinion was that the provisions of section 15 were rather restricted, the view taken by some of the non-official members was not accepted. Now that we are getting a fresh legislation, on the subject, is it not necessary for the Council to consider whether all those defects which appear in the Bengal Municipal Act should be removed by this legislation. The word 'occupy' in section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act was a great obstacle to allowing men possessing educational qualifications to come in, but no such defect will occur here. The question, therefore, can be summed up in this way, viz., whether those who have got educational qualifications are entitled to be included in the list of voters or not. My Lord, those who are aware of village life will agree with me that to ensure success of the provisions of the Bill, it is necessary that some intelligent men who can lead society, who can lead the cultivators, ought to come in in the union boards as well as sit in village courts. Now, the Bill prohibits the legal practitioners from working in village courts ; he is not allowed to come in. If the Bill proposes that intelligent men bearing educational qualifications ought not to come in, what will be the condition of things ? The Bill requires that from among the members of the union boards, benches are to be established, and consequently it is highly necessary for the interests of the cultivators who reside there that there should be some people who can form the intelligent portion of the court or bench. There should be some provision to this effect. Let us take into consideration the case of a medical practitioner. In villages there are medical practitioners who may not hold any land but practice all the same in that locality. Are we to be told that these medical practitioners are to be excluded from the scope of the Bill ? Let us take another instance, the pleader who goes from one place to practise in a neighbouring court. Is he to be told that he cannot sit in the union board or on the bench ? Let us take also into consideration the case of a voter who has many sons, all graduates of the Calcutta University ; the Bill lays down that only one member of a joint family is to be enlisted as a voter. My Lord injustice will be done to these persons who are graduates of the University, but who are not entitled to be members of the board or the bench. It is said that this Bill is a simple one, therefore, the cultivator who pays cess and union rates are only to be enlisted as voters. I submit in respect to that, that if the Bill comes into operation by the light of the observations contained in the Bill, the success of the village local self-government is at an end. Unless you put forward men who are capable to sit as judges in the bench and the court, as active members of the union boards, I am almost sure the cultivators, simple as they are, will not be in a position to maintain the dignity of the board or the dignity of the bench. In this view of the matter I thought that it was high time that we should come before your Excellency's Government and explain how matters are, and it is my strong impression that if this view be accepted by Government the result will be a success. Your Excellency will also consider this, that supposing the scope of the Bill is limited, then you allow those who pay cess or union rates to sit as members of the board, or to appear in the list of voters. I suppose. My Lord that your Excellency will have to import men from other quarters in order to make the bench or the court sufficiently strong. I need not reiterate my views, for proposing what have been called fancy qualifications. I do not question the character of the Bill, but I am deeply concerned with the success of the provisions of the Act, and in this view I do strongly submit to your Excellency that Your Excellency should press the Council to consider the amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I have already put before the Council certain general considerations bearing on amendments of this type, and I would like them to be considered as applicable in answer to this amendment also. But, before proceeding to details, I would strongly combat the misapprehension that might be conveyed by the Hon'ble Member's speech that under the franchise in the Bill, as it now stands we are excluding the educated classes. The Hon'ble Member asks us with all seriousness what is to happen to the pleader, the mukhtear, the graduate and the medical practitioner under the franchise as we have framed it in the Bill. My answer is that the graduate, the pleader, or the medical practitioner has merely got to pay a fraction over an anna a month as a contribution to the funds of the union board in order to be a voter for it, and if, with all his high professional qualifications, he is not able to pay that infinitesmal sum, I submit that he has very small claim to our consideration. It is often alleged with reference to chaukidari assessments, that those who ought to pay do not always pay, but I cannot believe that the defects in the Chaukidari assessments are carried to such an extent that the professional classes, on whose behalf the Hon'ble Member has addressed us so eloquently, do not pay even the small sum which qualify them to be voters under the Bill. As regards the details of the proposal in the Hon'ble Member's amendment they are rather a curious mixture ; he seems to have made search in various Acts and picked out some analogies for his present purpose, while, for the rest, he has got them out of his own head. Thus, when we come to his first qualification, that of paying license-tax in respect of a trade, etc., he has apparently gone to section 9(2) (b) of the Local Self-Government Act of 1885, but the license-tax there mentioned is now out of date. In his second qualification, he comes to the payment of income-tax, which he has taken apparently from the Municipal election rules. But surely if a man pays income-tax, it follows, almost as a matter of course, that he can pay the small sum per month which will qualify him as a voter for the union board. The third test, that of passing the middle English or vernacular examination, is entirely a new one, and the Council will observe to what a very low educational level it comes. It cannot be seriously contended that the middle English or the middle vernacular is a very high standard for a man exercising this franchise. Even in the Local

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari.

Self-Government Act the educational franchise does not go below graduates and the Municipal rules only go down to the Intermediate Arts standard. His fourth qualification is very curiously worded. He says that those who have passed any title examination, such as the tol examination or the final examination of a madrassa, should be entitled to vote. I am not quite clear what he means when he refers to tols and madrassas, for which I cannot find any precedent in other Acts, and the whole thing is vague in the extreme. His fifth test is the passing of the entrance or the matriculation or any higher examination of a University. It, therefore, overlaps in a very curious way his third one, which was the middle vernacular or middle English examination, and surely the entrance examination of the University is not a very high standard. His last qualification is apparently based on the Municipal rules, but he has omitted an important item in that precedent which was that of a property qualification, in addition to the educational qualification, and he has put in a curious reference to an overseer, regarding which I am not quite sure what he means. Therfore, I think that, even as they stand, the amendments are defective; they are not supported by precedent, and they are not justified by the main argument which the Hon'ble Member has used, namely, that unless we insert them in the Bill we eliminate the educated classes from the list of voters. On the contrary, we wish to bring them in, and I submit that they can usually be brought in by the payment of the very low taxation which the Bill proposes."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I do not wish to give a silent vote on this matter, but I wish to say that I have listened with very great attention to the speech of the Hon'ble Mover, whom it has always been my pleasure to support. I have paid a little attention to the other clauses of the Bill, and although I have listened with very great attention to his very eloquent speech I must say that I have gone into many of his points as far as I could, and find on a reference to the several clauses of the Bill that his points will not stand very close examination. My hon'ble friend wants that medical men, lawyers, graduates and under-graduates and teachers should all be voters, but I find that in clause 38 (now clause 37) of the Bill there is a provision that anyone who pays a union rate of Re. 1 will be entitled to vote whatever he may be. If a man does not pay this rate, even if he is a resident, I do not think he has any claim to sit on the union board as a representative. The Hon'ble Member also wants to add another qualification over and above the residential qualification, in one case, i.e., he will give a vote to the man who is paying a license tax, but in such cases the man generally pays an income-tax and, of course, an union rate. If so, he will be entitled to a vote, but if he is not a resident there, it is not desirable to have him even when he pays a cess rate or the union rate. He should be a resident there. I need not enter into the question at all. It will be otherwise spoilt by this amendment. I would like to include business in the category the clauses are added together, I do not see my way to vote for this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, I am not quite clear in regard to one thing. Is it possible that irrespective of property qualification, if a man pays down a rupee for the union rate he will be entitled to vote? If that is so, everything that the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said will hold good. If it is not so, we must stand out for educational qualification which is no new departure. It has already been recognized in the Municipal Acts, as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler; and in dealing with this matter we ought not to depart from this principle. If it is quite clear that the payment of one rupee independent of property qualification would entitle a person to vote, I think we ought to enact some of the clauses here. My difficulty in supporting the whole of the amendment is that this amendment is a somewhat curious mixture of the kind pointed out by the Hon'ble Sir Henry

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

Wheeler. For example, when it talks of licentiates of any University the framer forgets that the Calcutta University gives no licenses in these days. And if you fix the matriculation standard you bring down the qualfication lower than that indicated by the other clauses. That is, however, a matter of detail. One advantage or disadvantage of having this legislation now is that we are considering in advance as to what will happen to the Reform Scheme, i.e., whether merely property qualification or educational qualification also should come in. The educational qualification is already in our existing Municipal Act, and I do not see why it should be taken away in connection with the new machinery without any adequate reason. I would partially support the principle of the amendment so far as the educational qualification is concerned."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, the amendments that follow after the one that has been moved by the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur are on the same lines. I have given notice of one of them. My idea was not to include in the list of voters all men, University graduates, under-graduates or matriculates and finally passed students of madrassas or tols even if they pay the union rates : but my object was to include in the list of voters those people who will not be entitled to pay the rates as such just as the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari has pointed out. There must be some rule that if he does not occupy a separate holding he will not be entitled to vote. The people whom I had in mind were the sons of gentlemen who hold property in their own name. Adult children and grandchildren of gentlemen living in the village would not be entitled to vote neither to pay taxes or rates. As regards independent men living by themselves I do not think the union committee will ever exempt them from paying the taxes and they will be the last persons to be let off without paying the rates. But those who live with their fathers and the property is held in the name of their fathers or mothers, they will not be entitled to vote ; and my object—and it was the object of my friend—to include in the list of voters all qualified persons, i.e., those resident of the union who are graduates or have educational qualifications but live with their parents and have no property of their own. I think that if any means could be found to include them I would be glad to accept them. But I would like to submit that their inclusion would not increase the number of voters very much as their number will be very limited. That is why I insist upon their being included."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, a certain amount of misapprehension may possibly have been caused by my somewhat loose use of the term 'property qualification'. I used the expression in order to differentiate between these educational standards which are mentioned in the amendment and the scheme of the Bill. But perhaps the more accurate term would be tax or rate-paying qualification. Under clause 38 (now clause 37) of the Bill, a union board shall impose yearly a rate on the owners or occupiers of buildings. That is, modelled on section 14 of the Chaukidari Act, which says that all owners or occupiers of houses in any village and any person who has within such village a cutcherry for collecting rents, shall be liable to assessment for the purposes of the Act. I think that it is known to all that many people pay chaukidari tax who are not in any sense propertied men."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, in reply I beg to invite the attention of the Hon'ble Member in charge to clause 39 (now clause 38) of the Bill. The rate to be imposed by union boards under clause 38 (now clause 39) shall be an assessment

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

according to the circum stances and the property within the union of the person liable to pay the same. Supposing a gentleman who has got educational qualifications has no property, then he is not required to pay the rate and he cannot be assessed. I refer to clause 5 (now clause 7) which lays down that the payment of a cess is a qualification of a voter. Suppose a gentleman possessing an educational qualification does not pay cess at all, then he is not and cannot be enlisted as a voter. For this reason I say that independent of the payment of union rates or the cess those persons who have got educational qualifications ought to be enlisted as voters, and the reason is plain. I think it is necessary that the Hon'ble Members should consider that the rate-paying or tax-paying qualification ought not to be the only qualification for being enlisted as voters. Therefore, in this view of the matter I thought it necessary to press my amendment for the consideration of the Hon'ble Members. The same fault appears in the Bengal Municipal Act, although an attempt was made in this Council to have it modified, but the difficulty arose on account of the provisions in section 15 of the Bengal Municipal Act, and although resolutions were put before the Council, Lord Sinha could not find his way on the face of the difficulties which were pointed out to him to modify it. Now that this Bill is going to be law I appeal to the Legislature to consider whether these difficulties can be overcome. In that sense, I have brought it to the notice of your Excellency's Council, or else the same difficulty will be felt hereafter."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, may I add one word with reference to clause 39 (now clause 38), to which the Hon'ble Member has made reference now for the first time? I might explain that the words there used—'an assessment according to the circumstances and the property'—are modelled upon section 15 of the Chaukidari Act, 1870, which refers to an assessment according to the circumstances and the property to be protected of the persons liable to taxation. That, in no sense requires that the people assessed should be owners of property; a cursory glance at any village chaukidari assessment roll will show that the panchayet taxes men in view of their circumstances, whether they are daily labourers, artisans, pleaders, school-masters or what not. In the same way pleaders or professional men of any kind who occupy a building will be assessed under the Bill according to their circumstances. I have already mentioned that a person need only pay the very low assessment of slightly over one anna per month in order to qualify for a vote."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 31.

The following motion stood in the name of the the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, that after sub-clause (1) (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted namely :—

"or

(iiia) who has passed the middle English or middle vernacular examination, or

(iiib) who has passed the sanskrit tol examination or the junior madrassa examination recognized by Government, or

(iiic) who has passed any University examination, or (iiid) who holds a certificate and license as a pleader, mukhtear or revenue agent or as a medical practitioner registered under the Bengal Medical Board."

He said :

"I think that this amendment has been disposed of after the discussion which has taken place on the previous one, and I do not think that I shall be in order in moving this amendment."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; President; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 32.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, to move that after sub-clause (1) (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely :—

"or

(iiib) who, during the year immediately preceding the election, has been possessed of a clear income from any source of not less than Rs. 120, or (iiic) who is a graduate, under-graduate or matriculate or is a sanskrit title-holder or has passed the tol final examination or middle English or middle vernacular scholarship examination, or the normal school or madrassa school examinations, or the final examination from a recognized medical school and who ordinarily resides within such union.".

The President said :—

"I think that this amendment is covered by the discussion of the previous amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there are three parts of this amendment, the first part of which is covered by the amendment that has already been disposed of, viz., No. 31. Part 2 is, however, new which says :—

'who, during the year immediately preceding the election, has been possessed of a clear income from any source of not less than Rs. 120'.

I press for this portion. This is really a reproduction of section 9 (1) (c) of the Self-Government Act of 1885. As regards the third portion, I think that it is also disposed of. I shall, therefore, confine myself to the second portion."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I will not repeat the general considerations on which I deprecate the acceptance of this amendment, but will only refer to the clause which the Hon'ble Member still wishes to press, namely, the possession of an income from any source of not less that Rs. 120. The Hon'ble Member claims the precedent of section 9 (2) (c) of the Local Self-Government Act; but I may point out that in that section the figure is Rs. 240, which, for some reason unexplained, he has halved. But, apart from that, anybody possessing a clear income of Rs. 10 a month would under the customary procedure of village assessment be asked to pay the minimum amount of Re. 1 which would qualify him to be a voter."

The Honb'le Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have seen that in the other Act the figure is Rs. 240, but I have advisedly reduced it in order that we may have more men to serve on the union boards. That was the consideration which influenced me in reducing the amount."

The second part of the motion was then put and lost.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Maulvi Abul Kasem; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 33 and 34.

The following motions were then deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that after sub-clause (1) (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely :—

" or (iiia) who is a matriculate of an Indian University or has passed the final examination of the State Medical Faculty, the Board of Sanskrit examination or the Government madrassas."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that after sub-clause (1) (iii) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely :—

" or

(iv) who has passed the matriculation examination of an Indian University, or any other examination equivalent to the same, or the final examination of any senior madrassa recognized by Government, or any title examination in sanskrit recognized by Government, or any examination under the State Medical Faculty of Bengal or of any other Provincial Government in British India."

AMENDMENT No. 35.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, withdrew the following motion with the permission of the President, viz.,—

"that the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 5 (now clause 7) be omitted."

AMENDMENT No. 36.

The following motion was held to be covered by the decision on amendment No. 27 and was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be inserted, namely ;—

" Provided also that all female voters shall be entitled to vote through their agents holding powers of attorney."

AMENDMENT No. 37.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "every person" in line 1 of sub-clause (2) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the words " every literate male person" be substituted.

He said :

" My Lord, the object of this amendment is that the members of union boards should be literate."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment, as the Hon'ble Member has just said, would make literacy a test of membership of the union board. In so doing, it would follow a precedent which is in the Local Self-Government election rules, though on the other hand, it is not in the Municipal rules. We may therefore say that the precedents are divided. The amendment is unexceptionable in so far as we want the people who are going to be members of the board to be men of capacity, which to some extent, is indicated by literacy, but I would invite the attention of the Council to certain remarks which were made by the District Administration Committee which considered this matter, and was influenced by the opinion of two of its members who were closely connected with Eastern Bengal. They wrote :—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Maulvi Abul Kasem; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

"The objection has been taken that there will not be men in all unions sufficiently qualified to undertake the duties that we are proposing for the panchayets, but we think that in this matter there is a tendency to look too much to education and too little to personal qualifications. Two of our members have spent the greater part of their service in Eastern Bengal, and their work has brought them into direct and constant association with the villagers in the remotest parts of many districts. Their experience is that in every union suitable men can be found to serve on the panchayets who, although not possessing high educational qualifications, can be trusted under sympathetic guidance and control to do a great deal of useful work for their villages. We believe that this is equally true of other parts of Bengal, and that all over the province such men can be found.'

That, Sir, is a pronouncement of some authority, and it would weigh with me in deprecating this amendment, though if the Hon'ble Member cares to press it to a division I would leave it to the Council."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I am not myself very keen about this. There is some feeling amongst the non-official members that this should be urged. At the same time, I hope that similar arguments will be advanced ; it is said very often that the people are not sufficiently educated. I for one would be glad to accept the position that has been taken by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, that is, however, my personal opinion. As there is a feeling in the non-official benches that this amendment is necessary, I feel justified in pressing it.'

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 38.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, withdrew the following motion with the permission of the President :—

That at the end of sub-clause (2) of clause 5 (now clause 7) the following be added, namely :—

" Provided that only one member of a joint undivided family shall be entitled to be so elected."

AMENDMENT No. 39.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that the Explanation to clause 5 (now clause 7) be omitted.

He said :

"My Lord, in this explanation the word 'residence' is explained as ordinarily residing within its limits. The last portion says: 'No person may be so resident within the limits of more than one union at the same time'. I think the expression should be rather elastic. Resident may be taken as sufficient without a restriction as to the manner of residence, as in that case very few qualified men will be available for work on these union boards. It may be that for the sake of serving the needs of the community in the matter of medical aid and education many people of the headquarters may be inclined to go actually to the village and serve on these boards, and if it is restricted that such persons should be residing in the union in order to be able to serve there. Moreover, in the case of municipal boards, we see that one person may enjoy the right of voting in more than one municipality or locality ; so, in this case simply because a person is a resident of one union board, he should not therefore be debarred from serving on another union board. In that view of the matter, I hope that the explanation be omitted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

" My Lord, I recommend the retention of the explanation It will be remembered that in the Bill as it passed out of the hands of the Select Committee, this residential qualification applied to the voter as well as to the member. As I have previously explained to-day, we discarded it in the case of the voter, in deference to what we understood to be the sense of the Council ; but we retained it as regards the member, in order to ensure that the people who serve on these union boards should be genuine residents and not outsiders. We want to get the men who actually live in the villages, who are in the confidence of the people there, who know what is going on, and who are competent to supervise the execution of the petty works of improvement which will be within the power of the union boards. We do not think that the affairs of the union boards can be run properly by men who are more birds of passage, making only casual visits to the union, and importance is to be attached to the Explanation that no person may be resident of more than one union at the same time. If there is any doubt, the person himself can state the place where he most frequently resides and where he wishes to take part in the affairs of that union as a resident, but he will not be allowed to be a member of a union with which he does not have a really close connection. That seems a fair provision and I would press for its retention."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

" My Lord, I have already said what I had to say, I think that if it be restricted to ordinary residence many qualified persons will be unable to serve on these boards. I submit, therefore, that this amendment should be accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 40.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

" My Lord, in view of the decision of the Council on the previous amendment this item (No. 40) also falls through."

The motion was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that after the words " within its limits " in lines 3 and 4 of the Explanation to clause 5 (now clause 7) the words " or has a place of residence within the union", be inserted.

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 41.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that in line 1 of clause 6A, (now clause 9), for the word " may " the word " shall " be substituted.

He said :—

" My Lord, I wish to make it obligatory on the union board to elect one of its members to be its vice-president, and in that view I move this amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Hart ; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, I oppose this amendment. The Hon'ble Member has not given any reasons for proposing to make it obligatory that the union board should appoint or elect a vice-president, and I think it is recognized that it is important that the administration of the union board should be conducted as far as possible in the same simple way as the business affairs of a family are managed. Formalities should be avoided and nothing should be done to give an opening to complications. In every joint family there is a karta or headman who conducts its business affairs and it is not the ordinary practice to appoint a vice-headman unless and until it becomes apparent that the vice-headman is necessary. For the same reasons it is expedient that a union board should not appoint a vice-president until the necessity arises. In a municipality where they have a vice-chairman, the case is somewhat different. There the number and complexity of the chairman's duties make it desirable that he should have the assistance of a vice-chairman, but the president of a union board will not have more work than one capable person can ordinarily manage. It would be a mistake to appoint two persons to divide the work and responsibility of one man, and it would be a mistake to impose on the union board a superfluous officer. Clause 6A (now clause 9) as it stands empowers the union board to elect a vice-president when it considers such an appointment necessary. To compel the union board against its will to appoint a vice-president is unnecessary and likely to be prejudicial to the system of village self-government. For these reasons, my Lord, I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I cannot understand why it is not thought desirable that there should be a vice-president. These boards should not be a one-man show ; we often hear that the chairman of the district board is the district board, so even in executive union boards it is very desirable that there should be a vice-president to assist the president. The provision in the law is very reasonable, that there may be a vice-president, and to emphasize the necessity of such an officer, I have proposed that it should be made obligatory. I, therefore, hope that this amendment will be accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 42.

The following motion which was held to be covered by the decision on amendment No. 41 was then deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that clause 6A (now clause 9) be re-numbered as clause 6A (1) and that after the re-numbered sub-clause (1), the following sub-clause be inserted, namely :—

"(2) If any union board fails to elect a vice-president within the period prescribed by rules under section 111, the district board shall appoint a member of the union board to be the vice-president."

AMENDMENT No. 43.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "district magistrate" in line 3 of sub-clause (1) of clause 11A (now clause 11) the words "district board" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

He said :

"My Lord, this is based upon the general principle that the duty and function of the supervision of the rural boards should be entrusted to the district board and not to the district magistrate."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, I do not quite understand why this amendment has been mooted, except on the general principle of looking through the Bill and wherever the words 'district magistrate' occur proposing to substitute for them the words 'district board'. The duty defined in clause 11A (now clause 11) has nothing to do with the working of the boards or with the control over them. It is merely a declaratory function—to declare authoritatively that a board was constituted on such and such a date. That is a formality connected with the calculation of the term of office of members. It was not in the Bill as originally framed, which specified a 3-year term of membership from the date of election or appointment. In the Select Committee we discussed how best to ensure that the term of elected members and appointed members synchronized, and we finally adopted the solution which is now in the Bill, to have an authoritative declaration of the date from which the board was duly constituted, and to let the three years' term run for all from that date. This clause says that the district magistrate is to declare the date ; in so doing he can hurt nobody, even if it wanted to do so, and the proposal is consistent with clause 3 (now clause 5) of the Bill which makes the creation of these union boards, a function of the Executive Government. It is best that a simple function of this kind should be performed similarly by an executive officer, and there will be less likelihood of possible confusion if it is left to him than if it is delegated to the district board."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, in view of the observations made by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, I beg permission to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 44.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that after the word 'may' in line 1 of sub-clause (1) of clause 12, the following be inserted, namely :—

"Of its own motion, or on an application made in accordance with rules under section 111."

He said :

"This is a very formal amendment, and the Hon'ble Member may accept it if he thinks fit."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I do not think the amendment is required. The clause deals with the power to remove members, and says that the district board may remove any member under specified conditions. I do not think it is necessary to say that it should do so of its own motion or on an application made in accordance with rules made under clause 111 (now clause 102), because the district board will take action whenever the facts are brought to its notice in any manner."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem ; Kumar Shib Shikhareswar Ray ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I do not wish to press this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn."

AMENDMENT No. 45.

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray, in the absence of the Hon'ble Raja Hrishikesh Laha, moved that for the words, brackets and figures "clause (1) or clause (3)" in line 2 of sub-clause (2) of clause 12 the following be substituted, namely :—

"clauses (1), (3) or (5)".

He said :

"My Lord, the reason is obvious. A person guilty of misconduct or of any disgraceful conduct ought not to be re-elected as a member of the union board. I submit that misconduct or disgraceful conduct is no less reprehensible than the disqualifications mentioned under (1) and (3) of sub-clause (1). If a member of a union board finds that, in the event of his being declared guilty of misconduct, he will be permanently disqualified from being again elected a member, he is likely to be more careful and scrupulous than if the only penalty for misconduct is to be his removal from membership for a short time only, and there will be nothing to prevent his being re-elected. The proposal, if accepted, will certainly act as a more powerful deterrent than the nominal punishment of temporary disqualification provided in the Bill."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, I have no objection in accepting this amendment if it commends itself to the Council. Clause 12 enumerates five circumstances under which persons may be disqualified. The Bill makes two of them permanent disqualifications, that is, conviction of a non-bailable offence and having been declared disqualified for employment in the public service. The fifth, that is, being guilty of misconduct in the discharge of his duties, is not permanent ; we discussed the point in Select Committee, and the view we took was that if the electors thought that a man should be re-elected after what he had done, we should be prepared to allow them to do so. But if the Council wish to make this a permanent disqualification, I am prepared to accept it."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"I have nothing further to add, my Lord."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 46.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq :—

New clause 14B.

That after clause 14A (now clause 14) the following be inserted, namely :—

"14B. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, it shall be competent for the voters of a union board to pass a vote of censure on any member of such board at a meeting attended by at least two-thirds of the total number of voters.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abdul Käsem; President; Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq; Babu Kishore Mohan Chaudhuri.

(2) On such a vote being passed, the member concerned shall tender his resignation to the union board within two months of the date of the meeting, and in case of his neglect or refusal to do so, he shall be removed from office by the district board.

(3) Every such meeting shall be convened and conducted in accordance with rules under section 111."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry I cannot move this amendment, but if anyone wishes to move it on behalf of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, he is quite welcome to do so.

The President said :—

"Does not the Hon'ble Member wish to move it ?"

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"No, I cannot also move Nos. 47, or 48 ; 49 also falls through."

As no Hon'ble member was willing to move it the motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 47—49.

The following motions were also deemed to be withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that sub-clause (1) of clause 15 be omitted.

If motion No. 47 be carried, also to move that before the words "vice-president" in line 1 of sub-clause (3) of clause 15 the word "President" be inserted.

Also to move that after the word "may" in line 1 of sub-clause (1) of clause 16 the following be inserted, namely :—

"of its own motion, or on an application made in accordance with rules under section 111".

AMENDMENTS Nos. 50—52.

The following motions were held to be covered by the decisions on previous motions and were deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the word "may" in line 2 of sub-clause (3) of clause 17 the word "shall" be substituted.

Also to move that after the word "meeting" in line 3 of sub-clause (3) of clause 17 the following be inserted, namely :—

"within a period prescribed by rules under section 111".

Also to move that after sub-clause (3) of clause 17 the following be inserted, namely :—

"(4) if any union board fails to elect a new vice-president within the prescribed period, the district board shall appoint a new vice-president."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

AMENDMENT No. 53

New clause 17A.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that after clause 17 the following be inserted, namely :—

"17A. The union board shall have power to grant leave of absence to its president or vice-president for a period not exceeding six months in a year, either at one time or in the aggregate, and may fill up the vacancy caused by such absence".

He said :

"My Lord, I think in the Municipal Act provision is made for granting leave to the chairman and vice-chairman, and I think the same concession should be shown to union board officers as well."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"This is scarcely a proposal which involves any important principle, but rather a detail of administrative convenience and necessity. As the Hon'ble Mr. Hart has said in connection with another amendment, we want to keep the working of the union boards as simple as possible, and therefore we did not follow the precedents of the Municipal Act or the Local Self-Government Act in certain of the provisions which are required in the case of a more highly organized body like a district board or a municipality. In this matter of granting leave we thought it better that if the president required leave, the union board should see to it in an informal way and arrange for the performance of his functions in his absence. We have a rule making power in clause 111(d) [now clause 101(d)] to prescribe the powers to be exercised by the president or vice-president of a union board, and probably, if a difficulty arose, we could frame rules which would meet it. That is my objection to the amendment; that it goes rather beyond the limits of simplicity which we sought to maintain in respect of these boards."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I cannot quite follow the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. As far as I understand, he does not quite oppose this amendment, but at the same time he does not wish to burden the union board with other provisions. What I want to know is, if the president of the union board—I do not say the vice-president—is unable to attend to his duties for six months or more, what are the provisions of the Bill which will enable the union board to elect another president to officiate for him, or to carry on his work in his absence? There is no provision as far as I know, and I am not sure whether in the absence of any provision of this kind the union board will be able to grant leave to their president or vice-president. The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler referred to clause 111(d) [now clause 101(d)] which prescribes the powers to be exercised by the president or vice-president of the union board, but the president must be there in flesh and blood, and must be present at the meeting of the board. Suppose he is ill or laid up or goes away, or is absent from the place, there must be some person to perform his functions. I should like to know whether in such cases the union board will be in a position to appoint a temporary president or vice-president."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, I gather that the Hon'ble Member asks two questions. He enquires as to my own personal view, which is, that this amendment is unnecessary. Secondly, he asks who is to exercise the statutory functions of the president in his absence? As regards that I would merely say that for the performance of the statutory functions of a body like the Calcutta Corporation, with all its complicated interests, it is necessary to have provisions of this kind definitely laid down, but when we come to union boards, which are after all merely a few men running the affairs of a village, we do not require to overload the Bill with special provisions, and if we can avoid them, so much the better. The Bill will be worked by fairly simple people and it should be kept simple. As it is, the idea of this Bill has grown considerably since Sir Nicholas Beatson Bell first attempted to frame it. He hoped to put down provisions on little more than a half sheet of notepaper for the guidance of these village committees, but the Bill has already become much larger than was originally intended, and I hesitate to add other provisions unless their necessity can be very clearly proved. Otherwise, there is no question of principle involved."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, the object of moving this amendment was that the union boards should be given power to grant short leave of absence to their presidents in urgent cases. Suppose the president is ill or obliged to leave the village for medical treatment or for any urgent business, what provision is to be made to carry on the duties of the board? I am afraid the only course open to him is to resign his office, and a fresh election must take place, unless there is a vice-president to act for him. Of course the period of six months in the aggregate is two long a period, but some provision ought to be made in the Bill for temporary grant of leave to the president in order to ensure arrangements for carrying on his work during his absence. I admit, of course, that it has nothing to do with the principle of the Bill."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 54.

Clause 20.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after the word "road" in line 1 of clause 20 (now clause 19) the words "bridge and tank" be inserted.

He said :

"My Lord, this amendment refers to clause 20 (now clause 19) of the Bill, which provides for the property to be vested in the union boards, that is to say, roads, buildings or other works constructed by the union wards. To those I wish to add 'bridge and tank'. It is extremely doubtful if the word 'road' as defined in this Bill would cover a bridge. Certainly it would not cover a tank, and I think if we enumerate any property it is necessary to expressly mention 'bridge' and 'tank' which are very important works of the board. I do not think 'or other work' would be sufficient to cover these two, for in that case the clause ought to have been worded 'other works constructed by the union board'. We need not have mentioned roads, buildings, etc. If it was necessary to mention roads, buildings, etc., I think it is necessary to mention also bridges and tanks.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, I oppose this amendment. Clause 20 (now clause 19) of the Bill applies to 'every road, building or other work' and the words 'other work' obviously cover a bridge or a tank. The Select Committee saw no reason to include in this clause a complete list of the various kinds of work which a union board may construct, and I do not think that the Hon'ble Member has been able to show that there is special need for making specific mention of bridges or tanks. I might explain also that in this case the wording of the clause exactly follows that of section 75 of the Local Self-Government Act of 1885. As these words are unnecessary, my Lord, I beg to recommend that the amendment be not accepted."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, with due deference to the finality of the Select Committee, I beg to submit that I am not at all impressed with the Hon'ble Member's statement that the words 'other work' in place of 'other works constructed by' would do. Why do you mention roads and buildings? If you mention them, you should also mention other important works done by the union board. 'Or other works' might mean according to the interpretation given generally in courts of law, other works like buildings, etc.—the preceding words. I think there can be no bar in introducing the words 'bridge and tank'."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 55.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that the words "from the union fund" in line 2 of clause 20 (now clause 19) be omitted.

He said :

"My Lord, the next amendment also refers to this very clause which says that every road, building or other works constructed by a union board from union funds shall be vested in the union boards. I do not understand why you should fetter this clause with the restrictive clause, viz., 'from the union fund'. The union board may construct a work either by begging, borrowing or stealing, and why should you say, constructed by the union board from the union fund'? It may even happen that a private gentleman may grant a sum of money with the object of constructing a tank; there the work is constructed not from the union fund, but from some specific fund received for the purpose. Why should we fetter the hands of the union board by saying that that tank should be vested in case it is constructed from the union fund? I think the clause 'from the union fund' should be omitted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"I do not think, Sir, that the clause as it stands will give rise to any practical inconvenience, while the adoption of the amendment might possibly have that result. The Hon'ble Member has referred to the case of a work constructed out of a donation made by a private individual, but such a work will vest in the union board. It will do so because under clause 47 (now clause 46) the donation would be a miscellaneous receipt of the union board and part of the union fund, and the work so constructed would come within the meaning of this clause. But the possible inconvenience to which I refer is that if the district board took action under clause 35 (now clause 33) to make over to the union board the execution of any work within its area, it might well happen that, while the district board might want to make over to the union board a particular work and the union board might be perfectly willing to undertake it, yet neither the district board might want to make over the property, nor the union board want the responsibility of keeping it. Therefore, inconvenience might arise if we made the change which the Hon'ble Member suggests."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I am not much impressed with the arguments of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler nor the illustration he has put before the Council. If a man makes a donation for making a road, it may be taken as part of the union fund, but at the same time I think there is something to be said that certain cases would not be covered by the Bill as it now stands. Suppose I happen to be a resident of a union board and there is a road running from my ground to another part of the union and I want to make over this private road of mine to the union board, for it would be a great convenience to the public, then in that case the words of the Bill as they stand would rather go to show that it would not be vested in the union board, because it is not a road made from the union fund. I want to have this made clear, that if I make a gift of my private road to the union board and the union board takes it over because it would be a great boon to the public, it should vest in the union board. Certainly it is not made out of union funds, but it ought to vest in the union fund, therefore, I join with my hon'ble friend the mover in saying that properties made over to the union board should vest in them. I would not restrict it to the words 'made from the union fund'."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing further to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 56.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after the words "from the union fund" in line 2 of clause 20 (now clause 19) the words "or made over to the union board by the district board or local board" be inserted.

He said :

"My Lord, the clause as it stands now refers only to buildings and other works constructed by union boards, but we can imagine very well that the existing roads will be made by the district boards or the local boards to the union boards. The clause as it stands now does not deal with those roads. Therefore it is necessary that these words 'or made over to the union board, etc., should be inserted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, here again I do not think the amendment is necessary. Under clause 19 (now clause 18), the union board will have power to acquire or hold property, both movable and immovable. If, therefore, the district board or the local board do desire to make over any property to the union board, it will be open to them to do so, and the union board can accept it ; but I have already referred to clause 35 (now clause 33) under which it is quite possible for the district board to make over the execution of a work to the union board without wishing to vest such a work in them. Therefore it seems preferable to maintain the wording of the clause as it stands."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing further to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 57.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that for clause 22A (now clause 20) the following be substituted, namely :—

"22A. (1) The union board shall appoint such persons as it considers fit to be dafadars and chaukidars under this Act, whenever a vacancy or vacancies exist :

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; The President ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

Provided that if the union board fails within a reasonable time to make such appointments, the district magistrate shall make the requisite appointment or appointments to fill up the vacancy or vacancies.

(2) The union board shall have power to dismiss a dafadar or chaukidar :

Provided that a dismissed dafadar or chaukidar shall have a right of appeal to the district magistrate, whose orders shall be final."

He said :

"My Lord, this amendment is an important one and there is a question of principle involved in it. The principle advocated by this amendment is that the dafadars and chaukidars should be appointed by the board and the board should have power of dismissing its servants. In the Bill as it was first brought before the Council the power of appointing chaukidars and dafadars was vested in the district magistrate, but the Select Committee after reconsideration, considered it fit and proper to suggest that the board is to nominate a person for appointment as dafadar or chaukidar and the district magistrate shall, if satisfied with such nomination, appoint such nominee. This amendment aims at giving the full power of appointment to the board itself and the power of dismissal as well. The only provision added is that dismissed dafadars and chaukidars should have a right of appeal to the district magistrate. It is only fair that the union boards should have the right of appointing their own servants and they ought to have a good deal of control over dafadars and chaukidars who will be paid out of the funds of the union boards. If the power of their appointment or dismissal does not rest with the union boards they will have very little control over these dafadars and chaukidars. It is said that the district magistrate shall, if satisfied with the nomination of the union board, appoint such nominee : but in this case those people who have some experience of the rural areas and the working of the Chaukidari Act know that the district magistrate in this country practically means the circle officer or one of the police officers, inasmuch as the district magistrate will practically have no knowledge of the matter and will always abide by the decision of these officers. So what we want to do is to transfer the power from the circle officer to the union board. The powers of appointment, dismissal and punishment should vest with the members of the union board itself who will be primarily responsible for the working of the board and they ought to have some control over their own servants and employees."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I would like to have your Excellency's ruling as to whether these amendments Nos. 57 and 58 should be discussed together because they are almost identical."

The President said :—

"I think the two amendments are not quite identical ; they are slightly different in form. But it might perhaps be convenient to discuss the two at the same time. I can put the amendments separately after the end of the discussion."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"May I point out that there is an appreciable difference between amendments Nos. 57 and 58, in so far as No. 57 vests the residuary power of the union board in the district magistrate, whereas No. 58 vests the residuary power in the local board, which is a far-reaching change."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The President said :—

"In these circumstances, I think it will be better to take the discussion on each of the amendments separately."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment, as the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem has said, is one of some importance. It raises a very ancient controversy in this province—a controversy in which there have always been two schools of thought, but a controversy which has decided itself on the lines that are now in force as the result of practical experience of the contrary method. The issue is whether the chaukidars and dafadars are to be nominated by the union boards and appointed by the district magistrate, if satisfied with the nomination, which is what the Bill provides, or whether the right of appointment is to vest absolutely in the union board, leaving the magistrate only a right of intervention if they fail to appoint. Similarly, whether the right of dismissal should vest absolutely in the union board, leaving the district magistrate only the right of intervention on appeal. The Bill, as it stands, only enacts the existing position; in respect of dafadars the original Bill did propose a change which would have vested their appointment and punishment absolutely with the district magistrate—a change which could be advocated and justified : but on reconsideration, bearing in mind the fact that this is not primarily an Act to amend the chaukidari law, we thought it preferable to waive any proposals for change, and to adhere to the existing position, and I would like to emphasize the fact that the Bill merely provides for the continuance of the existing state of affairs.

I am afraid I must deal in some detail with this matter, especially as it is one of such long standing in Bengal; and I shall have occasion to read quotations from various past papers, partly because they put the matter clearly and succinctly, and partly because I would like to bring home to the Council that all these arguments that are used now are arguments which have been weighed and considered in the past, and in the light of those discussions the present procedure has been explicitly adopted. I will read first from the report of the District Administration Committee. They say—

'The question of the nature of the control which should be exercised over the village watch is one on which there has always been a great conflict of opinion in Bengal, for, while some would consider the chaukidars essentially village servants, as in Madras, Bombay and the Central Provinces, others would like to see them placed in greater subordination to the regular police, only the assessment and collection of the chaukidari tax being left in the hands of the panchayets. Others, again, would prefer that the chaukidars should be paid from provincial revenues, being made directly subordinate to the regular police and entirely emancipated from village influences. The policy of dual control, which has hitherto been adopted in Bengal, is in the nature of a compromise between the two extreme views, but the extent of the control exercised over the chaukidars by the panchayets and the police, respectively, has varied at different times and in different places. It is unnecessary for us to dwell at any length on the early history of this question. The theory that the village watch is a municipal institution was definitely adopted after much controversy in 1870, and Act VI of that year is based on the assumption that the chaukidar is purely a village servant, employed for the protection of the lives and property of the villagers and looking to the village community for the regular payment of the remuneration to which he is entitled. His chief duties under the Act, as they had been under Regulation XX of 1817, were to give prompt information to the police of all criminal attempts or occurences in the village, as well as of the movements of bad characters, and to arrest proclaimed offenders or persons taken in the act. He was also bound to assist the panchayet in the collection of the chaukidari tax. Watch and ward occupied a position of secondary importance. At first the appointment, punishment and dismissal of the chaukidars were left in the hands of the panchayets, but the tendency of later legislation was in the direction of strengthening the control of the Magistrate and police over the panchayets and the chaukidars; and, under Act I of 1892, the power of appointing, punishing and dismissing chaukidars, as well as of determining their numbers and fixing their salaries has been vested in the District Magistrate, who, with the sanction of the Commissioner, can delegate this power to any Subdivisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class or to the District Superintendent of Police.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President; Sir Henry Wheeler.

We need not follow the different steps that have since been taken from time to time to restore police influence in the villages and to secure closer control over the work of panchayats and chaukidars. The system of dual control has been accepted by the great majority of the witnesses, both official and non-official, whom we have examined

* * * * * * * *

"There are some who contend that the system of dual control over the chaukidars has failed in Bengal, and that it is useless to continue it, but this, to whatever extent it may be true, is due to the weakness and inefficiency of the panchayats and to the absence of any real effort in the past to improve their position and secure their co-operation, which is so essential to effective police work in the villages. Reform should begin with the panchayats, and we think that it would be unwise, now that it is proposed to make a real effort through the circle scheme to introduce an improved system of village administration, to do anything at the outset which would be likely to weaken the tie between the rural police and the community whom they serve. At the same time we recognise that it would be dangerous if anything were done to render police action in the villages less effective, especially in the Eastern Bengal districts, and to deprive the police of the assistance of the chaukidars."

That extract, Sir, summarises the position and emphasises the point that the situation in Bengal in this matter is a compromise: at one time greater powers were given to the panchayats in the matter of the appointment and dismissal of chaukidars; but in the light of experience, they were withdrawn by the amending Act of 1892. The experience since gained has shown that the dual system works fairly well, and it has not demonstrated the desirability of amending it, while it has also shown—as mentioned by the District Administration Committee in their report—the possible dangers of seeking an alteration.

The same point was also gone into at some length in the debates in the Bengal Council when the Act of 1892 was passed. These discussions too give some interesting facts about the theory of chaukidari administration in Bengal, and if I weary the Council with them now, it is partly with reference also to other amendments which are on the agenda paper, and which cannot be appreciated unless the position is fully understood. It is interesting too to note that the discussions of 1892 were largely in the hands of Sir Henry Cotton, and it cannot be said that Sir Henry Cotton was a man who was excessively in sympathy with police, as opposed to popular administration. In introducing this Act of 1892, Sir Henry Cotton said as follows :—

"The village watch of Bengal, as of all India, is one of the oldest institutions of the country connected with the village system itself, and the village watchman of ancient Hindu times is substantially the counterpart of the village watchman as he is recognised by existing legislation; that is to say, the village watchman is ordinarily a member of an hereditary thieving caste, and responsible for his behaviour to no one except to the village community by whom he is maintained. That was the constitution of the village watch in ancient Hindu times, and it is practically the constitution of the village watch at the present day. Under the Mogul administration there was some change effected. The character of the Mogul Government was eminently fiscal, and the village watchman, instead of being the village servant, became to a very large extent the servant of the zamindar, and that dual-position remained for a very long time under British rule, and still remains in all parts of the country where Act VI of 1870 has not been enforced. The object of Act VI of 1870 was to place the village watch everywhere under the control of the village organization."

After referring to this doctrine of the village chaukidar as the village servant, he goes on to say :—

"The Bill, I have now the honour to place before you, introduces a modification of this principle. It is my own view strongly, and it is the view of the present Government, that the police is a branch of the administration which ought to be brought into closer relations with the Government."

* * * * * * * *

"The present Bill is a slight step in this direction—not a very decisive step perhaps—for it does not pretend to be more than a very gradual and small measure, but it is a step in the direction of centralizing police administration, and of bringing the village watch much more than it now is under the immediate supervision of the District Magistrate who represents the Government in the muffassal."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

* * * * * * * *

"In Bengal we do not go so far as to desire that the village watch of this country shall altogether disappear, and we wish to adhere to the only sound element of the chaukidari system, viz., that of retaining the local knowledge of men resident in the village in which they are to be employed; but we do desire to modify it materially, and the direction this modification takes is by placing the village watch more under executive authority than it now is."

"At present the panchayat, which is in other words the representative of the village community, not only appoints the chaukidars, but has authority under the law to decide within specified limits how many chaukidars shall be employed and to fix their salaries. On these three main points the power and authority of the panchayat is curtailed by the present Bill. It is proposed to allow the panchayat to nominate, but the appointment of the village watch will rest in future with the District Magistrate. It is laid down also that the Magistrate and not the panchayat shall determine the number of chaukidars within specified limits. This is a proviso which experience has shown to be very necessary. The law authorises the panchayat now to fix the number of chaukidars, and in practice it has been found that they reduce the number, and the Magistrate has been obliged to interfere to maintain the minimum number of chaukidars prescribed by law. They have done so without any specific legal authority, but it is only in this way that the full number of chaukidars has been maintained. Under the present Bill, the Magistrate is vested with the power he has hitherto informally exercised. Similarly, it is proposed—and this is a point of at least equal importance—that the Magistrate shall fix the salary of the chaukidar. The salary is now fixed by the panchayat, and the tendency is to fix it at a rate so low as to be below the standard of efficiency."

In other words there was a certain position created by the Act of 1870, and after 20 years' experience of that system, during which it was enquired into by two committees—one presided over by Mr. Beames and the other by Mr. Munro—and in the light of the enquiries of these two committees and the failure of the system to which they drew attention, Sir Henry Cotton introduced the Act of 1892, and in connection with it he said :—

"Is it a fact that in those districts in Bengal in which that Act has been introduced and in which panchayats have worked, the chaukidari system has been more successful than it has been elsewhere? I am not aware that the experience of any Member of this Council will be able to answer that question in the affirmative. On the contrary, as far as the control of the chaukidar is concerned, as far as all police work is concerned, panchayats practically have no existence. They have done no good whatever, they have been of no use. But they have done one thing. There is no doubt that they have assessed and collected the chaukidari rate, and have paid the chaukidars within the villages where they exist. There is no doubt that the chaukidars where there is a panchayat are better paid than in other parts of Bengal where panchayats have not yet been legalised. That is true. As regards any other respect, police work proper, executive control, the panchayat has been useless, and that is the opinion of everyone with the one exception of Mr. Westmacott, who has enquired into the matter. In the very section of the Police Committee's report from which my hon'ble friend quoted just now, I find it stated :—'It will thus be seen that, though the law contemplates that the determination of the number of chaukidars shall be left to the panchayat, it has everywhere been found necessary, in the interest of the public, for the Magistrate to interfere to secure the proper performance of this duty by the panchayat.' If it is the deliberate verdict of the Police Committee that the panchayats have nowhere done their duty except when compelled to do it by the interference of the Magistrate, how can any member of this Council say that the institution of the panchayat for such purposes, namely, fixing the number and salary of the chaukidar has been a success? It is because it has been such a flagrant failure that the Committee was appointed by the Government, on whose recommendations radical modifications in the law, which the Local Government has more than once attempted to carry, but I regret to say have abandoned owing to a storm of prejudice and ignorance, are now proposed as being thoroughly necessary."

"Therefore, Sir, the point I would emphasise by these quotations is that the old system which this amendment seeks to restore was definitely condemned after 22 years' working and replaced by the existing system which the Bill perpetuates.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

Sir Henry Cotton's remarks constitute an authoritative pronouncement as to the failure of the system which the amendment would advocate, and they afford sufficient justification for adopting the line which we have done in the Bill, namely, that in this matter of the chaukidari administration we will not make any change in the existing practice. Whether such a change may come hereafter we cannot say. It will have been noticed from the extracts which I have read that constant reference is made to the inefficiency and failure of the old panchayets. We hope with these union boards to secure stronger and more efficient bodies, and it may so happen that if these bodies prove themselves efficient, it may be possible to modify the present practice in the matter of control over chaukidars. But whether this will happen I cannot say. It is a matter for the future, but all I do say is that, as matters stand at present, the considerations which I have adduced justify to my mind our doing what we propose to do, i.e., continuing the present practice without alteration, and I am not prepared to accept an amendment which puts us back to the Act of 1870, which after 22 years' experience was ultimately condemned."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, I am afraid that the panchayeti system, even on the high authority of Sir Henry Cotton, which is 22 years old, will not now avail. Things have been moving fast in this country, as all over the world, and in order to have energetic action we are going to have a new body altogether And if you want them to be efficient and do effective work you must give them real power. If they are merely to send up the names of chaukidars and dafadars and if the District Magistrate is to appoint them, I think that will be taking away much of that which would go to make them useful bodies. There may be some need for supervision; but we must not forget that it is not panchayets that we are dealing with—but altogether a different thing. The change has become necessary as it is felt that the body that was administering that important part of village policing was not quite up to the mark. Therefore, we are bringing in a better body of men in charge of this duty and other duties. It would be hardly proper and right to take away from them the most important part of the duty and to expect them to look after the police work up to the required standard. I should think that as the amendment seeks to impose on them the power of appointing their own servants as a beginning, Government should very carefully consider the situation before throwing it out."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have followed with great interest the long and luminous speech of Sir Henry Wheeler and, following the last speaker Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, I should say that notwithstanding the signs of progress that we see on all sides, Government seem to be, at least in this matter, as unprogressive as can be imagined. In 1870 an Act was passed enabling Village Committees to appoint chaukidars: in 1892 owing to certain reports that were made by Sir James Munro, Inspector-General of Police, and Mr. John Beames who was, I believe, subsequently a Commissioner of a Division, Government thought fit to take away that power by the Act of 1892 and vested it in the District Magistrate. That was in 1892, and this is, my Lord, 1919. I do not know, my Lord, what tremendous change has been made in the Government, in the views of the responsible authorities over our affairs and in the administration of the country; well nigh 27 years have passed away since the Act of 1892 was passed. The name of Sir Henry Cotton was conjured up to silence the critics, because Sir Henry Cotton was known to be in favour of progressive government in this country. But it must not be forgotten—and, I believe, the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler will himself admit—that the position of a responsible officer of Government is quite different from the position of the gentleman divested of the position which he officially occupied at the time. Perhaps I may not be mistaken if I say that the views of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler as a Member of the Executive Council of your Government would be greatly different from those of Sir Henry Wheeler in his retirement—whether living amongst us in this country or in his own home. Therefore, I do not think that the views of Sir Henry Cotton as expressed in his official capacity and uttered some 29 years ago need be taken much into consideration. My Lord, I was reading the opinion of Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur, a very calm, moderate and experienced gentleman—a gentleman who has even in his old age taken the greatest interest in the local affairs of his country. He said : " It is a shadowy measure of self-Government : it is far better that such a measure should be withdrawn rather than presented to the people." My Lord, great changes have been made and the people have now progressed beyond our conception during the last 27 years, and I think that time has come when they should be trusted to appoint chaukidars. I believe the pay of these chaukidars ranges from Rs. 4 to Rs. 6 a month and that of dafadars from Rs. 8 to Rs. 10 and if there is any abuse of power, I am sure the various provisions in this Bill would be found to be ample safeguards.

" You have got ample power under the clauses of this Bill and therefore I do not think there need be any apprehension on this score. You are vesting the people with a modicum of self-Government, but the people cannot appoint a chaukidar on Rs. 4 a month without the sanction of the Circle Officer—a Sub-Deputy Collector—to whom this function will be delegated by the District Magistrate under the schedule of this Act. That will make the union boards merely jo-hukum bodies to the Police Superintendent or the Circle Officer. I appeal to your Excellency, in view of the impending constitutional reforms, to make these small rural bodies realize that they have some semblance of power. And unless they are allowed to realize this they will always remain jo-hukum bodies to the authorities. These bodies will be composed of timid muffassal people and they will never abuse their power. If this simple power is not given to them, they will not venture to go against the district magistrate. They will tremble in their shoes before him and the police superintendent and the Circle Officer as if their authorities are paramount. Their influence will be demoralizing to the Boards if they are made to realize that under the British Government they cannot appoint half-a-dozen chaukidars on Rs. 4 or Rs. 6 a month."

" My Lord, I have to say a few words in this connection. If the panchayat or the union board comes to know that they cannot appoint a chaukidar and that the chaukidar will be under the supervision of the Police Superintendent or the District Magistrate, the union board will lose its prestige. My Lord, this is an important point and many persons of light and leading want to have the union board independent of the District Magistrate. It was for this reason that I was advocating that men possessing educational qualifications ought to come into the board, and if they joined the board there would be no necessity of the interference be the district magistrate. Your Excellency will remember the opening speech of Lord Sinha delivered at the time of the introduction of this Bill, and he brought to the notice of the Council that there would not be any undue interference by the police. If there be any undue influence on the part of the police, then I do not think, my Lord, that the prosperity of the union boards can ever be hoped for. I beg respectfully to submit that although it may be argued that District Magistrates ought to have some influence over the doings of the union boards, at the same time, it must be conceded that the boards should not be unduly interfered with their work by the District Magistrate. If there be interference, there is no necessity for self-government.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry the amendment as moved was not acceptable to the Hon'ble Member in charge. I am at present not concerned with the progress but the success of the union boards. And in order to make the union boards successful, it is necessary to vest them with a certain semblance of power which will develop in them a certain sense of responsibility. A good deal of literature has been read out and opinions have been quoted—opinions expressed so far back as 1892. But since 1892 much water has flown under the Howrah Bridge and many changes have taken place. The opinions of the late Sir Henry Cotton or the Decentralization Commission about the panchayats can have no bearing on this subject, as those panchayats have no resemblance with the union boards to be formed under this Bill. There will be quite different bodies as has been stated by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler only this morning, in connection with another amendment. The members of the panchayats as also the President are themselves the nominees of the District Magistrate and it matters very little whether the chaukidars or dafadars are nominated by the one or the other. But the union boards will be vested with much more power, and they will have a larger variety of work to perform than the collection of the chaukidari tax and the distribution of the salaries of dafadars and chaukidars. The present panchayati work is very simple—to realize the tax, to send it over for payment to the chaukidars and to submit certain reports and figures when asked upon to do so by the District Officer or the Police Superintendent. But the union boards will have much larger powers and if they are not vested with the power of appointing their own servants— or these chaukidars although they may be quasi-policemen or regular policemen, they will be servants of the union boards all the same, as they will not only be paid by them but also controlled by them—then they will find considerable difficulty in carrying on their work with the aid of men whom they have no power to appoint. It has been said that the panchayats were vested with this power, but the arrangement has proved a failure. If the panchayats who were appointed by nomination and the panchayats formed under a system introduced 30 or 40 years back were a failure that is no reason why their successors, the members of the union boards who are to be elected under this Bill, should not be vested with this small power. Failure and success are not the only tests by which we should be governed in the matter of administration. It must be admitted that in the matter of industrial development of the country or in the matter of sanitary improvement the Government of India and the Local Governments have not proved so successful, but nobody suggests that these departments should be taken charge of by the Secretary of State and that the Imperial and Local Governments should not be allowed to be in charge of them. I submit that in order to develop a sense of responsibility in them these union boards should be vested with some power which is absolutely necessary in order to make them responsible bodies. Otherwise, there will be only village self-Government in name without any responsibility. I hope and trust that your Excellency's Government will accept the amendment. Of course, there must be general supervision by the authorities, but that must be from outside and must be consistent with the principle of self-Government."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"May I add a word, in the hope that it will help to bring us down from the realms of fancy to those of fact. We have heard from the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem a good deal about the desirability of giving these union boards even a semblance of power. The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur has abjured us not to take all power from the union boards so that they will stand trembling before the circle officer or the sub-divisional officer. But what are the facts in regard to this particular matter of appointing chaukidars ? At present, and under the law as we propose it, the nomination of chaukidars rests with the union board. They submit their nomination to the District Magistrate, and if the District Magistrate is satisfied that the nominee is suitable, he appoints him ; it is only on the failure to nominate that the District Magistrate takes the place of the union board. Surely that allows a considerable power of appointment to the union board, and it can scarcely be said that they have no hand in the appointment of chaukidars. They have the nomination of the chaukidar in their hands. The only control that the Bill mentions is that the District Magistrate is allowed to satisfy himself that the union board nominee is a suitable nominee, and I have endeavoured to point out that it is in the light of past experience that this curious dual position which we have in Bengal has resulted, under which a modicum of control is retained. The Bill now before us, in its main aspects, is a Municipal Bill, and the more important functions of the union board will be those connected with the improvement of the villages. It so happens that this chaukidari side has been grafted on to the Bill because it was thought desirable to create one single authoritative village body in place of the old chaukidari panchayats and the local self-Government union committees. In that way the chaukidari administration has been brought in, but it is not the primary object of the Bill, and I venture to say that it will prejudice the success of local self-Government if we embroil these village bodies in this controversial matter of the control over chaukidars.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

"The only other point to which I would refer is in answer both to the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari and the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem in the criticism that they have made against my remarks, namely, that I am seeking to support the position of the present day by arguments of 20 years ago, since when the position has changed materially. In answer to that, may I read another extract from the report of the District Administration Committee which made its enquiries in 1913-14 ? It is not the case that Government have sat still in this matter ; there have always been two schools of thought with regard to chaukidars, and in the report of the Police Commission, the village side of the chaukidar's functions was brought into prominence, following which special inquiries were conducted by Mr. Savage who was a strong advocate on that side. His main idea was to secure a better class of men for the village panchayat—men better fitted to be entrusted with more supervision over the chaukidars. I happened to take on the inquiry after him, and during the cold weather of 1905-06 I toured throughout the entire province, looking into the administration. Therefore, in a small way, I also have seen something of the true facts. As a result of Mr. Savage's inquiries more powers were given in certain villages to the panchayats over the chaukidars, and I had better read the report of the District Administration Committee as to the results. They said :—

"The Indian Police Commission of 1902-03 deplored the increasing tendency to departmentalise the rural police ; and, the president system, introduced by Mr. Savage two years later, was designed with the object of freeing the panchayats from police influence and of emphasising the essential character of the chaukidar as a village servant, while leaving him subject to the control of the Magistrate and the police in regard to his police duties. The success of the system depended on the willing co-operation of the panchayats, and it failed because the necessary supervision was never forthcoming. For the next few years the annual reports on the working of the police in Bengal and in Eastern Bengal and Assam contain references to the injurious effects of the system on police administration, especially in the eastern districts ; and many officers complained that it had merely transferred the control over the chaukidars from one authority to another less capable of exercising it, with a very distinct loss of knowledge and efficiency on the part of the police."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

"That, Sir, is an up-to-date argument in favour of my contention that we should maintain the law as it is, and not seek at this moment to make a change the consequences of which might be serious and undesirable."

A division was then taken with the following result :—

AMENDMENT No. 58.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for clause 22A (now clause 20) the following be substituted, namely :—

"22A (1) The union board shall appoint such person as it considers fit to be a dafadar under this Act, and shall, when a vacancy exists, appoint a person to be a chaukidar under this Act :

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Provided that, if the union board fails within a reasonable time to appoint a dafadar or a chaukidar, the local board shall make the appointment.

(2) The union board may dismiss any dafadar or chaukidar :

Provided that a dismissed dafadar or chaukidar shall have the right to appeal against the order of dismissal to the local board."

He said :—

"My Lord, as has been very justly remarked by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler with reference to the previous amendment this is a very important matter, and I propose to give my reason in respect of this amendment at some length. The Indian Police Commission of 1902-03, very truely observed that the great defects in the efforts made in all the provinces of India to establish a sound system of village police have been their want of clearly defined principle and their spasmodic nature. Before, therefore, discussing the several provisions of the Bill regarding the dafadars and chaukidars, it is essentially necessary to formulate clearly the policy and principle upon which the village police system should be based. The different sections deal with matters of detail. Once the fundamental principle is decided, there will be no difficulty about the details. Much misconception and controversy will disappear if we hold steadfastly to that principle. The initial question is—What is the object of this institution? What is their real function? Whose servants are they? Are they the servants of the villagers or of the regular police? What is their position with respect to the villagers on one side and the regular police on the other?

"These questions, though very important, are not of first impression. In fact, they are almost as old as the British Empire in India. I, therefore, propose to review the history of the village police system in this country, for I believe that this study will help us in all the controversies which have now clustered round the important question of village police. Originally, the village police were subject to the control of the zemindars. But in 1793, the village watchmen were (by section 13 of Regulation XXII of that year) declared subject to the orders of the newly appointed darogas and became practically the servants of the regular police. But the system did not work well, and a committee was appointed to consider the question of the reform of the village police. The very important and interesting question arose whether the village police was a municipal institution or the lowest rung of the ladder of the regular police. The principle that the village watch is a municipal institution was definitely adopted after much controversy and the result was the Chaukidari Act, 1870. This Act was based on the principle that the chaukidar was purely a village servant. The appointment, punishment and dismissal of the chaukidars were placed in the hands of the panchayats. In fact, this Act was framed in a spirit of entire trust in the village community. But although the municipal character of the rural police was recognised as a matter of theory, the attempt to develop a sound system of village police was marred by certain unsuitable provisions of the law—provisions which were not in keeping with the underlying principle of the Act. But what is more regrettable, a fair trial was not given to the system inaugurated by Act VI of 1870. It was not worked with anything like enthusiasm by the district officers The Police Commission of 1902-03 attributed the failure of the panchayat system to this lack of interest. There was not only indifference and apathy but positive antipathy. In 1881, Mr. Munro, C.B. (then Inspector-General of Police) suggested the appointment of a commission to reconsider the whole question of village police. The recommendation of this commission, submitted in 1883, led to certain amendments of the law and finally to the passing of Act I of 1892. This Act reversed the principle underlying its predecessor that the control of the village police was to rest with the villagers. The keynote of this retrograde legislation is to be found in the words of the member in charge who remarked 'the inhabitants of a village have no claim to a municipal administration in any respect, still less have they any claim to control the police.'

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

"The power of appointing the chaukidars, punishing them, determining their number and fixing their salary was transferred from the panchayat to the District Magistrate who invariably delegated these powers to the Superintendent of Police. This was reaction with vengeance and the result was that the chaukidar again became a servant of the police. Ten years after, the question came up again before the Police Commission who strongly condemned the tendency to departmentalize the rural police. They reaffirmed the old municipal theory that the village watchman ought to be a village servant, subordinate to the members of the village council and not to the regular police. The Commission observed :—

'The Commission desire to emphasise their conviction that the village police ought not to be separated from the village organisation and placed under the regular police. They desire to see, not a body of low-paid stipendiaries or subordinate police scattered over the country, but the utilisation of the village agency itself. The village is the unit of administration. Improved administration lies in teaching the village communities to take an active interest in their own affairs. * * * * The Commission consider it to be of vital importance to emphasise the responsibility of the village headmen, and to hold the village officer responsible rather as the subordinate of the village headman and his servant for the performance of public functions. To place the village police officer under the control of the station-house officer would be to subvert the system in its essential principle and often to place the dregs of the people over the respectable classes. The village watchman would become the menial servant of the police and probably become unscrupulous in his methods. He would work apart from, and often against, the village head. The Commission also remarked that the system introduced by Act I of 1892 was certainly not a system of village police as generally understood. It is more of the nature of a low-paid regular constabulary.'

"They condemned the transfer of control over the chowkidars from the panchayats to the District Magistrate as a most serious defect of the system. These principles were accepted by the Government of India without any reservation in paragraph 9 of Resolution No. 248-259, dated 21st March 1905-on the Commissioners' Report. The Government of Bengal as well as the late Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam also expressed their entire concurrence with the views of the Commission. They were adopted by the other provinces also.

"The recommendations of the Police Commission were not absolutely fruitless. For in 1904 Mr. Savage was placed on special duty and introduced the president system which sought to free the panchayats from police influence and emphasised the essential character of the chaukidar as a village servant. But the advance really made was more illusory than real ; for we find that although the chaukidars were required to parade before the president at stated intervals, the regular parades at the thana were not dispensed with. Even this slight advance was resented by the police. What is more regrettable is that a hue and cry was raised against this modicum of reform in more responsible quarters. For the next few years the annual reports on the working of the police in Bengal emphasised the injurious effects of the president system on police administration and we are told that the influence of police in the villages was seriously weakened. To us it comes like a startling, restartling revelation that the influence and power of police ever weakened at any time after 1904. The agitation of the police and their supporters was, however, too powerful for the Government to resist. It will not serve any useful purpose to discuss the different steps that have since been taken from time to time to restore police influence in the villages and secure closer control over the work of the panchayets and the chaukidars. Suffice it to say that the hand of the clock was given a set-back and some of the functions, including the holding of parades of chaukidars, had to be transferred from the president to the thana police. Thus, the considered verdict of the Police Commission and the Government of India strongly condemning the old plea for departmentalizing the rural police was quietly brushed aside with the result that the chaukidars to-day are essentially police servants. This is a typical case illustrating our old complaint that the wise and statesman-like decisions of the Government are not infrequently rendered nugatory by people whose narrow and personal interests and whose love of power make them blind to the interests of the people and State. This and this alone can explain why the police have now a voice in the appointment of chaukidars, why ordinary and pay parades of the chaukidars are held at the thana and why the dafadar has been made a police officer and placed entirely under the superintendence of the police, the verdict of the Police Commission notwithstanding. The system of dual-control is based on a vicious principle. It is an elementary and immutable truth that one cannot serve two masters. The salaries and cost of equipments of chaukidars and dafadars will be paid by the villagers by local and compulsory taxation and shall be the first charge upon the union fund. It is, therefore, only just and proper that they should be essentially and completely village servants appointed by the union board, dismissed by the union board and punished by the union board. There is something very incongruous and fantastic in the idea that the villagers shall pay the salaries but will not have the power to appoint or dismiss or punish. Very important municipal, judicial and executive powers are now proposed to be conferred upon the union board. These are duties which they cannot perform without the loyal assistance of the dafadars and chaukidars. Clause 28A (now clause 26), therefore, has had to provide that the union board shall exercise a general control over the dafadars and chaukidars. But it passes our comprehension how the union board can exercise an effectual control over the dafadar and chaukidar unless the board is invested with the powers of appointment, dismissal and punishment. The remarks of the District Magistrate of Hooghly in this connection are very pertinent. He says 'practical experience has shown that the dafadars do not very often obey the chaukidari panchayats properly, as the latter have no power of punishment'. The expression 'general control' in clause 28A (now clause 26), may mean anything or nothing. We have got the said provision in section 41 of the Chaukidari Act, giving a general control over the chaukidars to the panchayet. But it is an admitted fact that they exercise no control over them. The system of dual-control was condemned even when the activities of the panchayet were of a very limited and restricted character. The objections to departmentalizing the rural police must, therefore, be very much stronger now, in view of the enlarged powers and extended activities of the village community.

The chaukidars are essentially village servants in Madras, Bombay and the Central Provinces. It is only in Bengal that there is a keen feeling that the dafadar and chaukidar should be placed in subordination to the police. Now the system of dual-control as it obtains in Bengal is only an ill-assorted compromise between the two conflicting schools of thought.

There is a consensus of opinion both official and non-official that the system of dual-control has been given a trial for a long time and that it has failed. Why then perpetuate the old blunder? What should be the position of the village watch in their relations to the village community on the one hand and to the regular police on the other? Let us face the problem manfully, let us make up our minds once and for all on this troublesome question, let us decide this question this way or that way, let us not fight shy of this problem,

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

let us give our verdict either in favour of the union board or in favour of the police, let us by all means avoid legislation of an indecisive and half-hearted character. Allow me to quote the opinion of the District Magistrate of Maldah: * * * 'clause 24 seems to me positively a retrograde step. Under section 35 of the Chaukidari Act, both dafadar and chaukidar are to be nominated by the panchayet and, if satisfied with such nomination, the District Magistrate may appoint them. According to the recent Chaukidari Manual, the chaukidars are almost entirely controlled by the police. The new Bill appears to continue this complete police control of the chaukidars * * *'. In order to ascertain whether the nominee for chaukidar is satisfactory, the Magistrate will naturally turn to the report of the local Sub-inspector. Similarly, the power of dismissal and punishment rests with the District Magistrate who will naturally base his order on police reports. Yet clause 22 (1) (a) states that the 'village committee shall exercise a general control over dafadars and chaukidars of the village'. How they will be able to exercise any control is hardly apparent. The proposal is to have a double-control, but it is certain if these provisions become law, there will be only one control, and that by the police. From the police point of view it is excellent, but it is doubtful whether it will help to evolve the idea of village self-government for which the Bill is intended."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment, in one aspect, is precisely the same as that which has just been moved and negatived and, on that aspect, I propose to say little. Like the last amendment it is now proposed that, in place of the right of nomination which they now possess, the union boards should be given the absolute right of appointment of dafadars and chaukidars; and in place of the right of dismissal which, subject to the approval of the District Magistrate, they now possess, they should be given an absolute right of dismissal. In the course of my reply to the previous amendment, I pointed out my objections to such a change, and those objections hold good in this case also. I do not, therefore, repeat them. But in one respect this amendment differs substantially from its predecessor, inasmuch as the latter proposed that, apart from these changes, the residuary powers of the union boards should remain, as now, with the District Magistrate. But this amendment goes further and says that the residuary powers should vest in the local boards, while the chaukidars should have a right of appeal against dismissal not to the District Magistrate but to the local board.

The question of chaukidari administration in Bengal, as I have said, is an ancient controversy about which there have been always two opinions, namely, as to what extent the chaukidar should be regarded as a village servant, and to what extent, in the interests of efficient administration, the District Magistrate and the police should be given control over him. On these two lines, the controversy has swayed from side to side during many years; but it has never been alleged in the course of that controversy, nor is it arguable on any historical basis, that the local board should come into the system. The local board is a municipal body which is appointed in connection with local self-government to perform certain municipal functions. It was not created for the purpose of supervision over chaukidars; it has no knowledge of the conditions under which chaukidars work, and, to my mind, it is in all respects unfitted to exercise these functions which the amendment seeks to thrust upon it. Therefore, this amendment is even less acceptable than its predecessor."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, so far as the questions of appointment, dismissal and punishment are concerned, there has been nothing said by Sir Henry Wheeler. Of course, he has given his view of the matter in replying to the preceding amendment. I shall only draw your Excellency's attention and of the Members of the Council to the fact that throughout my speech I did not rely upon my own views in the matter. I tried to show that from 1870 there was a lapse till 1892. Then again the Police Commission sat ; and then we come to the District Administration Committee. I have already stated the opinions of the Government of India and the Government of Bengal, and it has been universally held that full control ought to rest with the union board. Now there has been nothing said with regard to that portion of my speech. As regards this proviso that if the union board fails to appoint, the local board shall make the appointment, historically there is no precedent for it and I confess that. But the whole question is who should appoint in the first instance—whether the board or the police or the Magistrate—that is the initial question. Then the further question arises if the union board fails to make the appointment within a reasonable time, whether it is the local board, or the Superintendent of Police or the Circle Officer should appoint. There my contention is this that in view of the provisions of the Bill and the underlying principle of this enactment, the supervision of the union board should be entrusted to the district board and not to the local board. That being a reasonable view about that side of the question as to who should supervise, it follows as a matter of course that it is the local board who should make the appointment. I have already submitted that various duties have now been given to the union boards and these are duties which the union boards cannot possibly perform without the aid of chaukidars and dafadars. The duties are not merely police duties, but also municipal duties and so on. Therefore, under the new law the power should be given to the local board to appoint when the union board fails to make the appointment within a reasonable time."

The President ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 59.

The President said :—

" Motion No. 59 is substantially the same as No. 57 which has already been decided by the Council.

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that in clause 22A (now clause 20)—

(a) for the word " nominate " in line 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 22A the word " appoint " be substituted. and the words " and the District Magistrate shall, if satisfied with such nomination, appoint such nominee " in lines 3, 4 and 5 of the same sub-clause be omitted ; and

(b) for the word " nominate " in line 2 of the proviso to that sub-clause the word " appoint " be substituted, and the words " or, if the District Magistrate is not satisfied with such nomination " in lines 3 and 4 of the same proviso be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 60.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem had the following motion in his name— That the words " the District Magistrate or " in line 1 of sub-clause (2) of clause 22A (now clause 20) be omitted. and for the word " with " in line 2 of the same sub-clause the words " subject to " be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

He said :—

"My Lord, it is only a small change which simply gives the power of dismissal to the union board subject to the sanction of the District Magistrate and makes the chaukidar directly subordinate to the union board. But this amendment will have absolutely no force when the others have been rejected. I, therefore, ask your Excellency's permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 61.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I do not wish to move the next amendment which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Maulvi A K. Fazl-ul-Haq. The motion was as follows :—

Clause 23.

If motion No. 57 be not carried, the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that the words 'District Magistrate after consideration of the views of the' in lines 4 and 5 of sub-clause (1) of clause 23 (now clause 21) be omitted.

No other member being willing to move the motion, it was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 62.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "District Magistrate" in lines 4 and 5 of sub-clause (1) of clause 23 now clause 21 the words "district board" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I do not wish to make any remarks. It is just another aspect of the old question as to supervision and control by the district board over the establishment of dafadars and chaukidars."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I cannot commend the acceptance of this amendment to the Council, as it seeks to make a still more revolutionary and objectionable change. Clause 23 (now clause 21) of the Bill deals with the determination of he numbers and salaries of dafadars and chaukidars, together with the nature and cost of their equipment, and it vests the decision of these questions in the District Magistrate after consideration of the views of the union board. I have briefly indicated how these powers came to be placed in the hands of the District Magistrate after they had been exercised by the old panchayats, and it was found that that system had proved unsatisfactory. But the district board has never exercised these powers, and, as I have pointed out with reference to an analogous amendment in connection with the local board, the district board is unfitted to exercise these chaukidari powers, as it does not know anything about the conditions regulating the duties of dafadars and chaukidars, and no arguments can be adduced from history justifying the grant to it of powers over them."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing further to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 63.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"I do not think it is any good moving this amendment. I, therefore, ask your Excellency's permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The motion was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that for the words "union board" in lines 2 and 3 of sub-clause (2) of clause 23 (now clause 21) the words "local Government" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 64.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after sub-clause (2) of clause 23 (now clause 21) the following be added, namely :—

"(3) The dafadar and chaukidar shall be the servants of, and entirely subordinate to, the union board, and shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be prescribed by this Act, under the direct control of the union board."

He said :—

"My Lord, the reason why I move this amendment is to be found in the following extract from paragraph 109 of the Report of the District Administration Committee :—

'In Bengal the Legislature had deliberately decided that in matters of watch and ward the chaukidars are to be subject to the orders of the panchayats, a provision which, we fear, is frequently overlooked, and we think that it is time for the position to be more clearly defined in this respect, for it is interpreted in different ways in different places.'

"So, my Lord, this amendment has got the support of the recommendations of the District Administration Committee."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, after what Sir Henry Wheeler has said in regard to previous amendments regarding the power of appointment of dafadars and chaukidars, I do not think it is necessary for me to explain at length why Government are unable to accept this amendment. It is perfectly true, as the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta has said, that the District Administration Committee expressed or endorsed the view that in matters of watch and ward the chaukidars should be subject to the orders of panchayats, but this amendment goes very much further than that. It says that dafadars and chaukidars shall be the servants of, and entirely subordinate to, the union board, and shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be prescribed by this Act, under the direct control of the union board. The effect of this amendment would be to withdraw the dafadars and chaukidars entirely from the control of the district authorities. I would remind the Council that we have in this Presidency outside Calcutta a regular police force of only 20,000 men to a population of 45 millions. The proportion of police to population is very much less than in other provinces, and this may be one of the reasons for the fact that in other provinces the village police are village servants and have little to do with the regular police. In Bengal we can only carry on with our small police force by linking the village police closely to the regular police. If the control of the executive authorities in the district over the rural police were removed it would be necessary to add very largely to the strength of the regular police. I do not know whether this Council would regard that change with approval. I would point out too that we have gone a very long way in entrusting these union boards with the powers which are in the Bill. It is true in a sense that we are only reproducing the provisions of the existing Act in regard to the appointment of chaukidars and dafadars, but from a practical point of view we are going a good deal further. The dafadars and chaukidars are at present nominated by the panchayats, but the panchayats in their turn are usually nominated by the District Magistrate. Now, we are giving the same powers to a body which will be almost entirely elected, and over which the District Magistrate will have much less control than he has over the existing panchayats. I say, therefore, that we have gone a long way in giving powers over the village police to the union boards, and Government are not prepared to go as far as is suggested in this amendment, the effect of which would be to give union boards entire control over the village police and to make the village police useless to the district authorities."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I think this amendment is opposed on the ground that the result would be that the powers of the district authorities over the chaukidars will be entirely lost.

"I submit that this is not a correct view of the position, because even in these amendments it is laid down that they shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be prescribed by this Act, and this Act prescribes various duties which are required of them by the District Magistrate and the other authorities. The only thing that will result from this amendment is this—that it will perform the duties under the direct control of the union board. That makes the only difference. They will certainly be under the indirect control of the authorities, because they will have to perform the duties prescribed by this Act, only the immediate master will be the union board, and through the union board they will serve the district authorities."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 65.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that at the end of clause 23 (now clause 21) the following be added, namely :—

> "Provided that half the amount of the total sum on account of the salaries of dafadars and chaukidars and the cost of their equipment referred to in sub-section (2) shall be contributed to the union board by the local Government before the end of each financial year, either in one or more instalments, as the local Government think fit."

He said :—

"My Lord, clause 23 (now clause 21) provides the number of dafadars and chaukidars. In this Act it is provided that the equipment and salaries of the chaukidars and dafadars are to be paid by the union board, but I believe the provisions of Act VI of 1870 were not so. In that Act only salaries are mentioned; there is nothing about equipment. This is an innovation in this Bill. Under the Chaukidari Act it was provided that there should be a chaukidar for a certain number of houses; that provision has been omitted in this Bill, but owing to the multifarious duties of dafadars and chaukidars, it is probable that their number will be increased. In clause 38 (now clause 37), it is provided that the union board shall impose a certain amount on the villagers to meet the salaries and equipment of dafadars and chaukidars. But in this clause it is stated that the equipment and salaries shall be paid by the union board. Under the circumstances I propose that at the end of clause 23 (now clause 21), the proviso which I have suggested may be added. Under clause 38 (now clause 37) it is discretionary, but here an additional charge is going to be imposed and it is natural that Government should contribute a definite sum and we should not depend upon the discretionary power of Government, but that they should undertake to pay a certain proportion. In that view I have suggested this proviso, and I hope it will be accepted."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, at present, as is known to the Council, the cost of chaukidars and their equipment is borne by the chaukidari panchayets, and in future it will continue to be so borne by the union boards, under the scheme of the Bill. The Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq had an amendment—No. 63—which would have thrown the whole of this cost upon the local Government, but the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem has just told us that he was not prepared to support such a proposal. The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri, however, is bolder, and he is willing to put forward that proposal to the extent of one-half, which, he says, the local Government should pay. It is not a new idea that Government should thus intervene. May I, therefore, read one or two objections that have been taken to it? We will go back to the District Administration Committee which made the following remarks :—

"Some witnesses have advocated the payment of the chaukidars from provincial revenues, the proceeds of the present chaukidari tax being diverted to purely village purposes, such as sanitation and the improvement of communications and water-supply. The proposal is an attractive one, but, in the present state of provincial finances it is unlikely that it would be seriously entertained. The cost of the rural police force in Bengal amounts to approximately 60 lakhs of rupees annually, or nearly as much as the total of the road and public works cess combined; and it is certain that, if the tax were abolished and the responsibility for the payment of the chaukidars assumed by Government, there would be an immediate agitation for an all-round enhancement of the rates of pay, which are admittedly low everywhere and in some places inadequate. It would be unwise to abolish the only existing form of local rating, especially as it has been accepted by the people and there is no agitation for its abolition, and any attempt to replace it by any other corresponding impost for a different purpose would, it is certain, be very difficult to carry through. * * * * The chaukidari tax has the great advantage of being assessed and collected by the people themselves without any intervention on the part of Government, while its elasticity renders it easily adaptable to self-taxation in order to meet the requirements of the village in other directions, such as the improvement of sanitation, communications and water-supply.'

So the District Administration Committee recognized certain obvious objections owing to the large sum of money involved, and even if the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri's proposal is accepted, it would run to about 30 lakhs of rupees, although that sum would at once increase, because as soon as Government took over the responsibility, they would be asked to pay the chaukidars more. But if Government were to assume this liability, they must obviously find the money somewhere. Now, what does Mr. Cotton say as to where that money is to come from if we are to accept this charge, and his remarks are of particular interest to my zamindar friends on this Council. He said in the course of a debate on the Act of 1892 on the occasion of a similar proposal—

'If this Act were introduced into all villages in Bengal, the total of the chaukidari rate to be collected would amount to a sum of not less than 60 lakhs of rupees. * * * * * * This is a large sum of money which must be realized by some means, and the Government has considered how it can best be realized. Shall we continue the practice existing of collecting the rate, or shall we devise any other means? We considered what is done in other provinces. Now, what is done in the North-West Provinces? There the chaukidars are paid out of a rate which is levied on the zamindars for the purpose of paying for local objects—for communications, for dispensaries and many other purposes—and the law expressly says the village police are to be paid from it. A sum equivalent to 10 per cent. on the land revenue paid by the zamindar is the rate levied for such purposes in temporarily-settled districts, and that constitutes the source from which the

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Sir Henry Wheeler.

chaukidar is paid. In Burma a ten per cent. rate is levied in the same way, and a portion of it is devoted to the payment of the village police. In Madras the village police are paid on a similar principle. There a cess is levied of one anna on the rupee of the revenue paid, and that amount is applied to the remuneration of the village servants employed both in revenue and police duties. Well, that is the alternative which presented itself to this Government. We might impose the additional cess which exists in other provinces and is imposed on the land. Indeed, a similar proposal was actually made in 1851, and was introduced into the Council of the Government of India, but in consequence of the storm of opposition which was raised by the zamindars of the province the Bill was withdrawn. Now the Government is of opinion that that method is open to grave objection, and we thought it very unlikely that the Members of this Council would be willing to agree to the principle that the whole of the expenditure needed for the payment of chaukidars should be borne by the landed interest. At present the chaukidari rate is borne by all classes of the community within the village and apportioned upon the residents with reference to their position and their comparative wealth; each man, except the very poor, pays a small quota; every house pays something. Well we thought it better that the tax should be continued to be realized in that way than that the people at large should be relieved from this payment, and that the whole burden should be borne by the landed interest.'

In other words, if we were to accept this amendment, we must cast about to find the money. The obvious method of finding the money is a zamindari rate, and I have just mentioned the fate of that proposal when it was mooted before.

Another consequence would follow from the acceptance of this charge. The greater the extent to which the liability for the payment of the village watch is assumed by Government, the greater the extent to which the village aspect of chaukidari administration will disappear. Obviously, the claim of the village and of the village panchayet to control the chaukidar rests largely on the fact that the latter is paid from the chaukidari assessment. If in future his pay is to be met by Government, obviously the tendency will be more and more for the chaukidar to become part of the regular police force. As regards such a consequence, I may read an extract from the speech of the Hon'ble Babu Gonesh Chunder Chunder in the course of the debate on the Bill of 1892; he observed :—

'In the year 1866 Mr. D. J. Mc'Neile was appointed special officer to investigate the subject de novo. He proposed the entire abolition of the village watch, and the appointment in its place of a body of policemen to be selected and appointed by the executive authorities, the entire force being in direct subordination to the regular police. This was strenuously opposed by the native community, and the grounds upon which they opposed it were these :—first, that the change proposed was a revolution and not a reform; secondly, that the absence of such a link as the village police between the regular police and the people would always work unsatisfactorily; and, thirdly, that it was contrary to the wishes of the native community and subversive of the principle upon which the village watch had been always recognized as a village institution.'

Therefore, Sir, we see two interesting possibilities which might follow from the acceptance of this amendment. First, that we may have to assess the zamindars; and, secondly, that we may have to convert the village watch into a subordinate police. Both those consequences would assuredly be strongly condemned, as they were condemned in the past. In these circumstances I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, may I be permitted to inuire whether the equipment charge is now borne by the Chaukidari Tax. As far as I remember the Chaukidari Tax only mentions salaries."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Section 13 of Act VI of 1870 runs as follows :—'The panchayet shall impose an assessment yearly in each village equal to the amount required for the pay and equipment of the chaukidars.....'

It thus mentions both pay and equipment."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"I was under the impression that the equipment was not included. Of course, I see that it involves a large sum of money, and in view of that and also a possible increase in the number of chaukidars and dafadars under the new Act, I want that the Government contribution, if any, should be stated here. To that extent I ask permission to amend my proposal."

The President said :—

"I am afraid I cannot allow amendments without due notice. It is not quite fair to the other Members of the Council."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"In that case I beg to withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 66.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said:—

"My Lord, this amendment is identical with the one of which the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta has given notice, and I think it will be better if he moves it."

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that for the words "District Magistrate", in the two places in which they occur in clause 25 (now clause 22), the words "union board" be substituted.

The motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn in favour of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta's motion.

AMENDMENT No. 67.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "District Magistrate", in the two places in which they occur in clause 25, (now clause 22), the words "union board" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, since I gave notice of this amendment, there has been some amendment made in the Select Committee sitting for the second time. It has been added, that 'the District Magistrate or the union board', as the case may be, so that it is now in a much better form than it was originally, and, speaking for myself, I have not the least objection that the District Magistrate should have the power to punish the chaukidar or dafadar, but what we apprehend, my Lord, is this, that the District Magistrate as a matter of fact will never, and can never, do it himself. The District Magistrate will have to delegate the power necessarily to the Superintendent of Police or to the Circle Officer; it is the thin end of the wedge. It is on that account, my Lord, that I press my amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the effect of this amendment would be to deprive the District Magistrate of all power to fine chaukidars and dafadars, while the Hon'ble

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

Member has himself said that he has no objection to the District Magistrate exercising that power. If so, I cannot see that any views he may hold on the subject of delegation can justify the acceptance of the amendment. He says that he recognizes that the District Magistrate must have the power, but the amendment would take it away from him. The District Magistrate has exercised this power in the past, and if any control by the District Magistrate is to be maintained, it is necessary that he should retain it. I, therefore, oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I think, my Lord, I have been a little misunderstood. When I said that I had not the least objection to the District Magistrate exercising that power, I mean that he should exercise it himself. I have no objection to that, and if it is expressly provided that that power cannot be delegated to anybody else, I am prepared to withdraw my amendment. The District Magistrate will act upon the report of his subordinates, but he must not delegate the actual power of punishing to anybody else. In that case I have not the least objection. My objection is based upon that apprehension of the delegation."

The Hon'ble Sir Hen. Wheeler said :—

"I may explain that the Hon'ble Member is really dealing with a subsequent amendment to the effect that the District Magistrate should not delegate the power of fine, and I think that his remarks would be more apposite when that amendment is moved."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"The difficulty is that that amendment if it is to be moved at this stage, we do not know what is to be its fate, and in the light of our past experience, the probability is that that amendment would be lost. That is the reason why I press this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT NO. 68.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that after the word "Magistrate" in line 7 of clause 25 (now clause 22) the words "or by the union board" be inserted, and the words "or by the union board with fine not exceeding one-quarter of a month's salary" in lines 8, 9 and 10 of the same clause be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, my amendment is on the same lines as that of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, but it is a more modest one. The Bill provides that the District Magistrate has the power of fining the chaukidar or the dafadar up to a limit of a month's salary, and the union board has been given power not exceeding a quarter of a month's salary. I want to make both these powers of the union board and that of the District Magistrate equal. My reason is that one-quarter of a month's salary of a chaukidar drawing Rs. 5 or Rs. 6 would be a very small fine for the union board to deal with, as they will have full control over the chaukidars. I think it is unfair not to trust them with this small power which will be exercised by circle officers and other subordinate officers. I think they should be treated at least on the same level with the circle officers and that the board should have the same power. I hope this amendment will be accepted."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"The Council will remember that in the Bill as first revised by the Select Committee the union board was given no power of fining the chaukidar. Amendments in the direction of conferring that authority were filed, and when we re-examined the Bill we thought we might meet that wish by giving some right of fine to the union board, but at the same time we doubted whether their powers should be co-extensive with those of the District Magistrate. In the first place it is probable that the more serious offences and breaches of public duty committed by the chaukidar will come to the knowledge of the District Magistrate and be dealt with by him. The minor delinquencies which would come before the union board would not ordinarily merit severe punishment, and, therefore, it is not unreasonable to say that whereas the District Magistrate might fine up to a month's pay, the union board should only fine up to a week's pay. In the second place, it is the union board which pays the chaukidar, and if by a judicious system of fining they left the chaukidar minus any pay at all, the burden of assessment on the union would be to that extent lightened. That is a temptation to which the union board might conceivably yield if it was very hard up. Lastly, the chaukidar is not a very highly paid officer ; he only gets about Rs. 6 a month, and if that pittance is to be constantly reduced by heavy fines, his lot will not be a very happy one ; therefore, I prefer to leave the clause as it is. It only imposes a slight restriction on the powers of the union board."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing to add to what I have said, and if the Hon'ble Member does not accept the amendment, I do not wish to press it."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 69.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that the following proviso be added to clause 25 (now clause 22), namely :—

"Provided that an aggrieved dafadar or chaukidar shall have a right of appeal to the District Magistrate, whose orders shall be final."

He said :—

"This is only a second reference on the question of about a quarter month's salary, and I think it will be accepted. That reference to the punishment meted out to the chaukidars by the union board ought to come before the District Magistrate on appeal. It is only a very small matter and I hope it will be accepted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, this is rather a curious result of one Member moving another Member's amendment. When the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq filed this amendment, I think it was already intended to be consequential to amendment No. 66. Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq wished the District Magistrate to have no power of fine, but would have given him the power of hearing an appeal from the chaukidar against a fine imposed by the union board. That is, as I imagine, what he meant by the amendment, but the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem's argument is that irrespective of the powers of the District Magistrate, so long as the union board can fine up to a week's pay, the chaukidar should equally have a right of appeal. That is quite arguable, and I have no objection to giving a ripht of appeal if the Council wish it, though I doubt whether a chaukidar will be troubled to prefer an appeal against a fine of Re. 1 or 8 annas. However, I have no objection to the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

ADJOURNMENT.

The Council was then adjourned till the next day, Tuesday, the 8th April, 1919, at 11 A.M., at Government House, Calcutta.

THE BENGAL VILLAGE SELF-GOVERNMENT BILL, 1919.

THE consideration of the amendments on the Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919, was resumed.

AMENDMENT No. 70.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that sub-clauses (ii) (a), (ii) (b), (ii) (d), (ii)(f), and (ii) (h) of clause 26 (now clause 23) be omitted.

He said :—

"These are clauses, my Lord, which gives extensive powers to the village chaukidars ; these are powers which are given to police officers by section 54 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and there is a large body of opinion, both official and non-official, that these powers could not be safely given to the village chaukidar. The existing law on the subject is to be found in section 39 of the Chaukidari Act in which these clauses do not occur. There is no reason, my Lord, why a departure should have been made in this direction and such extraordinary powers given to a subordinate in the position of the village chaukidar. For instance, clause (a) runs thus : 'Any person who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made, or credible information has been received, or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned'. There are very wide and extensive powers which are very likely to be abused by the chaukidar. These powers are in fact so large that they are not safe, even in the hands of a police officer, but in the case of a police officer there is no other alternative and we must invest the police officer with these powers, but in the case of the chaukidars they are much more risky. I have consulted many experienced deputy magistrates who have had enough personal experience in the administration of the Criminal Procedure Code and the Chaukidari Act, and they are of opinion that it will be extremely dangerous to give these powers to the chaukidars and there is no reason why these powers should be given to the chaukidars. Some of those powers have been omitted because it was recognised that chaukidars should not be expected to possess sufficient knowledge to exercise these powers. For instance, sub-clause (f) runs : 'Any person reasonably suspected of being a deserter from His Majesty's Army or Navy or of belonging to His Majesty's Indian Marine Service and being illegally absent from that service'. . . . I do not know, my Lord, if any of the village chaukidars are expected to know what is the law on the subject, and to judge who is a deserter from His Majesty's Army or Navy and even as regards sub-clause (a) and sub-clause (b) is it for the chaukidar to decide and understand all these matters, and as regards the burden of proof, how is that burden to be discharged? That is an additional reason why these people should act under the control of the union boards. As the Bill stands now even the members of the union board, even the president himself has not been given these powers. It seems to me rather unreasonable that the village chaukidar should be given powers which are withheld even from the president of the union board. Now referring to the opinions on the subject, I find that the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division says : 'I am not in favour of raising the status of the village chaukidar to that of a police officer'. There are other officials who have expressed the same opinion. For instance, the Subdivisional Officer of Noakhali says : 'Section 39 of the Chaukidari Act gives certain powers to the chaukidars and I find in this clause additional powers are being given to the chaukidars : . . . . . this is really giving them too much power', and so on. As regards non-official opinion, I find that the District Board of the 24-Parganas has expressed its opinion that this clause should be omitted, as the powers conferred by them on the daffadars and chaukidars may lead to unnecessary harassment and oppression.' The British Indian Association says: 'This clause should be omitted; very wide powers have been given to dafadars and chaukidars to arrest people without an order from the Magistrate. It would not at all be safe to entrust them with these powers as they might harrass people unnecessarily on the alleged ground of suspicion, and the powers proposed to be given to them might lead to bribery and corruption.' The District Board of Bakarganj says: 'The Board were not prepared to give such an extensive power of arrest to the dafadars and chaukidars as are contemplated in sub-clause (a) of this clause and they accordingly suggested that sub-clause (a) of clause 26 (now clause 23) should be omitted altogether.' The Bengal Landholders Association is of the same opinion. It says: "This clause gives very wide powers to the chaukidar who is likely to abuse his power". So, my Lord, this is rather an important matter—the question of giving such wide powers to the village chaukidar—and I move that this clause be omitted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Kerr.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said:—

"My Lord, the object of this amendment is to withdraw from the village police certain powers which it is proposed to give them under this clause of the Bill. It is true, as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, that these powers are not precisely the same as those which chaukidars at present exercise under section 39 of the Village Chaukidari Act, but I may point out that the Chaukidari Act was passed in 1871. The powers which we now propose to give to the village police are those exercised by ordinary police constables under section 54 of the Criminal Procedure Code which was passed in 1898. We may take it that the Criminal Procedure Code represents a more modern and up-to-date view of the powers which police constables ought to have than the Chaukidari Act which was passed in 1871. The powers, as I say, which we propose to give chaukidars, are those which are exerciseable by ordinary constables. We have omitted one clause, the seventh sub-clause of section 54 of the Criminal Procedure Code, that deals with extradition, because the Select Committee thought this might be rather a complicated matter for the village chaukidar to deal with, and moreover cases of that kind very seldom occur in a village. If the Council will allow me, I would like to go through the powers which we do propose to give the village chaukidar. In the first place, the chaukidar at present has the power under the Chaukidari Act to arrest a proclaimed offender or any person who in his presence commits any offence under schedule B, that is to say, one of the more serious offences, also any person against whom a hue and cry has been raised of his having been concerned in such an offence in the village or outside of it, and to convey such person to the police station. Well, now we propose to give the chaukidar power to arrest any person concerned in any cognisable offence or against whom any reasonable complaint has been made or credible information received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been so concerned. The Hon'ble Member argues that a chaukidar will not know what a cognizable offence is, but in a village thefts and burglaries are the main cognizable offences, and as a matter of fact, anybody who lives in a village will tell you that the chaukidar does exercise these powers at the present moment, and he must do so if he is going to protect the villagers against the depredations of thieves and burglars. All we are doing is to say that he shall exercise these powers. Then the next point is that at present the chaukidar is required, to the best of his ability, to prevent the commission of any of these offences. We propose to give him, in the language of the Criminal Procedure Code, power to arrest any person having in his possession any implement of house-breaking or in whose possession anything may be found which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property. That is simply a definition and in some respects a limitation of his existing powers to prevent the commission of offences against property. The other powers which we propose to give to the chaukidar are not exactly covered by anything in the existing Chaukidari Act, but they amount to this, that the chaukidar should be authorised to arrest any person who obstructs a police-officer in the execution of his duties, or any person who has escaped or attempts to escape from lawful custody: or any person who is reasonably suspected of being a deserter from His Majesty's Army or Navy, and any released convict who breaks the conditions of his release under section 565 of the Criminal Procedure Code. I submit, my Lord, these are all very simple powers. The Hon'ble Member enquires how the chaukidar is to know who is a deserter from the Army or Navy. The answer to that is that the description of a man who deserts from the Army or Navy is published in the Gazette, and at the local police-stations, and there can be no reason to anticipate difficulty on this score. I would suggest therefore that all these powers are powers which may reasonably be granted to the village chaukidar. The Hon'ble Member says that we are not going to grant these powers to the president of the union board and therefore it would be illegal or improper to give them to the village chaukidar. I submit, Sir, that there is nothing in the analogy between the president and the chaukidar. We do not want to make the president into an amateur policeman. Your Excellency has not got these powers. I have not got them, nor has the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, but that is no reason why the chaukidar should not have them. These powers are entrusted already to police constables who may exercise them in a village away from the control of superior authority. The village chaukidar, on the other hand, will be subject to public opinion, he will be subject to the control of the president and the members of the union board, and he is much less likely to abuse his power than an ordinary constable who may be working by himself. I suggest therefore that we do not run any undue risk in entrusting these powers to village chaukidars, and that there is no necessity to alter the clause placed before the Council by the Select Committee."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I wish to make one observation with regard to this amendment. Blood is said to be thicker than water, and I think self-interest and interest of self-preservation will always prevail over any other consideration. We ought to remember that the chaukidar is the tenant of a man in the village, and he is more often than not the debtor of a money-lender. Whatever powers we may give to the chaukidar, we ought to remember that he may be made an instrument of their oppressive masters through the instrumentality of his landlord and the unscrupulous money-lender. That is a great danger no doubt. Mr. Kerr has said that the chaukidar would be subject to public opinion. I do not think much of public opinion in the village. Besides where there is a powerful agency like the landlord and the money-lender, I do not think the chaukidar will be very much amenable to public opinion. That is a source of danger which I feel very seriously in the matter of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, one of the arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr is that although these powers are in excess of the power which are now enjoyed by the village chaukidar, yet it should be remembered that those powers were conferred in 1871, and that we are now in 1919. I do not think that that is an argument which can be appreciated because in that case 20 years after another legislation will be introduced and powers not only of police officers under clause 54 (now clause 49), but far more extensive and larger powers might be given to the chaukidar on the ground that these powers were given to them in 1919. That is not the point, however; there is a certain limit beyond which powers cannot be granted to officers whether high or low. Regard being had to the education and position of the chaukidars in life, the question is whether these large powers can be conferred on them. What after all, is the village chaukidar? He is nothing but a menial servant of the landlord or of the mahajan as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, or he is the servant of the daroga. To invest him with the powers of arresting without an order from the Magistrate any and everybody in the village; that is a power of which we are really afraid. As regards the argument of public opinion I may say that public opinion in the village is divided into two factions. The public opinion in the village means the opinion of different factions, and if he is to follow the opinion of one faction, it cannot be said that he is amenable to public opinion, so that does not mean very much. This is a legislation intended for the benefit of the villagers, and for the people of the country. From information I have collected and from the opinions expressed by non-official gentlemen and public bodies of the province, and regard being had to the opinions also expressed by responsible officials, including the Commissioner of the Rajshahi Division, I would ask for whose benefit is this provision going to be made? Those villagers for whose benefit it is intended to enact this particular provision do not want or appreciate it. On the other hand, they say it is extremely risky and hazardous. In view of that, is it safe to make a departure in this direction from the existing law? And what is the case that has been made out in support of this departure? Who wants it, and for whom is this legislation? Therefore, My Lord, this question of public opinion does not matter very much. Public opinion of the province collected in these two volumes is against this measure; does that public opinion count for very much in this Council? After all the chaukidar is an uneducated man; what does he care for public opinion if he is quite safe, if he could satisfy his landlord, his daroga, his mahajan? My Lord, when I moved this motion, I knew that unless the Government accepted it of their own accord, there was no chance of its acceptance by the Council. It is an extremely important measure, affecting the everyday life of every man in the province, and affecting the province as a whole: it is a measure of very wide application and immense importance. Regard being had to that fact, and to the opposition of the public against this new provision, I say that no case has been made out in favour of this provision, and at least we should be on the safe side, so that I still hope that the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr will be pleased to take into consideration the views, not the views that I have expressed, but the views collected in the two volumes, both of official and non-official gentlemen.

Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari; Mr. Kerr; The President.

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said:—

"Could these sub-clauses be put separately? Some of us have difficulty in regard to them."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said:—

"It would create considerable difficulty if they are separately put."

The President said:—

"Supposing all the clauses fall out, there is no substitute for them. I do not quite see the force of the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr's argument. I have no objection in putting the amendments part by part."

The motions to omit each sub-clause were then put separately and lost.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Mr. Kerr.

AMENDMENT No. 71.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta also moved that for sub-clause (ii) (e) of clause 26 (now clause 23), the following be substituted, namely :—

"(ii) (e) any person who, in the view of the chaukidar, obstructs a police-officer while in the execution of his duty or who, in the view of the chaukidar, has escaped or attempts to escape, from lawful custody."

He said :—

"As the clause stands now, any person who obstructs a police-officer while in the execution of his duties, or who attempts or assists the escape of any person from lawful custody can be arrested. As it stands it is more or less a matter of judgment by the chaukidar whether a particular man has obstructed a police-officer or has escaped or attempts to escape from lawful custody. That is a power which I think is rather too wide, and at the same time to prevent such escapes I propose that when an offence is committed by a man in the presence of a chaukidar, when the chaukidar actually sees a man obstructing a police-officer or escaping from lawful custody, then in that case only he may be given power to arrest."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, under this clause, as it stands in the Bill, the village chaukidar is given power to arrest any person who obstructs a police-officer while in the execution of his duty, or who has escaped from lawful custody. The amendment proposes to limit these powers to cases of persons who commit any of these offences, or who attempt to commit any of these offences in view of the chaukidar. This alteration in the clause would be very inconvenient in practice, and I must say that I do not see the necessity for it. Let us see how it would work in practice In the first place, a police-officer going to a village, would ordinarily be accompanied by one of the village chaukidars; when an obstruction takes place, his natural inclination would be to send for assistance, and he would send for the other chaukidars of the union to come and give him assistance. The chaukidars come up and the obstruction stops. Under the clause as it will stand if amended as proposed by the Hon'ble Member, the chaukidars, not having seen the obstruction, would be unable to render any assistance at all. Similarly, in the case of an escape, there would be a hue and cry raised in the village; the man would be running away across the fields, but the chaukidars who saw him would not be able to arrest him simply because they had not seen him actually escaping from lawful custody. This sort of provision would lead to endless arguments in the Courts as to whether the chaukidars had actually seen the actual obstruction or the actual escape and would make the working of the law extremely uncertain. I submit, therefore, that the amendment would be inconvenient in practice and no practical reason has been shown for its necessity."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, in some cases the chaukidar will not be able to help the police as he would otherwise be able to help if the clause stands in its present form. But at the same time the question is whether that is a power that can safely be given, taking into consideration all the circumstances. For instance, one constable may want something from a man: he may not give that, then he wants to extort the money from him and wants to bring some pressure to bear upon him, and then in order to accomplish his purpose he may send for the chaukidar and tell him that that man was obstructing him and so on.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

So that is a case in which a constable may take advantage of a provision like this. The whole question is not whether in any particular case this provision will work some good, but the question is whether taking all things and all circumstances into consideration what is the line of action which the balance of evidence suggests. As in all cases of legislation, so in this particular case there are two sides and the business of the legislature is to see wherein lies the balance of evidence and advantage. My contention is that weighing all the advantages and disadvantages, the safer course would perhaps be not to legislate like this."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 72.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, in view of the fate of some other amendments that have been moved before, I do not wish to press this amendment and with your Excellency's permission I would like to withdraw it."

The motion was as follows :—

"that sub-clause (1) (ix) of clause 26 (now clause 23), be omitted."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 73.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta also moved that the word "and" at the end of sub-clause (1) (x) of clause 26 (now clause 23), be omitted, and after that sub-clause the following be inserted, namely :—

"(xa) he shall serve civil, criminal, and revenue processes and processes issued by officers of the registration department upon persons resident within the union subject to such rules as may be prescribed under section 111 ; and"

He said :—

"My Lord, on this question instead of giving my own views I would prefer to give the views and recommendations of the District Administration Committee recorded on page 112. It is not a new proposal as the system has been tried and tried with success. This is what the District Administration Committee said :—

'The experiment was abandoned in Rajshahi also. It was continued and is still in force in Hooghly, Dacca and Tippera, in which district special officers have been working under Mr. Gupta. The local officers are anxious that the system should be continued, and from what we have seen and heard we have no doubt that the experiment is proving a success. In their Resolution No. 2487P. D. of the 22nd November, 1911, the Government of Bengal remarked that the system is infinitely superior to the practice of service through peons, stating as their reasons for this opinion that a certain amount of local publicity is given to the process ; the president and dafadars are amenable to local public opinion ; they do not need the assistance of the plaintiffs' men, and therefore on the whole the probabilities of fraud and suppression are considerably reduced. Mr. Gupta considers that the results so far are extremely hopeful and there is a consensus of opinion that, with the appointment of a secretary or munshi to assist the panchayat and with proper supervision and adequate postal facilities, the goal to be aimed at is the extension of the system not only to a certain class of criminal processes but also eventually to civil processes.'

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

Apart from the advantages which have been mentioned by the District Administration Committee in their report there is a further advantage that the service of these processes will bring something to the union board. The financial difficulty of the union board will be somewhat relieved although it will not be relieved very appreciably. Therefore, both in the interest of the public directly and also in the interests of the union board this proposal should be accepted. It requires no advocacy from me to induce Government to accept this proposal because I find from the report of the District Administration Committee which I have just placed before the Council that that was precisely the position taken up by Government in 1911. The Government remarked that the system was infinitely superior to the practice of serving processes through peons. Therefore, my Lord, I hope at all events this amendment will be accepted by Government."

"My Lord, this amendment touches upon quite a useful possibility of utilising the services of chaukidars and dafadars, and it is a possibility towards the realisation of which some experimental steps have already been taken. I mentioned yesterday the fact that in 1905 Mr. Savage was placed on special duty with a view to developing the possibilities of village self-government. The service of processes, other than those for distraint and sale and personal arrest, through chaukidars was initiated by him, and it was gradually introduced in the districts of Dacca, Tippera, Rajshahi and Hooghly as also in Balasore and Muzaffarpore which were then within Bengal—though of course, they are now no longer in this Presidency. As regards Eastern Bengal, it was decided in 1907 to continue the experiment, and a rate of remuneration for dafadars and chaukidars was fixed. In 1907 the scheme was extended to Puri and in 1912 to Cuttack. It failed in Muzaffarpore and was abandoned in 1911, because no one was particularly enthusiastic about it and there was no adequate supervision over the work of dafadars ; subsequently it was abandoned in Rajshahi also, but it was continued in Hooghly, Dacca and Tippera. In 1911 this Government expressed an opinion favourable to the system, generally on the grounds that have been referred to by the Hon'ble Member, namely, that there was less likelihood of malpractices on the part of dafadars and chaukidars, as they had local knowledge and were amenable to local influence ; the probability was that they would run straighter than outside peons. At the same time, there had been failures and there were frequent complaints of unpunctuality. The financial aspects of the change, in comparison with the ordinary procedure, also required further elucidation. The question was examined by the Conference of Commissioners in 1912, and practically the system is now working in most of the areas in which there are circle officers, those being the areas in which a supervising agency exists, and it is on proper supervision that it has been found that success very largely depends.

Since we are all at one as to the possibilities of the system, it may be said why did we not provide for it in the Bill ? I gather that those who framed the Bill refrained from doing so because they thought the matter was to some extent experimental, and so far as experiments were being conducted, they were in progress under executive orders. There is also another difficulty which we have to bear in mind ; under the Court Fees Act the fixing of fees chargeable for the execution of processes, civil and criminal, and the remuneration of peons and of all other persons employed in the service and execution of processes are governed by rules framed by the High Court. Therefore, in anything we do we shall have to be consistent with the powers of the High Court, presumably by obtaining their preliminary consent to any change we desire to make. If the High Court do not approve of the change, then under the Court Fees Act they can effectually debar us from further action. I should mention that when I spoke of processes at present thus served, I meant revenue processes, not criminal and civil processes. Of course, in revenue processes we have a freer hand, but in civil and criminal processes we have to be guided by the High Court.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

There is the further question of uncertainty as to the cost, namely, whether service of this description may not turn out to be more expensive than our present system. However, I think it is worth while making mention of this matter in the Bill, and I am willing, therefore, to accept the amendment, but I think its form could be improved. I do not much care about enumerating different kinds of processes, especially when, as I have said, we have to remember the High Court's rules in respect of civil and criminal processes, and I should prefer to put the amendment more generally in this form :—

'He shall serve such processes upon persons resident within the union as may be prescribed by rules under section 111,'

I think this will meet the hon'ble mover's object. We avoid specifically mentioning the kind of processes ; and I take it that in the matter of civil and criminal processes we shall have to get the High Court to make rules to permit of the new procedure. In the above form, I shall be glad to accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

' My Lord, the form recommended by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill is acceptable to me."

The motion was put in the following amended form and agreed to :—

"That the word 'and' at the end of sub-clause (1) (X) of clause 26 (now clause 23) be omitted and that after that sub-clause the following be inserted, namely (Xa) he shall serve such processes upon persons resident within the union as may be prescribed by rules under section 111 ; 'and"

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, when we come to clause 111 (now clause 101), I shall ask your Excellency's permission to introduce a consequential amendment."

AMENDMENT No. 74.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for sub-clause (2) of clause 26 (now clause 23) the following be substituted, namely :—

> "(2) Every dafadar shall exercise all the powers conferred on a chaukidar under sub-section (1) and such other powers as may be prescribed by rules made by the district board, and shall perform such duties as may be imposed upon him by rules made by the district board."

He said :—

"My Lord, so far as the first sentence is concerned it is exactly the reproduction of the original clause and then the divergence begins from the second sentence 'and such other powers as may be prescribed by rules made by the District Board.' My object of bringing in this portion is this : that the duties of the chaukidars have been defined in this Bill at length, but the duties of the dafadar have not been so clearly defined. Of course under this clause every dafadar shall exercise all the powers conferred on a chaukidar under sub-clause (1), but there is after all some difference between the position of a dafadar and that of a chaukidar. I think that is the fundamental point, otherwise there is no reason why a dafadar should have been brought into existence. It is well known that although there are dafadars in existence even at present but as a matter of fact there was no legislation on the subject. They have been brought into existence under circumstances the validity of which has sometimes been questioned, but in any case there is no law codified on the subject as regards dafadars. But this point is very clear that it is intended that there should be some difference between the position of a chaukidar and that of a dafadar : otherwise there is no reason why a dafadar was originally introduced and why a dafadar has now been given a statutory function in this Bill. And the general proposition is, and that has been accepted by the Bill, that the dafadar holds a position over the chaukidars and therefore in actual practice there may be occasions when the powers exercised by the chaukidars may not be sufficient for the dafadars. In order to remedy that defect I have proposed that they shall exercise such other powers as may be prescribed by rules made by the district board.

Then there remains the other portion as regards the duties of the dafadars. As it stands it is this 'and shall perform such duties as may be imposed upon him by rules made by the district board.' Now, my Lord, it is rather difficult to understand why the powers have been defined by the Bill itself but not the duties. As regards the duties of the dafadars they have been delegated to the rules to be made under section 111 (now section 101). Powers are necessary to be defined in the Bill itself as the duties. My amendment does not meet that difficulty as I have not been able to suggest to what the definite duties should be but I must confess that my difficulty was that I had to send notice of my amendment without sufficient time, and besides I must also confess that it is not very easy for me to sit down and prescribe the duties as it is so easy for the framers of the Bill and others whose duty it was to do that. I labour under various disadvantages which they do not, and I must confess that I was not equal to that task. I have simply proposed that the dafadar shall perform such duties as may be imposed upon him by rules made by the district board. The only difference is that the rules should be made by the district board and not made under clause 111 (now clause 101).

With these words, My Lord, I beg to commend the amendment for the acceptance of the Council."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, perhaps it will assist matters if I explain briefly and in general terms what the duties and position of the dafadars are. The dafadar is a creation of the last 15 or 20 years. Before that each individual chaukidar worked individually with the police at the police-station and with the panchayats in the village. This arrangement was found unsatisfactory as it was difficult for the police and the panchayats to deal with a large number of individual chaukidars, and so the dafadar came to be evolved. The dafadar is simply a head chaukidar; he is a non-commissioned officer in charge of a squad of 10 or 12 chaukidars ; his business is to act as a link between the chaukidars and the police and between the chaukidars and the panchayats. He conveys orders to the chaukidars, arranges for their duties, goes round and collects information and reports from them and passes them on to the proper authorities. That, my Lord, is a general description of the functions of a dafadar, and that being so, I think the Council will see that it would be very difficult to embody it in any legal enactment. That is the reason why we have said in this Bill that the dafadar shall have all the powers of a chaukidar and that his other duties shall be regulated by rules. So far I think the Hon'ble Member and myself agree. The only difference between us is that in the Bill it is proposed that these rules should be framed by Government, while the Hon'ble Member would like to have them framed by the district board. I explained yesterday why it was not possible to hand over the village police generally to the control of union boards and local boards, and precisely the same arguments apply to this proposal that the dafadars should be handed over to the control of district boards. I shall not repeat what I said yesterday, but there are special objections to handing over police duties to district boards. The district boards have never had anything to do with the police, either the regular police or the rural police, and it is not intended in this Bill to make a new departure in this respect. The Bill deals only with union boards, and the proposal to enlarge the functions and duties of district boards in this particular way is not one which Government could accept. District boards are not at present constructed in such a way as to make them fit bodies to exercise duties in connection with the police, and this Bill does not propose to alter their constitution in any way. For these reasons, Sir, I oppose the amendment."

" My Lord, this motion is opposed on the ground that Government are not prepared to make over dafadars to the district board. Now clause 47 (now clause 46) of this Bill lays down—' provided that the salaries and cost of equipment of dafadars and chaukidars shall be the first charge upon the union fund.' It is the union board who will pay the dafadar's salary and so on. Not only they will pay but the salary of the dafadar will be the first charge upon the union fund. That being the position, certainly it is only fair that dafadars should be the servants of the union board. That is my first point.

Then the next point is if once they are the servants of union boards and if any rules are to be prescribed about their duties, then it is only fair that these rules should be framed by the union board, and if union boards are not at present in a position to frame rules and if they are not considered to be competent, then the next best thing is that these rules should be framed by the district board under whom the union board will act. The whole plan of this measure, if I understood it aright, is this : we will build from the bottom. The initial stage is the foundation of the union board, next comes the local board and after that comes the district board. That being the evolution—that being the scheme of the Bill—it is only proper that rules should either be first framed by the union board and if for any reason that body is not considered competent then the rules should be framed by the district board. As they will pay it is only proper that they should dictate as to what should be their duties and what should be their powers. "

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 75.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that after the word " situated " in line 4 of clause 27 (now clause 24) the words " or to the president of the union board " be added.

He said :—

" A little while ago, my Lord, an attempt was made to curtail the powers of the chaukidar on the apprehension that these powers will be abused and that people may be unnecessarily oppressed. By this amendment I suggest to minimise the abuse of power and to minimise the chances of harassment. In the Bill as it is, a chaukidar after arresting a person can take him to the police-station. but the police-station may be situated at a distance of 8 or 10 or even 12 miles from the place where the man was arrested, and it will cause unnecessary harassment to the man if he is proved innocent. On the other hand, I suggest that he should be taken over to the police-station or to the house of the president of the union board, because the latter will be near at hand and in that case if the president of the union board finds that the arrested person should be taken to the thana, then he will direct the chaukidar to do so, and in that case some sort of responsibility will fall upon his shoulders, and as he is a man of responsibility and amenable to public opinion, and it is expected that he will not be a tool in the hands of a particular faction or a particular individual, high or low. Therefore in order to be on the safe side, I suggest that this amendment be accepted, because after all there is another proviso that if arrests are made at night, then the person arrested shall be taken as soon as convenient on the following morning, but where is the arrested person to be kept? If the direction is to take him to the president, he may be kept in the house of the president, as he may have sufficient accommodation for the arrested person, while the chaukidar scarcely has sufficient accommodation for himself and his family. The main object in moving this amendment is to give a chance to the person to be taken to the president of the union board so that the chaukidar may not have any unrestricted discretion in taking a person a long distance to the thana and thus causing him harassment. When the amendment for curtailing the powers of chaukidars was moved, it was stated, and there was a good deal of reason in that statement, that the chaukidar may unnecessarily cause a person to be harassed. In this country an arrest means disgrace, even if the arrested person is proved innocent afterwards. In this case if a man is arrested or taken to the thana or detained for a long period, it will cause great inconvenience to the people and it may even happen that simply to cause a loss to a person or to his interest, a man may be arrested and taken to the thana. For instance, if a person has got a civil case in a court in the headquarters of the district or sub-division, and a man under whose influence the chaukidar is is interested in seeing that this man does not present himself before the court on that particular day, it may be easily arranged; that man is arrested and taken to the thana and by the time he is taken to the officer in charge and is proved innocent and released by him, his case might have been lost. The only harm that can come to the chaukidar is that the District Magistrate after he is informed of such a case will dismiss the chaukidar, but the dismissal will not mean much to him. I, therefore, submit that if this amendment is accepted, it will be a safeguard against these abuses of the chaukidars or the men whose instrument he is."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Kerr.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"I think, my Lord, the Hon'ble Member has read into this amendment a good deal of matter which it really does not contain. In the first place, he assumes that if his amendment was passed, the chaukidar would be bound to take an accused person to the president of the union board. That, as I understand the amendment, would not be the case; it would be optional with the chaukidar to take the accused either to the police-station or to the president, so that the chaukidar could use his discretion in the matter. In the second place, the Hon'ble Member seems to assume that the president would have the power to order the release of an accused person and to tell the chaukidar not to take him to the thana, but there is nothing about that in the clause either. There is nothing giving the president power to examine the merits of the arrest and to decide whether a primâ facie case against the accused person had been made out; and very rightly so, because obviously if you give the president a power of that nature you at once convert him into an investigating officer. Thus, these two points which the Hon'ble Member has made much of are not provided for in the amendment at all. All that the amendment says is that the chaukidar can take the accused person to the president on his way to the thana, and I ask the Council to consider whether a provision of that kind would really be in the interests of the accused. The Hon'ble Member says the accused person may have to walk 10 or 12 miles to the thana. Well, the president's house may be situated 6 or 8 miles away from where the arrest is made and in the opposite direction to the thana, so that the chaukidar exercising his discretion under this amendment might cause the unfortunate accused person to walk 12 or 16 miles further than he would otherwise have to do. Then the president might not be found, or he might want to exercise those powers which the Hon'ble Member wants to give him, but which the amendment does not give him. He might want to enquire into the case, and all that means more delay and harassment to the unfortunate accused. I submit, my Lord, that it is much better to stick to the simple provision in this clause in the interests of the accused person himself, and to say that when a chaukidar or dafadar does arrest a man he should take him forthwith to the police-station."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

"My Lord, before the motion is put to the vote, I desire to have some information both from the hon'ble mover and the Hon'ble Member who replied on behalf of Government. In the first place I must sympathise with the general observations of the hon'ble mover, but there are some difficulties. My hon'ble friend has said that when a person is arrested he may not be taken to the police-station because it would be convenient to the chaukidar to take him to the president of the union board. But it is just possible that he may not find it convenient to take him to the president of the panchayet. In the proviso it is added that if the arrest is made at night the person so arrested shall be taken to the thana on the following morning ; so it is quite discretionary with the chaukidar to keep the man in his house and to take him the next morning to the thana. But there is another point. What is to be done with the man in the meantime? Supposing a man is arrested at 9 o'clock at night ; the chaukidar has not sufficient accommodation to keep the accused person with him all night, nor can he afford to feed the man at night, in addition to his own family. What are the contingencies provided for here. The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr says that the president of the panchayet has no power to go into the merits of the case, but what about the arrangements to be made for 8 or 10 hours when the man is to be kept by the chaukidar, how is he to be kept and fed? Quite apart from this amendment, I think the Hon'ble Member might explain these points, for I have not been able to comprehend them."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"I do not know, Sir, whether the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur is supporting the amendment or opposing it, or whether he is merely in search of light on mufussal conditions. I think he is needlessly creating difficulties in stating hypothetical cases which in practice solve themselves without difficulty. There is one fairly practical proof of this in that this clause is merely a repetition of section 40 of Act VI of 1870, which has been working all these 49 years without grave practical inconvenience. There is all the difference in the world between an amendment which would definitely encourage the chaukidar to take an accused person to the president of the union board (to which there are the objections which Mr. Kerr has enumerated), and a proviso which, after all, is merely a matter of common sense. The chaukidar is directed to take a man at once to the thana when he arrests him ; it may be, however, that the man was arrested at night and could not be taken to the thana at that time. The proviso then instructs him to take the arrested man to the thana the next morning. What the chaukidar does in practice is to make such arrangements for the detention of the man as are most convenient ; he may keep him in a zemindar's kutchery, or in a house or a hut, whatever is handiest. It is a matter of practical working to be dealt with at the discretion of the man on the spot, as it has been dealt with without trouble for the past 50 years. Therefore, Sir, I cannot appreciate the point that has been raised, for it does not affect in any way the arguments which Mr. Kerr has used, to which I may perhaps add one more. Among the recommendations made by Mr. Savage, to which I have previously alluded, one was rather in the direction of encouraging the president to interfere in the investigation of crime, but when I made my inquiries, I found that nothing but confusion and trouble and friction between the police and the panchayat had resulted from that arrangement. The amendment tends in the same direction, and I propose, therefore, to leave the clause as it is."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I admit that the amendment as framed leaves the chaukidar the option of taking the accused person to the thana or to the president of the union board. I suggested it only to avoid the difficulty which was mentioned by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr that supposing the thana is the nearer place than the house of the president or if the president is not to be found, whichever may be the convenient place, and where the case of the arrested person can be more quickly and safely disposed of. That is what I meant. As regards the powers of the president of the union board who has got to control the chaukidar, if he finds that the chaukidar has without any justification arrested a man he should see that the mere arrest by the chaukidar does not bring the man under the clutches of the law, so no special powers are necessary. If the president finds that the man has been arrested without any justification in exercise of the powers vested by the chaukidar under this Act, he may just ask the chaukidar to release the person ; that is what I meant, and what I think the amendment means, but I am sorry that this has not been accepted and as there seems to be great opposition to this, I do not think any useful purpose will be served by pressing it, so I beg permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 76.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that for the word "district" in line 3 of clause 28 (now clause 25) the word "union" be substituted ; and for the words "district magistrate" in line 4 of the same clause the words "union board" be substituted.

He said :—

"This is a very simple amendment, my Lord. The object is this : the Bill provides that all fines realised from chaukidars under clause 25 shall form the district reward fund and that it will be at the disposal and under the control of the District Magistrate. What I suggest is that these fines realised from chaukidars should be confined to the area and should form the union board reward fund and should be controlled by the union board. The object is that the union board may have an opportunity of granting rewards to their chaukidars whenever they are found to have done some good service, or are found doing their duty a little more devotedly. I am informed, my Lord, that these chaukidari reward funds—there is a chaukidari reward fund now in existence under the control of the District Magistrate—that this reward scheme to chaukidars is extended over the whole district, and each union may not find cases in which to reward their own good chaukidars and dafadars, and I have been also told that the chaukidars who are called upon to do patrol duty on railway lines during the visit of the Viceroy or the Governor, either in their own headquarters or on their way from one place to another, when they are brought from a distance of more than 5 miles from their homes, are paid their duty allowances from this reward fund. I speak subject to correction, but this is my information, and I do not think that this is the object with which these reward funds were started, so I suggest that the fines realised within their unions should be at the disposal of these boards, and should be paid to the chaukidars, so that money may be brought home to the union boards. I do not think there will be any objection to accepting this amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I do not think the Council would be well advised, on the considerations which have been adduced, in accepting this amendment, which, after all, merely upsets an existing system which is working comparatively well.

The clause in the Bill is almost an exact reproduction of section 42 of the Act of 1870, which was inserted by the amending Act of 1892. Sir Henry Cotton, the Member in charge, then gave this explanation of it :—

'There is a section introduced under which fines imposed on chaukidars are credited to a district chaukidari reward fund, the control of which rests with the Magistrate. At present fines, when realised, are credited to the village chaukidari fund ; that is to say, they pass to the panchayat. The Magistrate has no control over them, and the effect is that if the panchayat and the chaukidar work together and are friendly one with the other, no fine whatever can be inflicted on the chaukidar. It is thought desirable that the Magistrate of the district should have the power of inflicting some punishment on chaukidars other than dismissal. The fine will then be credited to a reward fund for distribution among deserving chaukidars, a provision which has always been much needed, and is calculated to improve the administration of the village police force.'

That is why the district chaukidari fund was initiated, and it has been working ever since. The petty fines levied on chaukidars are thus brought together, and in the aggregate make a fairly substantial sum from which it is possible to reward good work done by other chaukidars. If the sum was split up into a number of petty little units, as would be the case if the amendment was accepted, it would merely be frittered away without any practical benefit, apart from the objections which Sir Henry Cotton raised, and which I have just read. There is another difficulty, that if the unit is the union board one of two contingencies may result ; either the union contains most admirable chaukidars, in which case there will be no fund to give rewards from : or it may have a scoundrelly set of chaukidars, and there may never be occasion to give rewards. In either case it will not be possible to administer the fund to the advantage that is now possible. I doubt if it would make for good feeling in the union, for instance, if chaukidar A is fined Re. 1 which goes as a reward for good work done, into the pocket of chaukidar B ; this is only likely to engender friction. As a matter of fact it has been found that if the District Magistrate takes an interest in the proper administration of this fund it is useful in encouraging chaukidars to do good work, and sometimes chaukidars do very good work in effecting arrests and giving information. Of the practice to which the Hon'ble Member referred at the end of his speech, viz., of rewarding chaukidars from the fund for what really is part of their work, I have never heard. I am told by Mr. Hart that he thinks he remembers such a case some time ago; I will have inquiry made, and if it is correct that this has been done, I will certainly have it stopped. The chaukidari reward fund is not meant for such purposes, and if it has been so applied, it must have been done under a misapprehension of the proper position."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Kerr; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"May I just supplement what the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said by reference to the rules which govern the administration of the chaukidari reward fund. The rules say—

'Rewards should ordinarily be given for—

(a) information leading to the prevention or detection of crime;

(b) the seizure or recovery of stolen property;

(c) the arrest of offenders or absconders;

(d) personal courage shown in the arrest of dacoits, thieves or other offenders;

(e) meritorious conduct, not included in the above clauses, which the District Magistrate, with the concurrence of the Commissioner, considers deserving of reward.'

So that if the District Magistrate wanted to take money out of the reward fund for the purpose which the Hon'ble Member has mentioned, he would have to get the consent of the Commissioner, and I think it is most unlikely that that consent would be given for the reward fund to be utilised for any such purpose."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"This amendment has been opposed by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler on the ground that this goes against the practice which has been in existence for some years. I admit that this goes beyond the practice. But this Bill as it stands is an improvement on many established practices. We have got the local boards and the district boards and we are now going to have our village union boards to decentralize the work and what is more we had our Magistrates in the headquarters of the districts and sub-divisional officers elsewhere, and we are now going to have several village criminal courts. So I thought that the division of the chaukidari fund would be in conformity with all these arrangements. My amendment has also been opposed on the ground that if we limit the fund to the union it will be a very small fund and that it would have no practical good result. But as the fund will be larger now and the chaukidars and people affected will also become larger in number—that will make very little difference. I am, however, glad to learn that my information regarding the allotment of chaukidari fund to other purposes is, so far as the Government are concerned, without foundation and that even if such a practice prevails it will not be allowed to continue. But I am still of opinion that this reward fund should be limited to the union boards who should have control over this fund. It has been suggested that in a union all the chaukidars may be an admirable lot and that in that case no fund would be realized. But that contingency is not likely to arise in a union in this Presidency nor is it likely that all chaukidars would be unworthy people. If that contigency arises it is also possible that another contingency might arise, that all the chaukidars in a district would be either wholly good or wholly bad. Therefore I hope that this amendment will be accepted by the Council."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 77.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "district magistrate" at the end of clause 28 (now clause 25) the words "district board" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in this connection I want to draw the attention of the Council at the very outset to the alteration that has been made."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem (interrupting) said :—

"My Lord, with reference to this amendment I rise to a point of order. It has been decided by this Council that the district reward fund is not to be made over to the control of the district board. It has also been decided that it should remain under the control of the District Magistrate."

The President said :—

"I do not think the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem is correct in saying that this Council has decided that the reward fund is to be under the control of the District Magistrate. What the Council has so far decided is that a certain alternative proposal to the proposal in the clause of the Bill should not be made. But that does not rule out of order other alternative proposals which the Council might like to adopt."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta (continuing) said :—

"Although the fine is imposed under clause 25 (now clause 22), that clause has under gone some alteration in the Select Committee on the second occasion. Originally the fine was intended to be imposed only by the District Magistrate. Now the union boards have been given the power of inflicting fines upon the dafadar and chaukidar. Therefore the alteration in clause 25 (now clause 22), ought to have some bearing upon clause 28 (now clause 25). The fine was originally imposed by the District Magistrate and it could be said that for some reason that fine ought to be at the disposal of the District Magistrate, but now that the power has been given to the union board also, the question arises whether in these altered conditions the fine ought to go even now in all cases to the District Magistrate. Besides, although reference has been made to the provisions of the Chaukidari Act of 1892, it appears that the original section 42 of the Act of 1870 was this. That section lays down that all fines and penalties levied under this Act shall be carried to the credit of the Village Chaukidari Fund. Of course that was altered by section 42 of the Act of 1892. But, my Lord, our contention is that the Act of 1892 was a most reactionary measure and it is not too much to expect that things may be restored to their former condition, namely, that section 42 of the original Act of 1870 might be revived. Of course with this alteration : there it was suggested that it should be carried to the credit of the Village Chaukidari Fund. That amendment was moved by my predecessor and that has been lost, and in fact this is not my amendment either. That having been lost it is all the more proper that I should ask that the fine should go to the credit of the district board. I have got the support of the various representative public bodies in this connection. For instance, the District Board of Faridpur says that the proposed clause resembles the amended section, and the result will be that all fines will go out of the control of the village committee. In view of the fact that before 1892 all fines were credited to the Village Chaukidari Fund, this clause should be modified so as to bring all fines realised from the chaukidars to the Village Committee Fund. I find, my Lord, that even the premier institution of Bengal—the Indian Association—also recommends that the word 'board' should be substituted for the word 'magistrate' in clause 28 (now clause 25). The question is whether that alteration should be made. It appears to me that it is rather funny that when the chaukidar's salary is to be paid by the union board, and when that man is fined by the union board, the fine should go to a fund over which neither the union board nor the district board has any control but over which the District Magistrate alone has the authority. There is something very wrong in the very idea. If A has got a servant and if under some circumstances he is competent to fine the servant, that fine should certainly go to A and not to B. So, my Lord, this alteration should, I think, be accepted."

"My Lord, I confess I have some difficulty in following the argument of the Hon'ble Mover, which, if anything, is apposite to the previous amendment which has already been negatived. The contention of the Hon'ble Member seems to be that if we cannot go back to the Act of 1870, we should at least do something different from the change which I have already explained, was made in 1892. But from the historic account I have just given of the genesis of this fund and of the objects to which it is applied, it seems obvious that the matter is not one which concerns the district board at all; to say that the administration of the kind should be directed by the district board is merely to frustrate the whole purpose for which it was created. Mr. Kerr has referred to the kind of work for which these rewards are given. Now what has the district board to do with the arrest of offenders and absconders, and how is it to judge of the personal courage shown by the dafadars in the arrest of dacoits? The amendment is really seeking to introduce an agency which is perfectly alien to the objects of the fund, and from the remarks that have fallen from the Hon'ble Member one would almost imagine that he regards the fund as a source of personal profit to the District Magistrate. I have endeavoured to explain what is done with the money, and I put it to the Council that it is meant for purposes which are absolutely foreign to the district board."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I am surprised to hear the last observation of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. When I said that the fines go to the District Magistrate I never meant that they go to the district magistrate personally. Of course he will have a control over it in his capacity as district magistrate. Similarly, when I proposed that the fine should go to the District Board, it was never intended that the fine should go to the private pocket of the Chairman of the District Board. The whole question is who is the official who should have the control over it—that is the whole point. As I have submitted, as the salary is paid by the union board and it has also been conceded by the Select Committee on the second occasion that the union board will have the power to fine also, the authority who has got the power to fine should have some control over that amount. That is all that I have to submit."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 78.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that for sub-clause (1) (a) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the following be substituted, namely :—

"(1) (a) shall take such action as is necessary to secure the due performance by the dafadars and chaukidars of the union of the duties imposed on them under this Act, and shall exercise a general control over them."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Kerr.

He said :—

"My Lord, the Council will notice that the words which we have at present in the Bill as amended by the Select Committee are 'shall exercise a general control over the dafadars and chaukidars of the union." I desire that the words "shall take such action as is necessary to secure the due performance by the dafadars and chaukidars of the union of the duties imposed on them under this Act" should be added. The reason why I made this suggestion is this. The Council will notice from clause 26 (1) (i) [now clause 23(1)(i)] that at the present moment the chaukidar shall give immediate information to the officer in charge of the police-station within the limits of which the union is situated and to the president of the union board of every unnatural, suspicious or sudden death which may occur, and of any offence specified in schedule II which may be committed within the union, and he shall keep the police and the president of the union board informed of all disputes which are likely to lead to a riot or serious affray. My Lord, this only leads to giving information both to the officer in charge of the police-station and to the president of the union board. The Bill does not provide as to what is to be done after that. On the other hand, there is another aspect which is important with reference to this amendment except that the chaukidar is obliged to furnish the information required of him, the chaukidar can only give orders on police matters through the union board. The Bill does not provide that the officer in charge of the police-station can give orders to the chaukidar direct. As I understand, my Lord, the scheme of the Bill is to introduce more co-operation between the union board and the officers in charge of police-stations. If that be the object, then there ought to be some person or body of persons who should have the power to improve that co-operation. The officer in charge of the police-station has not any direct power, no doubt by holding out an indirect threat of having the chaukidar dismissed or reporting against him to the District Magistrate he may exercise some authority. But I would prefer that the union board should have a more effective voice in the matter. The chaukidar is required to keep the president informed of any crime committed within his locality, but there is no direction what the president is to do when he receives such information. Therefore for the mutual co-operation which is I think the framework of this Bill, I think the amendment which I suggest will improve the Bill. I understand, my Lord, that in various places there is a growing tendency of the thana police and the president of the panchayat working together and that very good results have accrued therefrom. If that is to be aimed at then the amendment which I have suggested is desirable. I may tell the Council that my amendment bears relation to amendment No. 81 which stands in my name, namely, that after clause 28A (now clause 26) sub-clause (1) (ee), the following words be added 'shall co-operate with the police and the magistrate and the circle officer for the control and detection of crime.' My Lord, the non-official Indian members desire that these union boards should have these powers. The official members pointed out in the course of the discussion that took place yesterday that at the present moment the police powers must ultimately remain in the hands of the District Magistrate, and as the District Magistrate is responsible for the peace of the district such powers should remain with the District Magistrate, but both sides agree that gradually there should be better co-operation between the functions exercised by the union board and the District Magistrate. The amendment, I suggest, will ultimately attain that object."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, I will not follow the Hon'ble Member in his discussion of the question of granting police powers to the president and members of these boards, because that question arises specifically on later amendments. I may, however, say at once that the Government are prepared to accept this amendment. It will have been evident from the remarks which we made yesterday on previous amendments that the policy of Government is to steer a middle course in the matter of control over the rural police, and to give the union boards a reasonable amount of control over the rural policemen who will work in the villages and to retain at the same time the control of the District Magistrate and the district authorities who are responsible for maintaining law and order. This amendment will allow the union board to take such action as is necessary to secure the due performance by the dafadars and chaukidars of the union of their duties. It will be open to the union board either to reprove or exhort them directly, to punish them in the manner allowed by the Bill or to report them to higher authority if the matter falls outside the purview of the union board. Government regard this amendment as reasonable and as expressing what their intentions in this matter are; and they are therefore prepared to accept it."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The motion was then put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 79.

The following motion was held to be covered by the decision on the previous amendment and was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for sub-clause (1) (a) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the following be substituted, namely :—

"(1) (a) shall exercise control over the dafadars and chaukidars of the union under rules, if any, made by the district board."

AMENDMENT No. 80.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after the word "union" in line 2 of sub-clause (1) (d) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the words "either constructed by it or made over to it for maintenance and" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, on comparing the Bill which has now been presented to us after recommitment to the Select Committee and the amendments which were submitted at the meeting of the 18th February last, it appears that some of the amendments made by the non-official members have been accepted : some have been openly acknowledged, others have been tacitly admitted. but I do not suppose it has been decided that the residue of these amendments are to be thrown into the dust-bins or that the acceptance of any one of them would cast any reflection on the Select Committee. We, the non-official members, have, in the light of our judgment, made a number of amendments simply with a view to improving the Bill and making it acceptable to the public. Whateyer the result may be, we are bound to press them, not for the object of taking up the time of the members on the side of Government which is no doubt very valuable, but I think our time has also some value and we do it from a sense of duty.

This amendment has reference to clause 28A (1) (d) [now clause 26 (1) (d)] which says that every union board shall have control of all drains and other conservancy works within the union which are not under the control of any other authority. I propose to add after the word 'union' these words 'either constructed by it or made over to it for maintenance and' I do it on purpose, because the clause, as it stands, is not exhaustive or if I am permitted to say is somewhat defective also. As it stands it means that all drains and conservancy works, whether public or private, unless they are under the control of some other authority shall be under the control of the union board. This is not what is probably intended to achieve by this sub-clause because there may be drains or other conservancy works which are entirely private. I do not think the union board would be competent at all to interfere with any private drain executed by a private person for his own convenience or any conservancy work which any private person may construct. Therefore, I suggest that after the word 'union' we should add 'either constructed by it or made over to it for maintenance and.' A private drain may be made over to the union board and they may make over such drains and conservancy works. A district board may make over certain conservancy works executed by them for maintenance to the union board and they should have control over such drains and conservancy works, but we cannot give them a large power of interfering with all drains and conservancy works which, though not made over by the district board, may be the property of private individuals. Therefore we ought to limit the control of the union boards to drains and other conservancy works which are either executed by the board or which may be made over to the union board either by higher authority or by a private person. To cover these I propose that these words should be added: otherwise the clause is open to grave objection as it allows the interference on the part of the union board with private drains or private conservancy works without any formal authority from the owner. As the clause is open to grave objection, I think my amendment should be accepted."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the Hon'ble Member appears to think that he has some grievance against the Select Committee. I should find it easier to disabuse his mind of that impression if I understood more clearly what his grievance is. On behalf of the Select Committee, I can only claim that they have done their best to discharge the task entrusted to them, in the course of which they put in many hours work. I most strongly repudiate any suggestion that they have cast a slur on any Hon'ble Member or thrown into the dust-bin amendments which have cost much time and labour. Whenever we have accepted the amendments of any Hon'ble Member, we have frankly acknowledged their suggestions, and I would ask the Hon'ble Member to believe that we have merely tried to evolve a better Bill in the light of the amendments of our Hon'ble Colleagues.

Turning now to the amendment, the clause, as it stands, defines the duties of union boards, and gives them control of all drains and other conservancy works within the union; I gather that the Hon'ble Member thinks that the provision will give them an undue right of interference with private drains. That they should have some right of interference with private drains is contemplated in the Bill; and I would instance clause 29 (b) under which they may cause private drains to be constructed, altered or removed, while under sub-clause (2) (ii) of the same clause they may cause the owner or occupier of any building to construct private drains therefor or to alter or remove private drains thereof. That they should have some powers over private drains is intended, and as the Hon'ble Member has not moved for the excision of these provisions. I take it that he is in agreement with them. But he seems to think that we have in some way vested private drains in the union board by the manner in which we have framed the clause. We have not, however, done so, as I think I can show to his satisfaction by the precedents of other Acts which this Bill has followed. Under section 115 of the Local Self-Government Act a union committee shall have control of all drains and other conservancy works within the union. That is practically similar in wording to our clause, and yet private drains have not been absorbed or vested in the union committee. Similarly, coming to section 190 of the Bengal Municipal Act, we find that all drains and privies shall be subject to the inspection and control of the Commissioners. As I read the clause it is merely a declaratory one, saying that the duties of the union board are to do such and such things. The Bill goes on in other sections to define the particular nature of the control to be exercised. I do not think the ill-effects of the clause are such as are imagined by the Hon'ble Member, and I would deprecate the amendment which, if accepted, would in effect declare that the union board must not interfere with private drains at all, and would be inconsistent with those portions of clause 29 (now clause 26) to which I have referred".

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I am not convinced as to the weight of the argument advanced by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. It may be very desirable that the union board should have some hand in all drains and conservancy works within the union, but I think if we keep the clause as it is it would be giving very extensive powers to the union board over all drains within a union whether private or public. I believe it may be possible that the union boards will find themselves sometimes in a very hard position when people are not agreeable to give up their civic rights. I do not know whether by enacting this provision we can give them any legal right to interfere with private property whether it be in drains or other conservancy works. So we ought to confine this clause to works which are public property or which may have been made over to the union board by the owners of such works. We may give a very wide scope to this Bill, but that will not take away the rights of private individuals. I do not think we could effectively put into motion the provision which we have here. If we are to make it effective we ought to say that the works which are to be controlled by the union boards should be such as may have been vested in them by the operation of the law, or by being made over to them either by a public body or by a private individual. We cannot give them a large order to interfere with any and every work within the union."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 81.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that the word "and" at the end of sub-clause (1) (ee) of clause 28A (now clause 26) be omitted; and after the same sub-clause the following be inserted, namely :—

(eee) shall co-operate with the police and the magistrates and the circle officer for the control and detection of crime."

He said :—

"My Lord, this amendment is more or less consequential on the amendment No. 78 which has been accepted by the Council, and I, therefore, simply move it without any speech."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, while I quite appreciate the importance of the object which the Hon'ble Member seeks to achieve by this amendment, I would deprecate its inclusion in the Bill simply for the reason that in all Bills, and particularly in matters having connection with the magistracy and the police, it is desirable that the functions to be specified should be definite and explicit. In the other matters included in clause 28A (now clause 26) as comprising the duties of a union board, it will be seen that each covers a definite act which the union board should do—they should control chaukidars, they should provide sanitation, they should make arrangements for conservancy, they should execute works for the preservation of public health, they should supply information, and so on. But when we come to the Hon'ble Member's amendment, we come to something which is purely hortatory—that they shall co-operate with the police and the magistrate. It is almost like saying that they shall be good and loyal citizens. Of course it is an admirable function to be a good and loyal citizen, but its mention in this form in an Act seems to me rather to depart from the customary features of legal enactments, and it is inconsistent with our usual legislative practice to put an exhortation of this kind in a Bill."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"If the amendment to clause 28A (now clause 26) be accepted, it is not necessary for me to have this clause, but at the same time I do think that these exhortations are unknown to Indian Legislature, but as my purpose is served by the amendment already accepted, I do not want to press it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 82.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that after sub-clause (1) (ee) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the following be inserted, namely :—

"(eee) shall arrange for the vaccination of persons resident within its jurisdiction for small-pox and chicken-pox."

He said :—

"My Lord, my amendment is a very simple one. I simply want that vaccination should also be considered as one of the duties of union boards. The reason is that in the mufassil difficulties arise in connection with vaccination especially with the Muhammadans who observe special purdah system. But if it is done locally I do not think any difficulties will arise. Therefore instead of including it in the general term 'public health', I want it to be specifically mentioned in the proposed clause."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, there are two reasons why Government are unable to accept this amendment. In the first place vaccination is not compulsory in rural areas. The Bengal Vaccination Act has been extended to all municipalities, to the Asansol Mining Settlement, to Kalimpong and Siliguri in Darjeeling, but it has not been extended to villages elsewhere in the Presidency. The union board will therefore be unable to enforce vaccination; without an extension of the Vaccination Act they would not be in a position to arrange for the vaccination of their neighbour's children, and the provision which the amendment seeks to introduce would be null and void. The Hon'ble Member may say he is not particular as to the wording, but merely wishes to establish the principle that members of the union boards should assist in vaccination. Here, however, we are dealing with positive duties and statutory obligations. The second objection to the proposal is that it provides that people should be vaccinated for chicken-pox. I fear my hon'ble friend has not a very expert knowledge of the etiology of disease or he would have been aware that vaccination is not a preventive against chicken-pox. It would add a new terror to the life of parents with large families if they had to vaccinate their children for chicken-pox, as well as for small-pox, and I should be very sorry to see any provision made in the Bill which might be said to disclose a somewhat scanty acquaintance with medical lore. The proposal rather reminds me of a story I have heard of a question put in another Legislative Council in India. The question is said to have run—'Are Government aware of the number of deaths from lightning in certain parts of the province, if so, what action do they propose to take?' On behalf of Government I must oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I heartily support the motion of my hon'ble friend deleting of course the reference to chicken-pox. I have heard Mr. O'Malley's reply and I am aware that there is no compulsory vaccination in the mafussal. But at the same time it must be admitted that our countrymen are anxious to have all the facilities for vaccination. The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley will admit that it is a municipal measure and my hon'ble friend's proposal is only concerned with the municipal convenience of the public. The union boards will be established in areas in which there are no municipalities and although there is no compulsion, I think facilities ought to be provided for those who want to get themselves vaccinated in the areas. The boards ought to provide lymphs and ought to supply them to the local doctors so that people may get themselves vaccinated without any difficulty. I am told that at present no facilities in the mafussal are provided for vaccination. Surely Government cannot stand aside and see people dying there by hundreds and thousands in times of small-pox epidemic. What is the harm in inserting this provision here especially when the cost will be borne by the people themselves? Why should there be opposition on the part of the Government? Surely a thousand or two thousand lymphs in times of epidemic will go a longway in checking the spread of the disease. I yet hope that this amendment will be accepted and Government will reconsider their decision especially when the acceptance of this proposal will not harm anybody and will not diminish the prestige of the local authorities as it is not a question of political power but of municipal convenience."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I wish to speak a few words in connection with this amendment. It is well known that within the mafussal municipalities there are depôts in charge of the Civil Surgeon to provide facilities for vaccination and experience has shown that in times of epidemic, there is always a rush to the depôt for vaccination. It is not right, therefore, that these union boards to whom we are going to give so large powers in other respects, should not also provide facilities for vaccination? It may be arranged that there should be a supply of lymph in the village and the union boards may have power to arrange for its distribution. This, my Lord, is a simple matter and if the arrangement is left to the union board, it will be better for the people of the country."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry I included the chicken-pox. It betrays my ignorance no doubt, but I am not ashamed of it as I am not a doctor. However, that may be, I think that facilities should be provided for the protection of the people against small-pox and I suggest that arrangements should be left in the hands of the union boards. I am not convinced by the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley's arguments in opposing it, and in view of what has been observed by two other Hon'ble Members I still hope that my amendment will be accepted."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. O'Malley ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, as some reference has been made to the arrangement for vaccination in mufassal areas, I may point out that there is a staff of vaccinators who are sent out to vaccinate the children of those who are willing to undergo the operation. A circular has recently issued by which the duties of the Civil Surgeon in regard to vaccination will be placed in the hands of district health officers, who will be servants of district boards. The objection to this amendment is that it will place a statutory duty on the union boards when they have no arrangements for appointing vaccinators. I have no doubt that the assistance and co-operation of the members of union boards will in practice be called into requisition but under present conditions it would not be fair to place this statutory duty on them.

The motion was amended by the omission of the words "and chicken-pox" and a division was then taken with the following result :—

AMENDMENT No. 83.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, the next amendment which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq, will, I find, be difficult to carry out in practice. I therefore beg permission to withdraw it.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter; Sir Henry Wheeler.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that after the proposed sub-clause (1) (ee) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the following be inserted, namely :—

"(eee) shall compile and maintain a register of marriages and divorces within the union, and such other registers or public records as the local Government may direct, in accordance with rules under section 111."

AMENDMENT No. 84.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I have reconsidered the matter, and do not wish to press this amendment. I ask permission to withdraw it."

The amendment was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that after the proposed sub-clause (1) (eee) of clause 28A (now clause 26) the following be inserted, namely :—

"(eeee) shall take emergency measures and shall provide for medical aid to victims in case any disease breaks out in the form of an epidemic within its jurisdiction."

AMENDMENT No. 85.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that the word "and" at the end of sub-clause (3) of clause 28A (now clause 26) be omitted; and after the same sub-clause the following be inserted, namely :—

"(3a) shall cause such processes as may be received for service from any court to be duly served by a dafadar or chaukidar and returned to the court, and."

He said :—

"My Lord, the principle of this amendment has already been accepted, but I would only ask Government to consider whether it is not desirable to have this clause or a similar provision in clause 28A (now clause 26) as well. The principle of it was accepted, when the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved his amendment No. 73. The only point to be considered now is whether it ought to find a place in clause 28A (now clause 26) as well."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, we have already accepted the principle of the service of processes through chaukidars and dafadars, as the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter has remarked, and I do not think there is any harm in inserting a provision of this kind, though, here again, its form might be improved upon. I do not like the words "received for service from any court"; there may be revenue services, not issued by any court. Similarly, as regards the words "returned to the court." I think it will meet the case if we put the amendment in this form "that the word 'and' at the end of sub-clause (3) of clause 28A (now clause 26) be omitted and after the same sub-clause the following be inserted, namely: Shall cause such processes as may be received by the union board for service to be duly served by a dafadar or chaukidar in accordance with rules under section 111; and"

The amendment was then put in the modified form and agreed to.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta, Sir Henry Wheeler, Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

AMENDMENT No. 86.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after the words "district board" in line 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 29 (now clause 27) the words "or local board" be inserted.

He said :—

"I think this is a most non-controversial proposition. Clause 29 (now clause 27) refers to the powers of the union board as to sanitation, conservancy and drainage and the clause lays down that there are certain steps that can be taken by the union board on their own initiative, and then it lays down, that if the district board orders them to do so, that order will be binding upon them, because in that case the union board shall do it. I only want to add that like the district board, it will be competent to the local board also to pass an order like that. That is all that is recommended in this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment deals with a provision which was inserted by the Select Committee on its first examination of the Bill. The clause lays down certain sanitary powers and duties of the union board, and it was suggested to the Select Committee that the union board might be lax in the exercise of these powers, and therefore that it would be useful to authorise the district board, in the case of neglect of duty, to step in and to order the union board to do so and so. On the merits there is much to be said for the idea, and we put it in the Bill as a matter which was worth consideration, though we apprehended that, possibly, objection would be taken to it, as giving rather wide powers to district boards of bringing the union boards into line. Far from objection having been taken to it, however, the only proposal on the point is for the extension of this mandate to the local board. That is carrying the principle which we accepted a little further than we contemplated—carrying it to a body which is not of the standing of the district board, and, which is rather more important, it is carrying it down to a body which has not got the funds of the district board. That is a point which is well worth the consideration of the Council. The local board is the agent of the district board. its resources are restricted, and it will not ordinarily be in a position to make an independent grant to the union board. Therefore its position is materially different from that of the district board, which, if it decides that the union board shall be directed to do so and so, will be bound to consider how they are going to do it, and probably come to their financial aid. The same consideration will not apply to the local board, and there is, therefore, a difference in conferring this power on that body. However, as I say, the principle is one which we accepted, in Select Committee, and I should be prepared to leave it to the Council whether they would like the principle to be extended to the local board also."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I must oppose this motion. The union board is only newly come into existence. Over its head will be the district magistrate, the subdivisional officer, the circle officer, and again the district board will sit upon it, and if you allow the local board also to sit upon it, there will be no life left in it. I think it is better to let the union board have a little independence of its own. It should not always act as the hookum bardar of so many people. Therefore, I insist that the local boards may not be allowed to sit upon it. If the union board is also to carry out the mandates of all these persons and bodies, there will hardly be any life left in it to carry them all out."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, as I was listening to the arguments of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, I was almost feeling half inclined to withdraw my motion, because although I am not in full agreement with all his arguments, still I feel that in view of the present financial position of the local boards, they may only be in a position to give orders without being able to finance them. I feel there is a good deal of force in that. My first feeling was to withdraw my motion, and that feeling has been strengthened by the attitude of my hon'ble friend Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, but at the same time, I must draw the attention of the Rai Bahadur to clause 55A (now clause 50) of the Act which lays down that, subject to the control of the district board, a local board shall superintend the administration of the union board, etc., etc. My motion is, therefore, in accordance with the provisions of this Bill. It is the local board which is primarily responsible for superintending and controlling the administration of the union board. This function has been especially entrusted to the local board. There are, of course, the district magistrate, the circle officer and so on. They may be too much for the union board, but at the very outset it is the local board whose orders they will be bound to carry out in all matters, so that even if this particular amendment is rejected the fact remains that the authority of the local board will always be binding upon the union board. However, I appreciate the argument of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler when he says that as the local boards have not got any funds, it is no use giving them that power. I therefore ask permission to withdraw my motion."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

[At this stage the Council adjourned for lunch.]

AFTER LUNCH.

AMENDMENT No. 87.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that before the word "any" in line 1 of sub-clause (1)(d)(ii) of clause 29 (now clause 27) the words "subject to the following proviso in regard to manure pits" be inserted; and after the word "necessary" at the end of sub-clause (1)(d) the following be inserted, namely :—

> "Provided that this provision shall not affect manure pits, but the union board may direct the owner thereof to make the manure pit sufficiently deep so as not to affect sanitation."

He said :—

"My Lord, I have thought it advisable to press this amendment in view of the fact that in an agricultural country like Bengal where every peasant and cultivator has to keep a manure pit for the collection of manures, there should be some provision to see that the union board does not cause it to be closed simply on the ground that it is injurious to health. Certainly the existence of a manure pit in the close vicinity of dwelling houses is injurious to health, but I am afraid it is a necessary evil—which will have to be tolerated because we can ask the whole body of villagers to keep their manures in a separate place outside the village. I think, some provision should be made to see that these manure pits are not interfered with. But the owners of these pits may be directed to make these pits sufficiently deep so as to minimise the bad effects so that they may not affect injuriously the sanitation of the village. With these words, my Lord, I beg to move this amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. O'Malley; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, the sub-clause to which the Hon'ble Member proposes an amendment is based on the existing provisions of the Local Self-Government Act, under which a union committee may deal with any tank, well, pool, ditch, drain or place containing, or used for the collection of, any drainage, filth, stagnant water or matter likely to be prejudicial to health by draining or cleansing it, or otherwise preventing it from being prejudicial to health. It has not been found necessary in the working of the Self-Government Act to have any saving clause as to manure pits. This is a matter which can surely be left to the good sense and discretion of the members of the union boards who know village conditions and the circumstances of their neighbours. The amendment, as it stands, is in any case open to objection, because if it was accepted, however offensive or even dangerous to health a manure pit might be, the union board could do nothing except order the owner to deepen the pit. Deepening might not remove the nuisance, while it might be actually mischievous. For instance, if the pit were close to a well and it was deepened the filth might percolate through to the well and pollute the water.

I would, therefore, deprecate the addition of an amendment making any special exception in favour of these receptacles of somewhat nauseous matter."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I thought it necessary to bring to the notice of this Council and of your Excellency's Government the necessity of having manure pits. It is no doubt that the union boards will exercise due discretion when passing orders about manure pits, but my apprehension was that sometimes some over-zealous officers of Government when they go into these unions and find these manure pits here and there may direct the board to take steps against them and the board will not be bold enough to resist these orders and instructions. In one or two cases in my district I have seen the Civil Surgeon asking the Chairman of the union committee to see that these manure pits were removed from the neighbourhood of residential houses, but at least in these cases the Civil Surgeon was made to understand the situation which was explained that in an agricultural country these pits were most essential but still he said he would like to have it done but did not insist upon it. Therefore I thought it necessary to bring forward this amendment, but if the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley is of opinion that this provision is unnecessary, I do not wish to press it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 88.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, in the absence of the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, moved that the word "reasonable" before the word "period" in line 2 of sub-clause (2) of clause 29 (now clause 27) be omitted, and at the end of the same sub-clause the following be inserted, namely :—

> "Provided that the period specified in such notice shall be such as to give a reasonable opportunity to the owner or occupier, as the case may be, to carry out the requisition contained in the notice, and shall, in no case, be less than one month from the date on which the notice is actually served."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Maulvi Abul Kasem; Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

He said :—

"My Lord, in the Bill itself it is only suggested that a reasonable period is to be specified therein. This amendment does not want this reasonable period to be left to the discretion of the union board itself, but it says that the period shall, in no case, be less than one month from the date on which the notice is actually served as it may cause a great hardship to the people who may be asked to carry out the instructions within a shorter period. The amendment will remove that disadvantage and hardship and I hope it will be accepted."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I will be as brief in my remarks as possible in order to speed up the proceedings. This is a matter in which the Select Committee, at the second revision, tried to meet the Hon'ble Member, but apparently has not succeded in doing so. Previously, the clause merely required a period to be specified. In consideration of the amendments, of which notice was given on the previous occasion, we added the word "reasonable." Now the Hon'ble Member wants to add that the period of notice shall not be less than a month. We considered this point in Select Committee, and we did not think it desirable to put it as suggested, because if there was an epidemic or anything of that kind raging in a village, circumstances might arise in which it would be desirable to take immediate action. We, therefore, thought it best to leave it to the discretion of the union boards, merely stating that the period of notice should be reasonable. I may point out that an appeal lies against an order, and we may take it that if any action is unreasonable, the appellate authority will set the matter right."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I do not press this amendment and I ask your Excellency's permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 89.

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray moved that the word "tank" in line 2 and the word "pond" in line 3 of sub-clause (2) (iii) of clause 29 (now clause 27) be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, the powers with which the union board is going to be vested under clause 29 (now clause 27) are extremely wide and of far-reaching consequences. These powers are not enjoyed by the present union committees, nor even by the district boards. Of course, the municipalities are vested with these powers and there can be no doubt that they are essential to secure improvements in the matter of village sanitation. But we must not forget at the same time that the conditions in the villages are not the same as in the towns. Public opinion is a great check in municipal towns against an abuse of these powers, but the public opinion in the villages cannot be expected to be effective to the same degree. In the villages, the zamindars and the moneyed class will exert a considerable influence on the union boards. We should, therefore, see that we do not leave the bulk of the village population too much at the mercy of these boards. My Lord, I should here make it clear to the House that I am not moving this amendment for the benefit of the land-holding classes. They are too powerful in the villages to be worried by the union boards. On the other hand, my amendment, if accepted, will save the poor and helpless ryots from being harassed by vindictive zamindars for whom it would not be at all difficult to utilise the services of union boards to crush the victims of their anger. Most of the tanks and ponds in the villages are in a filthy condition. But it is beyond the powers of an average villager to re-excavate or fill up a tank. An order to do so will mean his ruin. I know that there is a provision for an appeal against such an order: But even this provision will not save him from being unduly harassed I would, therefore, request the House to omit the words 'tanks and ponds' from the clause. If it be found necessary to fill up or re-excavate a particular tank, the union board must come forward to take up the work itself and not compel the poor owner to do so, as that, I assert again, would be absolutely impossible for an average villager to do even by selling his entire holding."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Hart.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, on behalf of Government, I must advise the Council not to accept this amendment. It is one of the first principles of organised social life that no person may, by his acts or neglects, cause danger or offence to other members of the community. He may not treat even his own property in such a way that the safety or health of his neighbours is endangered. Clause 29 (now clause 27) of the Bill has been framed to give the representatives of the inhabitants some power to deal with cases of defiance or neglect of this fundamental principle of civilised life. It is provided under sub-clause (1) (d) that if any well, pool, ditch, tank, pit, pond or any place where drainage, filth or stagnant water is contained or collected is in such an insanitary condition as to be offensive or injurious to the health of the residents, the union board may take suitable action to render such place innocuous. Under sub-clause (2), the union board is empowered in such cases to require the owner or occupier of the land to which such insanitary place pertains to himself take the necessary action. Under sub-clause (3), the union board is empowered, in case the owner or occupier defaults, to have the work done on its own authority and to recover from the defaulter the whole or such portion of the cost as the union board may decide to be reasonable and fair.

These provisions appear to be justifiable and sound and the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray does not impugn the principles on which they are based. He apparently agrees that sub-clause (1) (d) requires no amendment, although that sub-clause expressly covers 'a tank' and 'a pond'. As he does not propose to modify sub-clause (2) except in so far as it refers to a tank or pond, it is also evident that he sees no grave injustice in requiring the owner of a dirty well, pool, ditch or pit to meet the expense necessarily incurred in making it sanitary. His only apprehension is that the interests of the owner of a tank or pond may be injuriously affected. He has, however, not attempted to show and it would be difficult to conceive how he would attempt to prove that it is reasonable to exempt the owner of a pond or tank from the same liability to keep it in a sanitary condition as is imposed on the owner of a well, pool or ditch.

'My Lord, the ownership of a large tank implies a certain degree of affluence; and it seems that there is no possible justification for this amendment other than the safeguarding of the interests of the more well-to-do portion of the community. As an adequate safeguard has always been provided by the right of appeal in the Bill, the amendment is unnecessary. Its adoption would be not only a setback to the progress of the course of village sanitation, but would also be unfair to the owners of other kinds of property to whom a similar exemption is not granted."

For these reasons, my Lord, I oppose the amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur; Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Kumar. I thoroughly agree with what has fallen from the Hon'ble Mr. Hart. It must not be presumed that in these days of advancement—advancement not only of political education but also of sanitary education—that we the non-official members, especially the Indians are backward. I am rather sorry that my hon'ble friend Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray has suggested the omission of the words 'tank' and 'pond'. He has overlooked, well, pool, ditch, pit, etc., which belong to poor persons. A wealthy person, may poison his neighbour or make the whole area insanitary by keeping a tank or pond. Therefore, I think, this clause ought to be maintained in the interest of the health of the community. It may be said that there are some vindictive people who might satisfy their grudge against somebody. But we should not allow this apprehension to stand in the way of our having a measure of self-government in this country. We have more than one member on the union board and we should certainly trust to the intelligence, common sense and—sense of justice of the members of the board as a whole. Further, there is an appeal provided in clauses 29 and 30 (now clauses 27 and 28). Surely, it cannot be presumed, and I know from my own experience that, however, vindictive and evil-intentioned a person may be,—he cannot have such an overwhelming influence as to carry the whole board with him. So there need be no apprehension and the Hon'ble Kumar will do well to drop the amendment in the interests of sanitation."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I wish to submit a few observations. I am sorry to oppose the amendment. The object of the Bill is to secure sanitation in the villages and the gentleman who goes to the villages, the first thing he will notice, is the insanitary condition of the tanks. Consequently, it is the duty of the union board to have this nuisance removed and therefore notices ought to be served either upon the occupier or the owner of these properties. It will not be hard, if the notice is served upon the zamindar. He can take measures to see that the insanitation is removed. If the insanitary condition of tanks or ponds are not improved in the villages, what is the necessity of a Bill like this? The primary object of the Bill is to secure sanitation, and therefore I am very sorry to oppose the amendment. If the amendment is carried out, then I am sure the sanitation will not be secured. The villages are full of jungles which should be removed. If a rational view of the question be taken into consideration, I believe this amendment ought not to be accepted."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing further to add to what I have said regarding this amendment. But I am very sorry that my amendment has been opposed by some of the non-official members of this Council. But my only gratification is that they belong to the towns and not to the villages. Had they known the conditions in villages they would have supported my amendment. In view of the another amendment which stands in my name, No. 90, I beg to withdraw this amendment.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray; Mr. Hart.

AMENDMENT No. 90.

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray moved that after sub-clause (2) of clause 29 (now clause 27) the following be inserted, namely :—

"Provided that in the case of a work referred to in clause (2) (iii) where the area exceeds 400 square yards, half the cost of such work shall be paid by the union board."

He said :—

"My Lord, my reasons for moving this amendment are the same as those in the case of the previous one. My case is that it is impossible for 99 per cent. of the villagers to re-excavate or fill up a tank of a size bigger than 400 square yards in area. If it is really necessary that such a tank should be filled up or re-excavated, my prayer is that, the union board at least should come to the help of the poor owner. This provision will at least save a villager from being wantonly asked to comply with an order of the board in this respect, as in this case, because the board would have to bear a part of the expenses, it would think twice before it passes an unreasonable order. I appeal to the Government and the members of this Council to grant my prayer which, if my colleagues would kindly think over it, would seem quite reasonable and fair. I beg to point out that I am leaving the board a free hand in respect of insanitary wells, pools, ditches, pits and smaller tanks. The costs of carrying out an order regarding them would not be so prohibitive as that regarding a big sized tank. My Lord, I therefore hope, that my amendment would be accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, I must ask the Council not to accept this amendment. In opposing the last amendment, I pointed out that provision for an appeal against an order of a union board is made in sub-clause (4) of clause 29 (now clause 27), and that it will be for the union board to determine how much of the cost of putting an objectionable tank into sanitary condition should be paid by the owner or occupier. There is no reason to apprehend that the owner of a large tank will not receive at least as much consideration from the union board or the chairman of the district board, as the owner of a small tank, pond or pool. It will be the duty of the union board to decide each case on its merits and to determine how much of the cost of the work should be paid by the owner or occupier and how much can fairly and reasonably be charged to the union fund. As they will probably be fully acquainted beforehand with all the facts and circumstances of each case, the union board will be qualified to come to a right decision. The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray proposes that in every case when a tank, pond or pool of area exceeding 400 square yards, or a quarter of a bigha, is taken up by a union board and put into sanitary condition, half the cost of the work should be borne by the union board. The effect of this amendment would be to confer a privilege on the owners of the largest tanks, that is, ordinarily on the most affluent residents and landlords, at the expense of the other rate-payers of the union. The conferment of such a privilege would be unreasonable and still more unjust.

For these reasons, My Lord, I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, my hon'ble friend Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray has again appealed to the members of municipalities coming from towns. I wish, therefore, to say a few words. I am afraid if the Hon'ble Mover will kindly read and consider the wording of his amendment he will find that if this amendment is accepted, the board will be compelled to pay the cost of clearing or filling up or cleansing any pond, tank well, ditch, etc., or of improving the same from the funds of the union board irrespective of the circumstances of the party. It may be that my hon'ble friend the Kumar may be the owner of a big tank in that area, and if this amendment is accepted by the Council then he can very well claim that the cost should be defrayed by the union board. Although, I belong to the city, I have got some experience of these things because we have got a similar clause in the Calcutta Municipal Act where we have evidence to show that if the owner of a tank cannot carry out the improvement himself we advance the money from the funds of the Corporation.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari ; Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

After a very careful examination of clause 29(3) [now clause 27(3)] I find that the union board can call upon the owner to pay part or the whole of the cost, and therefore, I think, the contingency of accommodating the very poor people is provided here, but whereas if this amendment is accepted, then the union board will be compelled to spend every farthing of their funds for the improvement of other people's property, whatever the wealth or position of that party may be."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, I should like to endorse Sir Henry Wheeler's plea for expediting the proceedings. The way we are getting on, we are not likely to finish our labours in three or four days. From one extreme of supporting amendments some of us have now come to the other extreme opposing the amendments and labouring the opposition as if the joint pressure of Sir Henry Wheeler, Mr. Kerr, Mr. Duval and Mr. O'Malley is not enough to flatten out any Gayasur of an amendment. Where it is necessary to oppose an amendment, it ought to be enough to indicate the opposition. If we are really to get through the Bill as quickly as we would like to little more self-restraint all round would be useful."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"I have nothing to add to what I have said, my Lord."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 91.

The following motion was deemed to be withdrawn :—

If motion No. 90 be carried, the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray also to move that after the word "thereof" in line 5 of sub-clause (3) of clause 29 (now clause 27), the words "as the case may be," be inserted.

AMENDMENT No. 92.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, a similar amendment to this has already been lost, so I do not wish to press this."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after the words "district board," in lines 2 and 3 of sub-clause (4) of clause 29 (now clause 27), the words "or local board," be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi Abul Kasem; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 93.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that at the end of sub-clause (4) of clause 29 (now clause 27) the following be added, namely :—

"The appeal shall be filed within fifteen days from the date of service of the notice."

He said :—

"My Lord, as no period has been fixed for appeals, I propose this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member's amendment does refer to a defect in the Bill in that we have not stated a period within which the appeal should be filed. In a matter of this kind, fifteen days is a fair period, and I accept this amendment with the slight verbal alteration, viz., that instead of 'the appeal' we would have 'such appeal.'"

The motion was then put in the modified form and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 94.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

The next amendment which stands in the name of the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Huq provides also for the period of appeal, but I will not move it, but will move No. 95 which stands in my name and which also provides similarly for the period of appeal.

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that the word "reasonable" before the word "period" in line 5 of sub-clause (2) of clause 30 (now clause 28) be omitted and at the end of the same sub-clause the following be inserted, namely :—

"Provided that the period specified in such notice shall be such as to give a reasonable opportunity to the owner or occupier, as the case may be, to carry out the requisition contained in the notice, and shall, in no case, be less than one month from the date on which the notice is actually served."

AMENDMENT No. 95.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that at the end of sub-clause (4) of clause 30 (now clause 28) the following be added, namely :—

"The appeal shall be filed within fifteen days from the date of service of the notice."

He said :—

"My Lord, I only move this amendment. The principle underlying it is similar to No. 93 which has been accepted by Government."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"The principle underlying this is the same as that in 93. and for the same reason I accept it with the same verbal alteration, that is to say, for 'the appeal' I would substitute 'such appeal'."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. P. C. Mitter; Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Mr. Hart.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"I would like to draw Your Excellency's attention to the fact whether in rural areas, fifteen days is enough, or whether more time ought to be granted."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"At the risk of being thought too talkative, I think this is a retrograde proposition. No fixed time should be stated here, but a reasonable time allowed. In Calcutta I find people are not quite aware as to when the time expires for hearing an appeal. I think the Hon'ble Member would do well not to press his motion."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My view is that a period of fifteen days is not unreasonable, and if it is a matter of urgency, we want the persons concerned to file their appeals quickly. Fifteen days gives them fair time to ask to have an order revised, and for my part I am prepared to accept the motion."

The motion was then put in the modified form and agreed to.

AMENDMENT Nos. 96 & 97.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the words "ten rupees" in line 9 of sub-clause (3) of clause 31 (now clause 29) the words "four rupees" be substituted.

He also moved that for the words "two rupees" in line 10 of sub-clause (3) of clause 31 (now clause 29) the words "one rupee" be substituted.

He said :—

"It is a question of daily fine under sub-clause (3) of clause 31 (now clause 29) where it is provided that there should be a daily fine in addition to the fine imposed for the non-performance of certain things. In the case of masonry buildings there should be a daily fine of Rs. 10 and Rs. 2 for non-masonry buildings. It seems that the purpose will be served if the fine is Rs. 4 in the former case and Re. 1 in the latter for daily disobedience. It is a simple matter and I hope it will be accepted."

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, I must advise the Council not to accept this amendment, or rather the two amendments 96 and 97. The penalties provided in the Bill now before the Council are exactly the same as in section 118 of the Local Self-Government Act of 1885, and no protest has ever been raised nor has any opinion been received from any person who has reported on the Bill, that the penalties provided in the Act of 1885 were excessive. The Council will also be interested in learning that no recommendation has been made to the Select Committee for any modification of this clause. The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri has not objected to the substantive fine but proposes that in the case of a masonry building, where a substantive fine up to Rs. 100 may be imposed, the limit of the continuing fine should be Rs. 4 instead of Rs. 10. The Hon'ble Member has tacitly admitted that the substantive fine provided is not excessive and I would submit that when a person who has been fined still continues to disobey the magistrate's order, a further continuing fine not exceeding one-tenth of the maximum substantive fine is not disproportionate. As regards non-masonry buildings,

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

the substantive fine is Rs. 20 and a provision is made for a further daily fine not exceeding Rs. 4 in case the offence is still continued after the magistrate has ordered it to stop. In this case the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri desires that the fine should not exceed Re. 1, although he does not object to the substantive fine, and as the penalties are exactly the same as were provided in the old Act of 1885, I would submit that no reason for supporting these amendments has been made out."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"I have nothing further to add, my Lord. I leave the matter in the hands of Government. I thought it excessive and therefore, I suggested a reduction; because the same amount has been provided for in other enactments, that is no reason why it should be so in this case, especially as in this case poor mafussal persons are concerned.

The motions were then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 98.

The Hon'nble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, for reasons explained by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler in respect of amendment No. 86 reasons which I have also accepted, I should not like to press this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after the words "district board" in line 5 of sub-clause (1) of clause 32 (now clause 30) the words "or local board," be inserted.

AMENDMENT No. 99.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the following be inserted after clause 37 (now clause 36), namely :—

"37A. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the president of a union board shall have powers current with those of the officer in charge of the police-station within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the union is situated, for the arrest of persons enumerated in sections 54 and 55 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and the provisions of the said Code arrest shall apply mutatis mutandis.

"37B. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the president of a union board shall have concurrent jurisdiction with that of the officer in charge of the police-station within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the union is situated, in exercising all the powers and performing all the duties laid dowh in Chapter XIV of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, respecting informatoin and investigation of the following offences, namely :—Offences under sections 143, 147, 269, 277, 279, 283, 324, 325, 335, 341, 342, 379, 380, 411, 428, 447, 448, 453, 454, 456 and 457 of the Indian Penal Code.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

(2) All the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, applicable to an officer in charge of a police-station, shall be applicable, mutatis mutandis, to the president of a union board :

Provided that the power conferred under section 170 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, shall not be exercised by the president of a union board without the concurrence, in writing, of two other members of the union board elected annually in that behalf by the members of the union board.

'37C. The president and other members of the union board shall exercise the powers conferred by sections 37A and 37B subject to the control of the district magistrate and subdivisional magistrate.

"37D. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the president of a union board shall exercise the powers contemplated by sections 64, 127 and 128 of the said Code.'

He said :—

"The proposal for investing the headman of the village with police powers is not a new one. It is an old proposal urged from time to time by many responsible administrations and statesmen. But no step has yet been taken in this behalf. The Police Commission of 1902-03 remarked :—'The Commission are strongly convinced of the impossibility of carrying on an efficient police administration by means of official policemen only. It is absolutely essential to secure the aid of the village community. This is necessary from the purely Government point of view : It is impossible to support the expense of a force which would be adequate to obtain information regarding crime over the extensive area and among the vast population of India, without securing the co-operation and inforcing the responsibility of the village authorities. It is necessary also from the people's point of view. Even if the expensive establishment required could be maintained, it would be vexatious and intolerable to the people. Constant interference by the police, constant espionage on village life, constant visit of officials of the lowest grade, constitute an intolerable burden and vexation to the people. It is immeasurably better to utilise and develop the village agency for reporting crime, to leave the people, as far as possible, to dispose of petty matters for themselves, and to limit interference to villages when there has been failure in the discharge of responsibility in respect of reporting, or to cases in which the matter is serious enough to demand interference.'

We read again in paragraph 44 of the said report :—'The village community is represented "ordinarily" by its headman ; and effective police administration must be based on the recognition and enforcement of the responsibility of the headman. He is the man who can really help the police, his position and influence should be strengthened ; and it is to him that the police should look for co-operation in their work. * * * * . The Commission consider it to be of vital importance to emphasise the responsibility of the village headman, and to hold the village police-officer, by whatever name he may be locally known, responsible rather as the subordinate of the village headman and his servant for the performance of police functions. The village headman for police purposes ought, as far as possible, to be the man recognised as headman in respect of the revenue and general administration of the village ; when that is impossible, he ought to be a man of position and influence in the village ; and the district officer ought to maintain and strengthen his position and influence. It is necessary to repose a large discretion in him and firmly to acknowledge his respectibility and authority in the village': Accordingly the Police Commission made the following two most important recommendations :—

(a) That it is of paramount importance to develope and foster the existing village agencies available for police work.

(b) That the responsibility of the village headman for the performance of the village police duties should be recognised and enforced in every province.

But no serious and sustained efforts have been made to execute these recommendations. Some half-hearted measures of a spasmodic character have been taken from time to time to give police powers to the village headman. The president of the panchayat system introduced by Mr. Savage in 1904 was invested with powers under sections 64, 127 and 128 of the Criminal Procedure Code. He was authorised to correspond directly with the magistrate; and the chaukidars were required to parade before him. These powers might satisfy his vanity, but after all real power and responsibility cannot be substituted by such illusary make-believe. These reforms were in keeping with the latter, but not with the spirit of the recommendation of the Police Commission. We have the verdict of the District Administration Committee who rightly observed that the scheme was a step in the right direction, but that it did not go far enough towards giving the president any real power or responsibility. Even these so-called and small powers were resented by the police, and we find that even the parade of chaukidars before the president was discontinued later on. It may be said without any exaggeration that the presidents of to-day even in those districts in which the system has survived unaltered do not enjoy or exercise the shadow of any police power. The District Administration Committee recommended that the continued union panchayats which are to be the foundation of the structure of the Local Self-Government should exercise not only municipal, and judicial functions but police function to boot. That report is the basis of the Village Self-Government Bill, and it must have struck the most superficial student of the Bill that though provisions have been made for giving municipal and judicial powers of a very responsible character to the presidents they have not been invested with any police function.

There is an apprehension in certain quarters that substantial police power given to the presidents will have the effect of weakening the influence of the regular police in the villages. There are some extremists amongst the officials who would divest the village Council of all police functions. We know that various steps have been taken from time to time to enhance the influence of the official police in the villages. It is a matter of profound regret that the framers of the Bill before us should have accepted and acted upon this orthodox opinion. The present Bill is the outcome of a policy of trust in the people. It is based upon the doctrine laid down by Sir Rivers Thompson half a century before, while introducing the Chowkidari Bill, 1870, that it is the duty and policy of the Government to leave as much as possible of the business of the country to be done by the people themselves. This Bill proposes to give us powers which were formerly withheld. It is proposed to invest the president with powers of a magistrate and a munsif. These are powers of immense responsibility. How is it then that the framers of the Bill do not venture to give him the powers of a daroga. Babu Dakshina Charan Sen, a retired Deputy Magistrate has, in his illuminating and valuable note, shown, on the basis of figures taken from Police Administration Report the absolute futility of police investigation in certain classes of offences. He has shown that the police may be relieved of these duties with advantage both to the Government and to the people, and he has emphasised the importance of investing the union board with powers enjoyed by police-officers under the Criminal Procedure Code. I do not propose nor have I the power in a Provincial Council to propose, that these powers should be given exclusively to the village president. I only propose that the president should enjoy these powers concurrently with the thana officers. I concur with Babu Dakshina Charan Sen in recommending that for the present the president be given power to take cognizance of the following offences under the Penal Code, namely, sections 143, 147, 269, 277, 279, 283, 321, 325, 335, 341, 342, 377, 380, 411, 428, 447, 448, 453, 454, 456 and 457.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler ; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; Mr. Kerr.

My Lord, I think it is high time that these police functions should be entrusted to the president of the union boards. That was the recommendation of the District Administration Committee ; there is no reason why, while the other recommendations have been accepted, this particular recommendation should not be accepted. As regards the powers under sections 64, 127 and 128, these are powers which, as a matter of fact, were conferred already upon the presidents by the system introduced by Mr. Savage. With these observations, I move this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Can the Hon'ble Member give the reference to the paragraph in the District Administration Committee's report which endorses his proposal ?"

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I shall require one or two minutes to do so."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"This amendment, my Lord, as the Hon'ble Member has observed, is an important one. The Hon'ble Member has given us as his authority, for a provision of this nature, the Police Commission's Report and the District Administration Committee's Report. I think there must be some misapprehension as regards the Police Commission's Report. What the Police Commission said was that we should utilise and develop the village agency for reporting crime and leave the people as far as possible to dispose of petty matters for themselves. These two things we have provided for in this Bill. Clause 26 (now clause 23) of the Bill gives the chaukidar power to report crime, and Part II of the Bill gives power to the union bench to dispose of petty offences. That, I think, is as far as the Police Commission ever meant to go, and as far as I know, there is nothing in the report of the District Administration Committee to indicate that they proposed to go further. What the Hon'ble Member proposes to do is to go a very long way further and to turn presidents of union boards into police-officers. He proposes to give the president power to arrest criminals or suspicious persons or persons without any ostensible means of subsistence, or persons who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves and so on, and not only this, but the president is to have the power of investigating a long list of offences including riots, grievous hurt, unlawful restraint, theft, mischief, criminal trespass and burglary. It is further proposed that in exercise of his power of sending up accused persons for trial, the president shall act only with the concurrence in writing of two other members of the union board to be elected annually for the purpose by members of the union board. I would ask the Council to consider seriously what the practical effect of these two proposals is going to be. In the first place, do we want to invest the presidents of union boards with these extensive police functions?

We are giving them new functions and heavier responsibilities in the matter of providing for sanitation, public health and the well-being of the villages. We are giving them power to try cases as amateur magistrates and as amateur civil courts. For all this, we have a precedent in the rural parts of England and Scotland, where for many generations, country gentlemen have exercised functions of this kind in an amateur sort of way to the general satisfaction of the community among which they live. We believe that, at any rate, in parts of Bengal, a similar experiment has a fair chance of success and we propose to try it here. I do not think however that anybody, except the Hon'ble Member, has ever proposed to go so far as he does in the matter of vesting the members of village committees with the powers of the regular police, and I think it would be very risky to do so at a time when we are enlarging their functions in other and as we consider more suitable directions. I, therefore, object to the proposal contained in this amendment on principle, and I object still more to it as a matter of practical working. The first thing to notice is that this clause 37B gives the president concurrent jurisdiction with the officer in charge of a police-station to investigate the offences which I have mentioned. Now it is an axiom in all police work that it is a fatal mistake to have dual-investigating authorities going into a case at the same time. If you have two men investigating a case, they will start different theories and different methods of investigation and both of them will make a thorough mess of it, not to speak of the worry which would be caused to the parties and witnesses by having to attend on two separate investigating authorities. This difficulty arises in every civilised country at present as between the local police and what we call here the Central Criminal Investigation Department. The local police start on the investigation of a case, and then a Criminal Investigation Department man comes down from head-quarters and drops in with a new line of investigation and some times spoils the whole thing. That sort of difficulty can be obviated by careful arrangements when both the investigating authorities are under police discipline and subject to the same authority, but the Hon'ble Member proposes to give investigating powers to a non-official agency subject to no discipline or authority whatever. That is the first practical objection to the Hon'ble Member's scheme.

Now suppose the president has got over these difficulties and has managed to catch his thief and has decided to send him up for trial. Do you suppose that his troubles are over then? Under the present amendment, as it stands, he has then got to go and get hold of two of his colleagues on the board, to show them all the papers of the case and to get their concurrence before he can send the accused up for trial before a magistrate. These two members would want to send for all the witnesses in the case and to see all the papers relating to it, and would thus cause a great deal of worry and trouble to all concerned. besides, the further risk of the case breaking down at that stage. Let us now make a further assumption and suppose that these difficulties also have been got over and the case is actually sent up for trial. We all know that the line frequently taken by the defence in court is to get hold of the first information and to cross-examine the investigating police-officer and anybody who had anything to do with the investigation of the case and to try to make them contradict themselves. Then the defence counsel argues that the case is false, because the police-officers could not tell a consistent story. If this amendment was carried, the defence would be able to cross-examine the president and the two members of the boards besides the police-officer who had assisted in the investigation, or who might have been carrying out a separate line of investigation of his own. There is every prospect that the case would break down, without the merits having been gone into at all. This is not an exaggerated account of the manner in which this proposal would work. The only person who would benefit would be the thief or the burglar. The chances are that he would never be sent up for trial at all, and if he was sent up, he would almost certainly be acquitted. I submit, therefore, my Lord, that the proposal would be quite unworkable in practice, and that the Council would not be well-advised to accept this amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, as regards the quotations that have been made, so far as the quotations from the Police Commission's Report are concerned, I have given the references, and have quoted the exact words. As regards the other report—I mean the report of the District Administration Committee—I find the following proposals made by them on page 110 of the report :—

"The functions of the union panchayats under the proposed circle scheme will include the following :—

Police Chaukidari,	Executive.
Judicial.	Local Self-Government.'

Now, my Lord, the functions of Judicial, Executive and Local Self-Government have been given to the presidents ; the only question that has been made is in the case of police courts ; that is the general principle that has been laid down. Later on it is said in this report—

'It is proposed that each member of the panchayat should be appointed headman under section 45 of the Criminal Procedure Code, not for the entire union but only for the particular ward which he represents. His functions will be those prescribed by the Village Chaukidari Act and by the rules in the Chaukidari Manual, except that, if a Secretary is appointed to receive and collect the tax, it will not be necessary for the panchayat to appoint one of their own number to be a collecting member.

In paragraphs 49 to 57 of their letter of the 7th August, 1911, the Eastern Bengal and Assam Board have dealt very fully with the question of the duties to be entrusted to the panchayats under the heads "Police and Crime" and "Village Police," and we agree generally with their proposals.'

Now, my Lord, what seems to me to be most remarkable is this : that although there was a Police Commission who enquired into the whole question, although they made their recommendations, although there were several resolutions on the subject issued by the Government and although the principle was recognised by the District Administration Committee, it is very remarkable that even the principle has not been accepted in the Bill. On the question of details I may be wrong—I may have asked for more powers than I should have asked and probably there may be differences in details—but the question arises—has this Bill recognised even the principle that has been laid down by the Police Commission that many police functions should be given to the president of the village? Their recommendations are very very strong and I have already placed them before the Council. They said that it is necessary not only from the people's point of view but also from the Government's point of view. These were the recommendations made in 1902-03, which were discussed again by the District Administration Committee, who proposed that police functions should be given to them. That report is the basis of the present Bill. Was it not proper that these recommendations should have been accepted? It has not been done. Of course we can argue on both sides—I can give my own reasons and the Hon'ble Mr. Korr can give his reasons. But what appears to me is this : are we not more or less bound to accept the recommendations of the Police Commission on a matter like this? Of course there is no legal bar, but I should think that it is rather too late in the day to refute the principle laid down in the report of the Police Commission. If that principle had been recognised in the Bill there might at least have been some difference of opinion, but what cannot be explained is that here was an occasion on which the recommendations of the Police Commission should have been accepted ; although an attempt has been made to raise the status of the chaukidar to that of a police officer on the ground that these powers were given in 1870,

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

but we are now in 1919. That is reason for advance with regard to chaukidars, but what about the president. Of course, if these were the recommendations and not revolutionary proposals made by any untrained man without any knowledge of the subject or by any impatient idealist, then of course I would not have pressed them, but my recommendation is based on the verdict of the Police Commission and there is no reason why that report should be brushed aside like this absolutely. I must confess that I may possibly be wrong in the details I have given, but certainly the principle should have been recognised, and I think Government should consider as to whether the recommendations of the Police Commission should be given effect to or not."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I take strong exception, on the evidence which the hon'ble mover has laid before the Council, to the inference that he has drawn that his extraordinary proposal has the support of the District Administration Committee. I particularly requested him to give his references, and in answer he refers to the word 'Police' in paragraph 126. Apparently he would have us believe that the mention of the word 'Police' covers his proposal, although the Committee devoted pages and pages to explaining in detail what exactly they did mean, and it is incomprehensible that if they had contemplated anything like this inquiry by an elected authority, they would not have said so in specific language. The reference, I take it, in paragraph 126 is to the supervision over the police functions of chaukidars, and it is incredible, if I may say so, that the Committee could have contemplated so great a change in procedure as the amendment suggests without justifying it by detailed reasons. I can give the Hon'ble Member another reason which would almost have rendered it obligatory that they should have justified their action if they had wished to take up a position analogous to the amendment. I have referred previously to Mr. Savage's inquiries and to certain orders that were passed about the time of his investigations which did encourage reports of offences being taken to the president of the panchayat. Because it was found that those rules, which were only meant to cover the reporting of offences, encouraged the presidents to fancy themselves investigating officers, the system was discarded; and in the light of that fact I say again that it is incredible that the District Administration Committee should have recommended the revival of that system without even a word of explanation."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 100 AND 101.

In the absence of the hon'ble mover, the following motions were deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that for clause 38 (now clause 37) the following be substituted, namely :—

"38. (1) By the month of October in each year, the union board shall prepare a budget of expenses for the next financial year and submit the same to the district board by the end of the second week in November. The district board may call for any information or explanation regarding the expenditure which the union board proposes to incur and may make such modifications in the budget as they think fit :—

Provided that in the case of any difference of opinion with regard to any item of expenditure between the union board and the district board, an appeal shall lie at the instance of either board to the District-Magistrate, whose orders shall be final.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

(2) The district board shall then decide, by the end of January, how much of the expenses of the union board shall be met by contributions and grants from the district fund, and shall place such sums at the disposal of the union board at least one month before the beginning of the financial year.

(3) The balance of the expenses of the union board shall be met by contributions made by the Local Government."

If motion No. 63 be carried, also to move that sub-clause (a) of clause 38 (now clause 37) be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 102.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after the words "owners or occupiers of buildings" in line 2 of clause 38 (now clause 37) the words "and on the owners of fisheries, carts, carriages, boats and steamers" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, this is in regard to the difficult question of the financing of the union board. We all know that it is rather difficult to finance the union boards properly in view of the ambiguous programme of work that has been placed before the union boards. Therefore all attempts made to increase the resources of the union boards should be welcomed. Now, all that I propose is this that the owners of fisheries, carts, carriages, boats and steamers be included, because we all know that the owner or occupier of a building is liable to taxation and the owner of a fishery may be in a very much better position to make the payment. I do not know the reason why he should escape the taxation. Then we also know that there are people in the villages who do business in boats and so on, and they are precisely the people who are in a position to contribute to the union fund and who should not escape the taxation. In the villages even those people who are owners or occupiers of kutcha houses or sheds are liable to taxation and therefore it is only fair and proper that these people, who are owners of fisheries, carts, carriages, etc., and derive an income from all that should also contribute towards the union fund.

Now as regards carts and carriages I would draw the attention of the Council to the recommendation of the District Administration Committee on page 100 where they say—

'We think therefore that there is no need to widen the basis of taxation, and that the possession of a house or cutcherry should continue to be the criterion for the imposition of the tax. It might, however, be made clear that a house includes a building, boat or temporary structure in which business of any kind is transacted, and not merely a dwelling house, which is the construction liable to be put upon the section as it stands.'

The section here referred to is the section of the Chaukidaai Act. In this connection I can refer to section 118 (c) of the Local Self Government Act, III of 1885, where of course the words are tank, water-course and so on. I have advisedly omitted tanks and water-courses as they are not proper subjects for taxation ; and so in their place I have proposed fishery because that is a source of income and that is the reason why I want to include fisheries.

With these words, my Lord, I propose that these words may be included."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, in framing the taxation proposals of the Bill, we adhered as closely as possible to the two precedents of the Chaukidari and Local Self-Government Acts. The people who are assessable under the Chaukidari Act, in accordance with section 14, are the owners or occupiers of houses in any village and any person who has within such a village a cutchery for collecting rents; the people who are assessable under section 118-C. of the Local Self-Government Act are the owners of buildings, tanks, wells or water-courses, and the Council may remember that, at one time, tanks, wells and water-courses figured in the Bill. The first Select Committee, at the request of one Hon'ble Member, took out wells and the second Select Committee took out tanks and water-courses, after examination of the reasons for which they were put in section 118-C., which we thought were inadequate. That, therefore, left us with the owners and occupiers of buildings, who now stand in the clause, and I would deprecate the fresh departures which this amendment suggests. The scope of taxation, as it now stands, is clear. It covers the people who own or occupy buildings, and assesses them according to circumstances and property; that is to say, it adopts a personal basis of taxation for those who are the owners or occupiers of property in the village; but if we bring in these other suggestions advocated in the amendment, we get to rather different considerations.

With reference to fisheries, if, of course, the owner of a fishery, owns or occupies a building in the village, he will be assessable; if he does not, then he rather ranks with the absentee landlord; and fisheries like lands—I may remind the Council—are assessable to road-cess. It has been a subject of discussion whether the absentee landlord should pay the union rate; but we have not thought fit to render him liable to taxation, and if we do not render the absentee landlord liable, there is no particular point in rendering the absentee fishery owner liable; whereas, if he is not an absentee, he will come in as the owner or occupier of a building.

"When we come to carts, carriages, boats and steamers, and the owners thereof, we get back to the idea underlying certain forms of municipal taxation, namely, the idea of a conveyance tax—that the users of the roads and water-channels should pay for their upkeep from which they benefit. That is a different consideration from the basis of taxation in the Bill, which, as I have said, is in accordance with the two precedents which are the foundation of these proposals. As the Hon'ble Member has referred to the opinion of the District Administration Committee, I may point out that they wanted to assess the owners and occupiers of boats, and, in the circumstances of Eastern Bengal, there is something to be said in favour of the idea on which, I believe, Sir Nicholas Beatson-Bell was personally keen. We had some talk about it in Select Committee, but we thought that there were practical difficulties in the way, and we dropped it. The scheme of the Bill is simple, and I would deprecate complicating it further."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing to add, but I wish to point out that this is at least one occasion on which in a question of local taxation by the people themselves the non-officials want to go more than the officials because the charge is always laid at our door that we the non-officials are always averse to taxation. On the merits of the amendment after what I have heard from the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, of course I also cannot speak with anything like confidence, and I feel that for the reasons which have been explained by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, I am not in a position to say that they are not sound. So owing to this state of uncertainty I would not press this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 103.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"This amendment has become unnecessary, therefore I request permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn. It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the words "the sum" in line 1 of sub-clause (a) of clause 38 the words "half the sum" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 105.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that the words "if any" in line 2 of sub-clause (a) of clause 38 be omitted.

He said :—

"Clause 38 of the Bill prescribes the imposition of the rate, and the work of the union board as far as I can gather from this Bill will be carried out from the proceeds of that rate, called the union rate, which will be levied on the area, and the union rate will be calculated on the basis of the cost of the salaries and equipment of chaukidars and daffadars deducting the contribution, if any, made by the local Government and the estimated cost required for carrying out other works imposed on the board under this Act. My object in moving this amendment is that the words 'if any' may be deleted, that is to say, that the Government contribution should be assured to the board. I do not ask the Council to lay down any hard-and-fast rules. These words 'if any' make it an uncertain factor, but if these words are removed, they are certain to obtain some contribution. As far as I find the payment of salaries of chaukidars and daffadars and their equipment is made a first charge upon the revenues of the union boards under clause 47 (now clause 46), and these daffadars and chaukidars have to be employed by the union boards, not for the purpose of municipal work but for the purpose of ordinary administration. Under schedule 2 it will be seen that they have to do the work of regular police in the area where they will be employed. All cases of murder, dacoity, theft, house-breaking and all possible offences shall be taken cognizance of by this police staff. Strictly speaking it is not municipal work, but work which properly belongs to the State, and State-aid should therefore be guaranteed, whatever that amount may be. My proposition is a very simple one : it does not fetter the hands of the Government to any definite sum, it would be quite at the discretion of the Government to contribute Re. 1 or Rs. 1,000. My amendment is framed with the object that the principle that contributions should be made by Government should be accepted, and it is left to the option of the Government what the amount of that contribution should be, whereas the imposition of the rate will be a statutory obligation on the part of the union. Assuming that a greater part of the rate is consumed by the payment of these chaukidars, and if no Government contribution is forthcoming, then works of other kinds in the union would suffer.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

There are various works to be taken up by the union board in connection with sanitation, drainage, etc., and offences under the Cattle Trespass Act and variour other things, and therefore it will be seen that the union board will require a considerable sum of money to do their work. These unions will be established in areas where there are no municipalities, and they will have to do the work of the municipality and if the salaries of chaukidars, etc., were made the first charge upon their revenues, I think it is only fair and reasonable that they should get some Government contribution, and that there should not be any ambiguity about it. I am sure Government will contribute a sufficient sum of money, and when Government are really willing to do so, I think there should be no objection to having a provision in the Bill to this effect. It will reassure the public mind, and it would look very graceful."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, the suggestions underlying these amendments are similar to those which we argued yesterday, and I do not propose to repeat the arguments at length. The clause which the Hon'ble Member would have us amend deals solely with the salaries of chaukidars and daffadars and the cost of their equipment, and it says that the union boards shall raise the necessary funds, less the contribution, if any, made by Government. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur desires to leave out the words 'if any', in order to make it obligatory on Government to make a contribution to the union board which would be used towards the cost of chaukidars and daffadars. May I first explain why we put in these words 'if any'. They were inserted in view of the practice, which is at present in force in one district of this province, under which, as an experimental measure, Government has contributed to the pay of daffadars. The idea of daffadars is that they should be a better class of men than the chaukidars—in fact, what Mr. Kerr has termed this morning, a sort of non-commissioned officer. The status of the daffadar is still to some extent experimental, and in order to see if we could get a better class of men by offering better pay, in one sub-division we offered to contribute a share of their pay in order to be able to give a higher pay than the panchayet could afford. In return for that contribution we asked the panchayet to let us have a much larger voice in the selection of the persons appointed. The panchayets agreed and that experiment is now in force. It is somewhat early to say whether it has proved itself a success or not, but it was largely with that experiment in mind that the original proposal of the Bill was framed which would have vested the appointment of the daffadar in the district magistrate. We dropped that proposal and are maintaining the present system, and to that extent there is the less reason for altering the present system by which the pay of the daffadars and chaukidars is ordinarily met from the village assessment. The case to which I have alluded was an exceptional case entirely. It was justified by special reasons, and it is a different proposition altogether to ask us to accept a change of wording which is going to establish the principle—a very far-reaching principle, although the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur calls it a very simple amendment—that Government is under an obligation to contribute to the pay of chaukidars. Yesterday the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri proposed a definite amendment that Government should contribute half of this cost, and I explained the reasons why we could not do so and why we could not accept so large a financial obligation. If we did, we should only have to raise the money from some other sources. The point has been considered before, and it was held that, all things considered, the assessment of the union rate was probably more acceptable to the people than anything else. The alternative of a land cess had been shown by experience to be highly unacceptable to the zemindars, while the consequences likely to ensue from such a change of principle, viz., the supercession of the village union by Government in the matter of the control of chaukidars, and the tendency to convert the chaukidar into a member of the police force, would be greatly resented in various quarters. For these reasons that amendment was eventually lost, and I maintain that the arguments apply equally to the present proposition, even though the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur says that he does not mind how much Government contributes so long as it accepts the principle that it should contribute. To that my answer would be that if we are obliged to contribute and if we contribute, say, an anna, we are reducing the Act to a farce. Obviously, if we concede the principle, we must contribute substantially, and probably, nothing short of a contribution of a half, which Babu Kisori Mohan Chauduri proposed, would be regarded as fair if we undertook the obligation. For these reasons I oppose the amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai D. C. Ghose Bahadur; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

"My Lord, I wish to say something on this matter. I must confess that I labour under the disadvantage of living in a town where there is no chaukidari system in vogue. But I feel that my hon'ble friend Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, who is also a cityman, has said something which commends itself to me and that being so and having had the advantage of hearing the discussion which took place in Council yesterday as to the reason for the provision of making the chaukidar or the dafadar not much of a servant of the union board, I feel I have got to say something on the subject. The chaukidars and dafadars are police officers and therefore I venture to support the proposition put forward by the Hon'ble Mover that there should be something in the Bill which would lay down the principle that the State should contribute something to the fund out of which its expenditure is to be met. In private life we see that if a person serves you, you serve him too or pay him, and it is but right that Government should contribute something towards the expenditure for keeping men who will be joint servants of the Government and the union board. As my hon'ble friend has suggested the principle may be laid down in the Bill. Of course if the Government are to contribute an anna it could be a farce. But the actual proportion of contribution may be left to the good sense of the Government. If the words 'if any' are allowed to remain in the Bill there will always be the apprehension of Government saying that under the Act it is not obligatory on them to pay anything. And I do not think it is an improper request on the part of my hon'ble friend that these words should be left out."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have tried to follow Sir Henry Wheeler, and as far as I understand him he will not accept the amendment because by doing so he would be accepting the principle of the Government contribution. I shall be content to leave it to the House to consider whether that principle has not been already accepted in the clause as it stands. The clause says that the union board shall impose yearly on the owners and occupiers of buildings a rate amounting to the sum required for their expenditure, less the contribution, if any, by Government. Now, my Lord, if it is not the intention of the Government to conribute anything why should these words be placed here to raise false hopes in the minds of the people The very fact that these words appear in the clause shows that the Government do intend to contribute something. Hence, the principle of Government contribution is accepted. The union boards are enjoined to do various municipal works by various clauses, chiefly by clauses 28, 28A, 29 and 30 (now clauses 25, et seq). They are required to maintain roads, see to the water-supply, improve the drainage and conservancy, and ge nerally to do all works calculated to promote the health, convenience and safety of the public. The expenditure is to be met from the union fund. But if the salaries of chaukidars and dafadars are to be made the first charge on their income, and after meeting that charge the balance available is not sufficient to meet the charges for municipal work what are the union boards to do? How are they to carry on their municipal work? You may say that they may increase their rate. But so far as I remember the District Administration Committee themselves said that the imposition of local taxation would make self-government unpopular in these rural areas. I, therefore, suggest that Government should contribute substantially if they wish to make self-government successful in this country. The principle, as I have said, is accepted in the clause. I want to make it obligatory but at the same time I do not want to lay down that Government should contribute a certain percentage. They may contribute one anna or one thousand rupees. Of course I know it would be ridiculous to pay one anna, and I am sure Government will contribute a substantial sum according to the requirements of the union board. All I want is to make it obligatory on the part of the Government to pay something to these self-governing local bodies which will help them in making self-government successful at its initial stage."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler; The President.

The Ayes being 12 and the Noes 27, the motion was lost.

AMENDMENT No. 104.

An identical motion, No. 104, standing in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray was deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 106, 107 and 108.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the words, "if any, made by the Local Government in this behalf" in lines 2 and 3 of sub-clause (a) of clause 38 (now clause 37) be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I think there is something inappropriate in the arrangement as I find that I cannot move No. 107 without having a decision of the Council on No. 108 and that again I cannot move without a decision on No. 133. But I would like to solve the whole difficulty in this way No. 133 refers to a compulsory contribution by Government and that point having been just now decided in Council it is no good moving that amendment now. Strictly speaking, I should think that it is out of order, and if I cannot move No. 133 I cannot move No. 108 either and necessarily No. 107 also falls to the ground. That being the real position, my Lord, I think the proper order is that Your Excellency will rule No. 133 as out of order, then all these will fall to the ground.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, in the first place it is correct that Nos. 107 and 108 must be read as one; and it is also correct that No. 133 would make it obligatory on Government to make a contribution of a third of the total expenditure of the union board. Therefore, I think, the Hon'ble Member is correct that No. 133 is covered by the decision of the Council."

The President said :—

"The Hon'ble Member is referring to item 133, i.e., the proposed new clause 46A. Is that so?"

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"Yes, my Lord."

The President said :—

"That is certainly out of order owing to the decision already come to by the Council. That being so, does the Hon'ble Member propose to withdraw Nos. 107 and 108?"

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"Yes, my Lord."

The motions were then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Mr. O'Malley.

They were as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that the words "after deduction of the contribution, if any, made by the Local Government in this behalf" in lines 1, 2 and 3 of sub-clause (a) of clause 38 (now clause 37) be omitted.

Also to move that after the words "from defaulters" in the last line of clause 38 (now clause 37) the following be added, namely :—

"after deduction of the contribution made by the district board under section 46 and by the Local Government under section 46A."

AMENDMENT No. 109.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after clause 38 (now clause 37) the following be added, namely :—

"Provided that the owners of the buildings which remain unoccupied throughout the year shall be assessed at half of the amount which they would otherwise have been liable to pay."

He said :—

"My Lord, what I really intended was this : there are many cases in which the people live in the town although they have got a homestead in the village, and that they do not come to the village except for, say, 12 days in the year during the Puja vacation. A very large number of people fall under this category. I think it would be a great hardship upon them if they are to pay the tax as if they are living in the villages all the 12 months in the year, and at the same time in the interest of the union board they cannot escape the taxation altogether. Therefore I propose that their liability should be to the extent of 8 annas."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, this amendment follows to some extent the procedure of the Bengal Municipal Act. Section 95 of that Act provides that where a tax on persons is levied the assessment on a holding which becomes vacant in the course of the year shall cease to have effect from the first day of the quarter after that in which it became vacant. Section 110, which applies in cases where there is a rate on holdings, prescribes a different system. That section provides that if a building is vacant for 60 consecutive days or more in the year, half the rate shall be remitted or refunded as the case may be, in proportion to the number of days unoccupied ; but the owner must give notice of the vacancy and apply for a refund within six months of his notice. Both these sections are different from the present amendment. The former provides for the assessment ceasing in the next quarter, the latter for a proportionate remission or refund of the rate on holdings. We have not got, however, a rate on holdings in this Bill. The rate is a personal tax to be imposed on owners and occupiers of buildings according to circumstances and property just as the personal tax is in the Municipal Act. Moreover, the assessment is to be made in the beginning of the year, and the amendment proposed fails to meet that difficulty. It will be always open to an owner who considers that he is hardly treated to apply for a revision of the assessment under clause 40 (now clause 39). That clause sufficiently provides for the case of unoccupied buildings as the union board should be trusted to take into account the fact that a building is unoccupied and that the owner may lose rent in consequence. It is unnecessary to have an amendment like that proposed, which would only introduce an undesirable complication in procedure ; and on this account I must oppose the amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 110.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "not less than two-thirds" in line 5 of sub-clause (b) of clause 38 (now clause 37) the words "a majority" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I must admit that this is a point on which there will be a large difference of opinion. It is only a question of expediency. The view that some people take is this : if the majority be a two-thirds majority, in that case it will be very difficult practically to pass a resolution at the meeting of the union board about taxation, and it cannot be said that this is an apprehension which is not founded on facts. If so, then this being a question of local taxation and in the absence of any statutory local contribution by the Government and in view of the limited resources of the District Board and if it is difficult to pass any resolution about taxation at a meeting, then the whole Act will be a dead-letter and inoperative. That is a prospect of things which we cannot contemplate with anything like satisfaction. Therefore, my Lord, I proposed that instead of two-thirds majority it should be a bare majority. Of course, as I have said, there is a difference of opinion, as it can be said by the other side that the matter is of such supreme importance that the resolution should not be passed light-heartedly and unless two-thirds of the members are present that very important step should not be taken. There are two sides of the question, and taking both the sides into consideration I do think that in the interest of the successful operation of this Act for which we are all keen and anxious that steps should be taken which will make the taxation easier. It is from this point of view, my Lord, that I propose that two-thirds may be substituted by a bare majority."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, as the Hon'ble Member has said, this amendment raises an arguable point. Under the scheme of the Bill the obligation which is laid upon the union board is that it must pay for its chaukidars and dafadars and their equipment, but it may launch out into other municipal improvements if, by a majority of two-thirds of the total number of the members of the board at a specially convened meeting, it thinks fit to do so. We framed the provision in that way, requiring a majority of two-thirds, on the analogy of section 118C(1) of the Local Self-Government Act, which, in the case of a union committee, requires a two-thirds majority before the optional powers of taxation can be utilised. The Bill as framed, therefore, makes this resort to taxation over and above what is required by the union boards to pay the chaukidars, etc., a step only to be undertaken after careful consideration. They must call a special meeting and carry two-thirds of the villagers with them. The amendment suggests that it should only be necessary to carry a majority, which would render easier the imposition of further taxation : but in framing the Bill we thought that, as the working of these bodies was new, it might be well to adhere to the precedent of the Local Self-Government Act. But if the sense of the Council prefers to take a more liberal view I, personally, should have no objection."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I beg to oppose the amendment for various reasons. I need not amplify my reasons, but I submit that there is a difference of opinion between the Hon'ble Mover of the amendment and others. I think it will be a retrograde movement if the proposition put forward by the Hon'ble Member is accepted."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta ; The President ; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have already said that this is a very controversial matter and things may be said on both sides. In view of the opposition made not only by Government but also by some of the non-official members I should not press it and with Your Excellency's permission I would withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 111.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta :—

That after clause 38 (now clause 37) the following be inserted, namely :—

"38A. One-fourth of the total amount raised by taxation under section 38 shall be raised from amongst the zamindars whether resident or not. In Khas mahal areas the Government is to be considered as zamindar.

38B. The income derived from pounds within the union shall be credited to the union fund."

He said : —

"My Lord, this is an amendment in which I know I shall be opposed by some of the non-official members, and knowing that there is not the least chance of the amendment being carried and also feeling that this is a very controversial matter and also knowing that the verdict of the District Administration Committee is against it, I think it will not serve any useful purpose to press it. I would, therefore, with Your Excellency's permission, withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 112 to 115.

The President said :—

"The next four amendments deal with assessments of one person but they seek to vary them by different amounts. I am prepared to put each amendment separately, but it would not be in order to have four separate discussions on the four amendments. Hon'ble Members who take interest in this matter will kindly speak on the first motion."

AMENDMENT No. 112.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem moved that for the words "eighty-four" in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 39 (now clause 38) the words "ninety-six" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, on this point there are four amendments of which notice has been given. The Bill provides for Rs. 84 as the maximum amount of tax to be realized from any one individual. I suggest Rs. 96, i.e., an advance of Re. 1 a month on the individual contribution to the fund. My hon'ble friend Kumar Shib Shekareswar Ray, the zealous and the most ardent of the territorial magnates in this Council, would like to reduce it by one rupee reducing the maximum to Rs. 72. The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, a distinguished leader of public opinion in this Presidency, would reduce it still more and make it Rs. 60, i.e., a monthly contribution of Rs. 5, and the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur wants to make it Rs. 48. In these circumstances, I think the safest course would be to leave the matter as it is in the Bill and the maximum not reduced.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray.

My Lord, my object in increasing the maximum amount of taxation is that according to the progress of the Bill the union board will have to make a budget of its expenses and make the assessment according to that budget, and if you fix the maximum taxation upon any particular individual at Rs. 84 the result will be that the balance will have to be realized from the poorer members of the community residing in that union. My object is that the burden should fall on the wealthier class who are well able to bear it and the poorer people should be exempted as much as possible. It may be said that there will be a tendency to over-assess the rich men of the union, but there I can assure this House and Your Excellency's Government that there will be absolutely no chance of over-assessment of the rich men. Unlike the municipal towns the rich men of union will be men of very great influence and no union board, whether it is composed of three representatives or more, will ever venture to over-assess the zemindars or the rich money-lenders. So the question is if you fix the maximum at only Rs. 7 a month the result will be that the poorer men in the union will have to pay more than they ought to pay. I know that according to the present Act Rs. 12 is the maximum as the chaukidari tax, but in answer to that I can say that was a very low maximum fixed in the Chaukidari Act. I cannot say why this was fixed at so low a figure. The result is that in chaukidari unions the poorer men have to pay proportionately much higher than the richer people. Rupees 8 a month as the maximum is not very high, and neither will it be the case that the maximum amount of taxation will be realized from each individual, but those who are sufficiently wealthy ought to pay according to their means. The Act as it stands, my Lord, says that the occupiers and owners of the building will have to pay these taxes and as the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said only the owners and occupiers whether they do other business or not will be the only persons to be assessed. It is questionable whether children, adult sons, or nephews living with their parents will be considered occupiers of these buildings or not, because under the Municipal Act occupiers are those who have a legal right to occupation and those who live by suferance such as widows or children. But in this case the only person who will pay the tax is the owner, that is head of the family, though his other adult sons may be rich and may be doing successful business and getting a large income. Therefore my suggestion is that Rs. 84 should be changed to Rs. 96. It is a surprise to me that some of those who are very keen on self-government have made an attempt to reduce it to Rs. 84 that has been fixed by the Bill. But I hope the better sense of the Council will prevail and they will make wealthier men pay more who are able to pay than the poorer men."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"My Lord, under the present Local Self-Government Act the maximum limit of taxation is Rs. 60, i.e., Rs. 5 a month. Again under the Chaukidari Act th maximum limit is Rs. 12 and that comes up to Rs. 72 per annum. I do not therefore see any reason why the maximum limit of taxation is going to be raised. We all know that there is a provision of Rs. 60 as the maximum under the Local Self-Government Act. The taxation now raised from the union committees is about ½ of the chaukidari tax and my hon'ble friend, Maulvi Abul Kasem, wants to make it Rs. 96. He has not given any definite grounds for raising the amount, while I have something definite to stand upon when I suggest that it should be reduced to Rs. 72."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, here we have to deal with taxation which will have to be borne by the rural population. I take the case of municipalities where the people are much better off, more enlightened and more educated and at the same time earning more than the village people. There the maximum is Rs. 84, and I ask this Council—are we going to fix the maximum for the village population at the same rate at which the urban population are taxed? My friend, the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem, has gone off at a tangent from us and he wants to go higher up than Rs. 84, and I hope and trust that many people of the generous disposition of my friend will go to the villages and try to relieve their difficulties and pay for the conservancy of the villages. My Lord, taxes are going up in other directions and we must take into account the condition and the position of the people in the villages. It is said that there are rich people in the villages and they ought to pay more. But are we to forget that those rich people who have got a residence in the villages are the people who live in towns, carry on business there, and they pay taxation also with respect to their business in municipalities and other towns. Are we going to say that because they have got the fault of having some little money, they must be ground down by taxation to any amount for merely having a residence in the village. Sir, we have in this Bill provided that a man not merely residing but having a residence in the village will be a voter and will be liable to taxation. But the very same man actually works and earns money in a town where he has to pay municipal taxes and also license fees. I think therefore that it is a very bad policy and mistaken generosity just to say that these people ought to be ground down and the taxes ought to go higher up than Rs. 84. Although I have said that it should be Rs. 60, I am inclined to agree with the gentleman who will be called next after me and will move that it should be reduced to Rs. 48."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, what struck me was this : that as under the Bengal Municipal Act the second clause has the maximum of Rs. 84, I thought that as a matter of corollary the taxation in these miniature municipal areas should be half that amount. I have no desire to give relief to the rich people—I do not know how many people there are in the outlying villages, and as far as my knowledge goes they are within the municipal areas. I think that this taxation will press very heavily on the poorer classes. I have nothing further to say on this matter."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"In the Bill as first introduced there was no maximum taxation limit at all, and to tha extent it followed the recommendation of the District Administration Committee, but that Committee anticipated that there would be opposition to the omission, and when we were examining the Bill that anticipation was found to be realized. We discovered that various people advocated the retention of limits. The Select Committee thought that it would be as well to give way to that opinion, and decided to insert a limit. Then the question arose what should be the limit, as all these limits must to some extent be somewhat arbitrary, and we based our figure on the following calculations. Under the Chaukidari Act the maximum limit is Rs. 12 a year; under the Local Self-Government Act of 1885 the maximum limit for a union committee is Rs. 60 a year, making a total of Rs. 72 a year. But for some time past the fact has been recognized that the 12-rupee limit under the Chaukidari Act is too low, and it was the recommendation of the District Administration Committee that it should be put at Rs. 24. So, substituting Rs. 24 for Rs. 12, and adding Rs. 60 to it, we come to the figure of Rs. 84, which also happened to be the limit of the Municipal Act, and that figure we have accordingly put in the Bill. In my opinion this figure is quite as good as any other, and preferable to those alternatives which have been suggested. Rupees 96 may be too high and Rs. 48 is certainly too low. As between Rs. 60 and Rs. 72 there is not much difference, but I have explained to the Council the calculations we made and why we took the figure Rs. 84, to which I would adhere. Moreover, if we are to be guided by the experience of chaukidari assessments in the past, and for the matter of that of union assessments also, the whole question of a maximum is rather of theoretical interest only as it is difficult to induce the average assessing authority to go up to anywhere near it."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai D. C. Ghose Bahadur; Maulvi Abul Kasem.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I cannot support this amendment. The clause does not oblige the union boards to levy the maximum rate from any person residing within its area. That being so, I do not see why there should be a complaint about the maximum amount fixed in the Bill as being too high or as likely to be oppressive in its operation. Without going so far as fixing the maximum at Rs. 96 as proposed by the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem I think the maximum may remain as it is in the Bill. Considering that the purchasing power of the rupee has gone down considerably since the Bengal Municipal Act was passed, I think the union board might still have sufficient funds at its disposal to defray the cost of the works entrusted to them."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry I have not been able to make myself understood by the Hon'ble Members on this side of the House. I have been told that the maximum fixed by the Municipal Act is Rs. 84, but I would draw attention to the fact that in municipalities there are certain rates of assessment and out of the money realized from these rates and taxes they make their budget allotments. But in the case of union boards it is quite otherwise. Here they have got some definite charges to meet, for instance, the salaries of chaukidars, etc., and they require a certain amount for that and then they proceed to levy the union rate on different members of the community. Therefore I thought it was necessary that the maximum should be Rs. 96. The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur has said that there are not many rich men in villages. That is true, but if there are any I want them to be assessed at the maximum rate of Rs. 96. The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar has said that those who carry on their business in the union or those do not live within the union although they have got residential house there, should not be assessed too heavily. But I think that those persons should be made to contribute towards the improvement of the unions where they carry on their business or where their residential houses are situated. One of the main causes of the deterioration of our villages is that rich men like to congregate in town leaving the villages neglected. This Bill is intended to reinstate the villages to their former prosperous condition and those men who make their money in the villages or rich men having their residential houses in the villages ought to make their contributions towards the improvements of the villages. The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray has pointed out that taking the Chaukidari Act and the Local Self-Government Act together the maximum assessment comes up to 72. That is true, but we are not going upon precedents in this Bill. We intend by this Bill to improve the condition of the villages and not to let things remain as they are. My suggestion is that the maximum should be fixed at Rs. 96. But as the Hon'ble Member in Charge has not thought fit to accept it, I think there is no chance of its being accepted by the Council. Yet I would be failing in my duty as a representative of rural constituencies not to press this amendment. and I therefore press it to a vote."

The motion was about to be put when the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"My Lord, we might take the amendments backwards."

The President said :—

"I do not quite understand what the Hon'ble Member means."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray said :—

"We might take the last amendment first and so on."

The President said :—

"It does not make any difference. Therefore I propose to take them in the order in which they appear on the agenda paper."

Motions Nos. 112, 113, 114 and 115 were then put one by one and lost.

Motions Nos. 113—115 were as follows :—

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that for the words "eighty-four" in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 39 (now clause 38) the words "seventy-two" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that for the words "eighty-four" in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 39 (now clause 38) the word "sixty" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur to move that for the words "eighty-four" in the proviso to sub-clause (1) of clause 39 (now clause 38) the words "forty-eight" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 116.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "district magistrate" in the first line of clause 41 (now clause 40) the words "district board" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, the corresponding section in the Chaukidari Act is section 20. That section gives power to the District Magistrate to revise the assessment of the chaukidari union. But the union board stands on quite a different footing. The chaukidari functions of the union board are certainly not as important as its judicial, executive or municipal functions, and so necessarily the chaukidari assessment will be much smaller than the other assessments. And, therefore, it is only proper that the power of revising this assessment should be entrusted to the District Board instead of the District Magistrate."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu A. C. Datta.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this is another of a series of amendments by which the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta has sought to replace the authority of the District Magistrate by that of the district board in matters appertaining to the supervision over the union boards, specially in connection with chaukidars. In view of the fact that his other amendments have been negatived, I scarcely think that he is well advised to press this point again. He admits that the clause follows a precedent of the Chaukidari Act, but apparently argues that we should depart from it now that the amalgamated chaukidari and municipal assessment of taxation may reach a higher figure. But I cannot see how that fact alters the fundamental conditions under which these revisions are conducted. These assessments, even if they are of a higher figure will, as a rule, be individually small. They will affect a large number of small men. We do not wish to encourage a regular revisionary system of appeal against assessment. We had better look to the conditions under which these revisions have been made in the past, and they are briefly these. Various officers of Governments as the Hon'ble Member knows,—the District Magistrate, the sub-divisional officers and others—go round the district visiting and talking to the villagers, who are thus able to bring to their attention cases in which they allege the assessments to be grossly unfair. The officer can then enquire into the matter on the spot and see that justice is done. It is a simple and expeditious procedure, and in the case of the old chaukidari assessments has often been followed by any of us who have had experience of district administration. We have all done this work repeatedly while we were on tour. It meets the requirements of the case, and it is a far better machinery than to ask a man assessed to a few annas a month to bring a revisionary appeal before an authority like the district board, apart from the fact that the latter is not in itself a suitable appellate authority in a matter of this kind."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"It appears that in practice revision will be really made by circle officers. It is precisely that to which we object. If I were satisfied that the revision will be made by the District Magistrate himself, I for one would not object to it. What we are afraid of is the unnecessary interference by the circle officers. That makes my case all the stronger. My attention is drawn to the fact that the provision about the delegation of power to the circle officers in this respect has now been omitted. It is true, but at the same time the District Magistrate must necessarily depend on the report of the circle officers or some such other subordinate officers. Therefore the mere fact that the provision has been omitted does not improve the situation. In any case, as in most matters the union board will work under the supervision of the District and Local Boards it is only proper that in this particular matter also the revisionary power ought to lie with the District Board."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 117.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

If motion No. 116 be carried the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the word "he" in line 5 of clause 41 (now clause 40) the word "they" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu K. M. Chaudhuri; Sir Henry Wheeler; The President; Rai M. C. Mitter Bahadur; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

AMENDMENT No. 118.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the words "may make" in line 1 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the words "shall contribute annually" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I think that the District Board being the recipient of the taxes raised within the locality and charged with the sanitation and other improvements contemplated by this Bill should be bound to contribute to the union fund, and instead of making it discretionary on the District Board I want to make it obligatory on them to contribute to the union board grants for carrying out the works entrusted to them. In these local areas the taxation will be very oppressive and it is but fair that the District Board should pay something to the union boards before they ask them to cover their deficit by special taxation specially as the District Board now get contributions from Government from road cess and public works cess. Therefore I propose that instead of leaving it to the discretion of the District Boards the grant should be made obligatory on them."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, there are certain other amendments of a like character."

The President said :—

"Yes, items 118 to 122 are identical so that Hon'ble Members who have given notice of these amendments can speak on the motion which is now before the Council if they wish to."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have got a similar motion, and my submission is that it should be made obligatory upon the District Boards to contribute a certain amount. As far as the clause goes, the District Boards may or may not contribute anything. My submission, on the other hand, is that as the union boards will be in a state of infancy at the start, it is necessary that there should be an obligation on the part of the District Board to contribute a substantive amount."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have also got a similar motion. Clause 46 (now clause 45) is a very wholesome provision and if the District Boards make a grant they will attach certain conditions to it as to how it should be spent. My object is that the District Boards have got under clauses 12, 15, 29 (now clause 27), 40 (now clause 39), 60 (now clause 55), 61 (now clause 56) and 63 (now clause 58) great powers over these union boards—power of supervision, power of removal of member and so forth, and if the union boards fail to do their work they may be superseded. In many other ways they have been made subordinate to District Boards. And if the union board thus becomes the foster child of a District Board I think it is but right that a foster father should do something towards the feeding of a foster child. Therefore, I think, that it should be laid down that some contribution should be made by the District Boards for carrying out the work imposed by them on the union board. This matter was also considered by the Decentralization Commission and they also recommended in paragraph 764 of their report that there should be liberal grant from the District Boards. Otherwise if everything is left to depend upon taxation, the interest of the people in their own affairs would become lax. I do not know but I think from the trend of the discussion on the Bill that this motion will be acceptable to the Council. I think it is reasonable to expect that there should be a contribution by the District Board to the union board and I have no objection to certain conditions being attached to such grants.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there are three possible sources of finance so as far the union boards are concerned—first, the Government contribution, secondly, contributions by District Boards and thirdly, local taxation. As regards the Government contributions this Council has already decided that they will not be compulsory and even if the contribution by District Board is not made compulsory then in some cases what may happen is this : in any particular year—a very bad year—the Government may find it inconvenient to make any contributions. Then so far as the district boards are concerned it may so happen that they cannot also part with the money and may direct the union boards to complete their works with their own money. In that case union boards will have to rely entirely on local taxation and we know that local taxation cannot be raised to such an extent as to enable them to meet all the expenses of the various works entrusted to the union boards. We know that the cost for dafadars and chaukidars would amount to about 60 lakhs of rupees a year, this is the amount of road cess and public works cess taken together, so that the two cesses together are just barely enough to meet the cost of dafadars and chaukidars, and it would be remembered that the question of increasing the chaukidars' pay is a pressing one. So that with the road cess and public works cess the union board can get on for about three quarters of the year so far as the cost of chaukidars is concerned. Therefore unless some suitable provision is made for financing the union board the whole Act will be practically a dead letter. The public works cess is now made over by the Government to the District Boards and this lays an additional obligation upon the District Boards to make a grant to the union board. In fact the District Administration Committee made a positive recommendation that the public works cess should be made over to the district board upon a condition precedent to their making over the bulk of the money to the union boards which were proposed to be instituted at the time. Therefore the district boards cannot complain if that obligation be now made a statutory obligation. In fact if the district boards do not make any contribution as I have submitted the whole thing would be a dead letter. So it will not be wise to keep things in this unsatisfactory condition and now that the Government contribution will not be an obligatory one it is but right to have a statutory obligation on the part of the district boards. It ought not to be allowed to remain permissive."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, we now have a batch of amendments which are very similar in type, and which involve one common issue of principle and varying issues of detail. Under the Bill, as it stands, we merely say that the district board may make grants-in-aid to the union boards. But the principle which is common to these amendments is that these grants-in-aid should be made obligatory upon the district boards. The details vary as to the amount of the contribution which the district board will have to make : some would leave it uncertain ; some would leave it to be laid down by rules ; some would merely say a suitable amount, and some would say a quarter, and others a half, of the road and public works cess collected within the area of the union. But we are now concerned with the question of principle—whether these grants should be made obligatory or not. It is perfectly true that the District

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu M. N. Ray.

Administration Committee contemplated that the public works cess would be used in order to give financial help to these union boards. But I think it is equally clear, on reading their report, that they did not contemplate laying down any rigid system. In paragraph 139, after discussing a scheme of possible financing of the union boards which Mr. Birley laid before them for the district of Dacca, they concluded that it was impossible to lay down any hard-and-fast rule and that the case of each district would have to be decided on its own merits. So, I take it, that they were opposed to adopting any rigid system, although they hoped that, in fact, district boards would come to the financial help of union boards, and as a matter of practice they do so.

Taking the last report of 1917-18, we find a long column showing the contributions received by union committees from district boards. Mr. O'Malley tells me that the reason of one or two blanks is that the union committee in those cases had not been constituted. In the aggregate, taking the year 1917-18, out of a total income of Rs. 2 lakhs and 36 thousand enjoyed by union committees, Rs. 1,13,000 was given by district boards. So, therefore, district boards do already contribute. But it may be said : 'Well, if they do that at present, what is your objection to making a mandatory provision?' My objection is one of principle. At one time Government used far more frequently than now to issue definite instructions to district boards and municipalities as to how they should spend their money. We used to say that such and such a percentage must be spent on primary education, such and such a percentage on water-supply and so on. When I went round as Secretary to the Decentralization Commission, and we enquired into the working of local self-government, it was the common complaint of Indian witnesses, if it was suggested in any way that local self-government had not so far quite fulfilled the expectations of its creators, that local self-government had never had a fair chance, because from the beginning Government had kept local bodies in leading strings and tied them down by mandatory orders as to what they should do here and what they should do there. These were constant complaints urged before us throughout India. Now, we come to a suggestion to go even beyond an executive order and to impose a statutory obligation. But the mandatory executive order has been very much discarded in recent years, and even when the public works cess was made over to district boards, the instructions issued to them were far more advisory than mandatory; and I maintain that it is preferable in a matter of this kind to trust to the good sense of the district board. We have initiated a policy of deofficialising the district board, and it is a policy which will be continued, and to which, I believe, an extension will be given very shortly. If we are going to deofficialise the district board, is it wise to saddle it at the same time with statutory directions as to how it should apply its funds in this matter of union boards? In the past, district boards have given funds to these committees—and I trust that in future they will continue to do so—and I submit it is preferable that we should rely on their discretion, instead of trying to hamper them by a legislative provision of the kind proposed in the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray said :—

"My Lord, these five amendments and ten which follow are intended, as has been pointed out, to impose statutory obligations on District Boards to make suitable contributions to the union boards for the costs of works of public utility which the union boards are empowered under the Bill to execute. It will be clear from the provisions embodied in Chapter III of the Bill that amongst the duties and powers of the union boards defined in this part, the union boards are empowered to employ an establishment for the collection of the union rates. They are empowered to carry out works of public utility in respect of sanitation, conservancy and drainage, for example, public drains, burning ghat and burial grounds. They are empowered to construct and maintain water-works including the construction of bridges and repairs of tanks, wells, streams and water-courses ; they are empowered to construct, maintain and repair roads, bridges and water-courses and they are empowered to make provision for the lighting of roads and, lastly, they are empowered to establish primary schools and dispensaries. This is a pretty long catalogue, and one would naturally inquire whether adequate funds are proposed to be placed at the disposal of the union boards to enable them to carry out these multifarious works. We must remember that in connection with some of these works, for instance, public drains, burning ghats and burial grounds and other works of public utility in connection with sanitation, drainage and the construction and maintenance of water-courses the District Boards have got the power to direct the union boards to carry out these works. It is not that the union boards of their own motion can undertake these works, but in respect of the particular works to which I have just invited the attention of this Council the District Boards are given the power to direct the union boards to carry out these works. As to the funds placed at their disposal we see that clause 38 (now clause 37) of the Bill provides for the imposition of union rates under certain conditions of an amount sufficient to meet the cost of such works as I have just stated. The contribution by Local Government, where such contribution is forthcoming, is not intended, as far as I understand clause 38 (now clause 37) of the Bill, to cover any part of the cost of such works. It is intended for the part payment of the salary of chaukidars and dafadars and of the establishment employed for the purpose. So that with regard to this long array of works of public utility the union boards are left on their sole resources over and above a few items to which I shall presently refer to their income from the union rate. The clause which defines union fund certainly contemplates in addition to the union rates certain items of fees and costs which are recoverable under the Bill and which are placed at the disposal of the union boards. But clause 46 (now clause 45) which relates to any contribution that the District Board may make towards the cost of such works of public utility as has been pointed out, merely leaves the discretion with the District Boards if they choose to make a provision for the purpose. I am afraid, my Lord, that if no statutory obligation is imposed upon District Boards under this head, this long array of useful and important works of public utility will not be accomplished and the provisions made in this Bill will be more or less elusive. Sir Henry Wheeler has asked us to look at the past : there were union committees in existence for a number of years and out of the two lakhs of rupees which the union committees all over the province had spent, I should say a very moderate sum, the District Boards have contributed nearly one-half ; the District Boards of this province altogether contributed nearly a lakh. We and those of us who have experience of the working of the District Boards and union committees in the mufassal all know what sort of work the union committees now do. They do very petty works—they clear jungles and tanks, but I am not aware of any union committee which has so far been established which has undertaken even a decent proportion of the ambitious scheme which this Bill sets forth. Therefore to refer to the past would not be of much importance. The past does not contain a record of what this Bill expects the union boards to do.

Then it has been said that the people in this country do not relish executive orders—orders proceeding from the executive to force the hands of the District Boards and other local authorities to spend money on certain purposes. That is perfectly true, and I fully agree that the less executive interference with the works of the District Boards the better. But it is one thing to deprecate executive interference with the works of the District Boards and the application of their funds and it is another thing to impose a statutory duty upon District Boards—a duty which must be imposed if the scheme of this present Bill is to be realised in practice at all. I was for a long time a Vice-Chairman of a District Board and I have been a member for over a quarter of a century. I cannot ignore our unwillingness to place at the disposal of these newly-fledged bodies a decent sum of money over which we lose direct control. It is a weakness which the members of District Boards enjoy with other human beings and it is one of the ordinary frailties of human nature. If therefore it is proposed by this piece of legislation to confer upon union boards real powers of executing and carrying out works of public utility which will require considerable expenditure, I honestly believe that unless some such statutory obligation is imposed upon District Boards, all this scheme for the improvement of the village by the people of the village will prove elusive. It may be known to Sir Henry Wheeler that I am perhaps the only member of the Select Committee who had the misfortune to differ from the rest on this point and practically on this point alone and I therefore feel very strongly on this matter and I support the amendment which has been moved."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, the question has been discussed threadbare, so I shall confine myself only to one observation. The question is whether the District Board should be required by statute to contribute something towards the expenses of the union boards. Let us consider for a moment what is the source of income of the District Boards. Whence does their income come? It is the road cess and public works cess paid by the villagers which constitute the District Fund. Is it not proper for the District Board to make over a portion of the money which they receive from the villagers in order to help them in the improvement of the villages? The District Board has no other source of income—I mean the main source—and I think it is only just and proper that the District Board should contribute a certain sum in order to help the union boards in the matter of rural sanitation and rural improvements. It is their money which the District Board receives and they ought to contribute to them. The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said that he opposes this on certain principles. The principle which he has enunciated I have not been able fully to grasp, but the only principle which I can find underlying this provision in the Bill is this: that the Government, the supreme head and authority, is unable to commit itself to any grant, and if it is unable to commit itself to a grant, I do not think it would be decent for Government to fixing an obligation upon the District Board, that is the only principle which seems to me to be underlying this measure, but however we have passed that stage, namely, the obligation of Government. Here the District Board represents the district and here is a small body, namely, the union board which is going to be constituted under it. and my friend to the right has pointed out the onerous character of the duty imposed upon these petty boards, and if Government will grant nothing and if the District Board will grant nothing, then all that I can say is that this measure had better be dropped."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, there is only one point on which I should like to make a few observations. The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has observed that the Government are gradually deofficialising the District Boards and that people resent interference by executive orders. It is not an executive order but it is a statutory obligation that we seek to impose on District Boards. Further. my Lord, what we want to bring out is this: that these union boards are made subordinate to the District Boards to carry out their mandate, according to the provisions of the Bill, and they will pass orders upon them and direct them to carry out their orders but won't give them any funds; it will not be obligatory upon them to give any funds except those which they will receive from the residents of the union. Is this equitable and fair, my Lord? I appeal to the sense of justice of Government, as I know it is useless to expect this motion to be carried in this House, but I appeal to the Hon'ble Members here to consider whether it is fair to pass orders on the union boards directing them to do this and that and that if they do not do that they may be superseded and not to place any funds at their disposal."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. O'Malley.

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, I should like to refer to one or two statements which have been made by the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray in connection with referring to the contributions now made by District Boards to union committees. I think he has not perhaps caught one of the figures quoted by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. The contribution made by the District Boards in 1917-18 was not under a lakh ; the actual figure is Rs. 1,13,000. The expenditure by all the union committees during the year was Rs. 1,87,000 and I do not think that it will require any elaborate calculation to deduce the fact that the District Boards contributed a sum approaching two-thirds of the total expenditure during the year. That being so I submit that District Boards at present realise their obligations to the union committees.

Another point which I would like to mention is that the more the union committees develop, the more work they do, the greater are their activities and the less they are dependent on the District Boards. In this connection I may mention that the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray is somewhat under a misapprehension in thinking that all union committees carry out only petty village works. He is not perhaps aware that several union committees have been established at sub-divisional headquarters and in some cases have at least an income which corresponds to that of smaller municipalities. To quote a few instances which occur to me, there is the union committee of Rampur Hat in the district of Birbhum ; there is the union committee of Contai, a sub-divisional headquarters in the district of Midnapur ; there is the union committee of Bagerhat in the district of Khulna ; there is the union committee of Manikganj in the district of Dacca and there is also another at Munshiganj in the same district. Some of them have quite a considerable income of about Rs. 7,000 a year.

Another matter to which I should like to invite the attention of the Council is that clause 46 (now clause 45) should be read with clause 35 (now clause 33) of the Bill, in order that its scope may be understood. Clause 35 (now claue 33) lays down in effect that when a District Board makes over to a union board the management of any institution or the execution of any work or duty, it must assign to the union board the money neeessary for the purpose, and the union board must consent to the transfer. A District Board therefore cannot transfer any institution, work or duty under this clause to a union board unless it provides the necessary funds."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur to move that for the word "may" in line 1 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the word "shall" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the word "may" in line 1 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the word "shall" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray to move that in clause 46 (now clause 45)—

(a) for the words "may" in line 1 the word "shall" be substituted ;

(b) for the words "such grants-in-aid from the district fund, as they may think fit" in lines 2 and 3 the words "as they will be liable to pay under rules made under section 11" be substituted ; and

(c) the words "and may attach to such grants any conditions that may appear to the district board to be desirable" in lines 4, 5 and 6, be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the words "such grants-in-aid from the district fund, as they may think fit" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the words "a sum not less than one-fourth of the road and public works cesses realized within the area under the jurisdiction of the union board" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that for the words "such grants-in-aid from the district fund, as they may think fit" in lines 2 and 3 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the words "a sum approximately one-fourth of the road and public works cesses realised within the area under the jurisdiction of the union board" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President; Babu A. C. Mazumdar.

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that the following be added to clause 46 (now clause 45), namely :—

"Provided that the grant-in-aid shall in no case be less than half the amount of road and public works cess payable by the cultivating raiyats for lands comprised within the area of the union board; and if there be any dispute between the district board and the union board regarding the sum that will approximately represent the amount of such cess, the matter shall be referred to the collector of the district, whose decision shall be final; and a decision, once arrived at, regarding this amount shall remain in force till the next revaluation of the aforesaid area under the Cess Act, 1880."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after the words "think fit" in line 3 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the words "the amount of such grants being not less than half of the land cesses levied within the union" be inserted.

The President said :—

"The next item is amendment No. 128 which is not being moved. No. 129 is consequential on No. 118 which has fallen through, and No. 130 is also consequential. Therefore the next amendment which is in order is No. 131. I now call upon the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move No. 131."

Motions Nos. 128 to 130 which were deemed to be withdrawn were as follows :—

AMENDMENTS Nos. 128—130.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that for clause 46 (now clause 45) the following be substituted, namely :—

"46. The district board shall make over to the union board the whole of the sums realized as road-cess from the villages in the union, and shall make such further grants from the district fund as may be necessary to enable the union board to carry out the purposes of this Act, and may attach to such grants any conditions that may appear to the district board to be desirable."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the word "grants" in line 5 of clause 46 (now clause 45) the word "contribution" be substituted.

If motion No. 126 be carried, the Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that after the proviso to clause 46 the following be added, namely :—

"Provided that the conditions referred to in this section may be attached to such amount only as are in excess of the minimum grant which the district board must make to the union board under this section."

AMENDMENT No. 131.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that at the end of clause 46 (now clause 45) the following be added, namely :—

"and the union board may receive any donation or contribution from any private person for any work within the purposes of this Act."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

He said :—

"This refers to clause 46 (now clause 45) of the Bill. I introduced this amendment with a definite object. The union boards will be co-operative bodies, and not only their rights and privileges but also their income and expenditure should be provided by the statute. They cannot have any source of income which the law would not allow them to have, and it is just possible that the union boards will have some help from generous spirited individuals who may make grants either for excavating tanks or making drains or any other useful work for the benefit of the union population, and it is necessary to authorise these boards to receive these grants. I know reference will be made to clause 47 (now clause 46) which says that 'all sums realised under section 42 and all sums realised as fines, fees, etc., or cost under this Act, other than fines imposed under section 25 and all other receipts of the union bench or union court, shall be paid into a fund which shall be called the union fund.' I know that reference will be made to the expression 'other receipts of the union board.' Now, my Lord, that would evidently mean, in the view of a lawyer, other receipts derivable under the Act by the union board, and not any receipts outside the Act. It may be, Sir, that the union board may plant trees by the side of the road, they may sell the fruits and with the sale-proceeds of that as well as of the trees that may be cut down and sold, the union board may rear fish in a tank excavated by them and sell them. All these are the receipts which you can bring in under clause 47 (now clause 46). It would mean 'other receipts of the union board,' that is to say, receipts which might naturally come to the union board under the circumstances laid down by this Bill. It would not, in my humble opinion, cover any extraneous grant which the union board might receive from any generous spirited person. At all events, if you want to make out that these are also 'other receipts,' then it is necessary for us to provide in this clause or to lay down that it would be legitimate for the union board to receive grants from other persons, and I think in that view this addition which I have submitted is necessary. With these observations I commend this motion to the acceptance of the House."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, so far as I can make out, there is no question of principle involved in this amendment; it is really almost one of drafting. We examined the point once or twice after receipt of the Hon'ble Member's amendment, and we could not persuade ourselves that this change was really required. The Hon'ble Member seeks to make an addition to clause 46 (now clause 45) to the effect that a union board may receive a donation or contribution, but clause 46 (now clause 45) merely says that a district board may make a grant-in-aid. It deals with the maker of the grant not with the recipient. But the amendment of the Hon'ble Member swings round to another point of view entirely, from the maker of the grant to the receiver of the grant. The only reason for making this addition is the apprehension that a union board may be presented with generous donations from private citizens, and find itself unable to accept them—a result which would be most regrettable. But I cannot see that they could be in that position. The union board will be a body corporate, entitled to acquire property, and I am advised that acquisition covers acquisition by gift. If so when a generous donor comes along and presses Rs. 1,000 into their hands, there will be nothing to debar a union board from taking the money, and it is clearly contemplated in the Bill that they should do so. It will be seen that clause 47 (now clause 46) provides that 'other receipts' of the union board shall be paid into the union fund, and the second proviso refers specifically to sums made over to the union board for specific purposes, such as private donations towards the excavation of tanks, planting of trees, and works of that kind. Therefore the amendment seems to me to be practically a matter of drafting, and after re-examination of the point, we do not see that it is required."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I am not convinced by what the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said about the uncertainty which swings round clause 47 (now clause 46), as well as clause 19 (now clause 18)."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"Clause 19 (now clause 18) covers it."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"No, it does not ; the uncertainty is not removed either by clause 19 (now clause 18), or by clause 47 (now clause 46). I have already said that 'other receipts of the union board' is an expression which would not ordinarily mean any grant or donation, and clause 19 (now clause 18) which says they may hold property, etc., is rather vague. Besides what harm is there in making it clear and explicit. This is what I do not understand, and that is a point upon which Sir Henry Wheeler has not enlightened us. If it is thought that it will go against the draftsmanship of the Bill, well, I think, any member who may have charge of a Bill may forego any idea of being criticised on the ground of draftsmanship. Here we want to make it clear and distinct, and there is legitimate scope for such criticism of such defects as I have placed before the Council, and in that case, what harm is there in adding the words 'that the union board shall be competent to receive any contribution to the fund'. Certainly we cannot lay down and say that any person may contribute to the funds. We can only legalise the acts of the union board ; here a man comes and says 'Here is Rs. 500;' well we ought to say it is perfectly legitimate for them to receive such grants, and I do not think that even clauses 19 and 47 (now clauses 18 and 46) cover such a grant. It would make the matter more clear as the expression 'other receipts of the union board' seem to me to be wide of the mark. It would not be covered by what clause 19 (now clause 18) says, as I have already said. Therefore I ask the Council to consider whether we ought to make the point clear, so that there may be no doubt about the authority of union board receiving grants and donations."

The President said :—

"I might perhaps make a suggestion here which might meet the views of the Hon'ble Member and at the same time get over the objections which have been raised by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. I think Sir Henry Wheeler's objection that clause 46 (now clause 45) is not a suitable clause on which to draft a proposal of this kind, is a valid one. It seems to me that it would be more appropriate if a proposal of this kind was included in clause 47 (now clause 46). Clause 47 (now clause 46) reads : "All sums realised under section 42 and all sums realised as fines, fees or costs under this Act, other than fines imposed under section 25, and all other receipts of the union board, union bench or union court,....." and here you might add the words "including any donation or contribution from a private person." I would suggest that if the Hon'ble Member has no objection to this proposal, it would come better as suggested by me in clause 47 (now clause 46)."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; The President; Mr. P. C. Mitter.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"I am quite willing to accept Your Excellency's suggestion."

The President said :—

"If the Hon'ble Member will withdraw the amendment here, he can propose it again under clause 47 (now clause 46)."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 132.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that at the end of clause 46 (now clause 45) the following be added, namely :—

"Provided always that in the case of any union board which has imposed a rate under clause (b) of section 38 the district board shall make a suitable grant-in-aid."

He said :—

"My desire is that if a union board helps itself and imposes taxes on itself then this self-help may be rewarded by a statutory provision. I do not desire to go over the ground already discussed, but there is only one point which it is necessary for my purpose to discuss, and that is this. It has been said by Sir Henry Wheeler that there is no reason why we should mistrust the district board. I wish I could share in that optimism. About four years ago the income of the district board was raised by a grant of 29 lakhs of rupees under the public works cess which was made over to them. The whole of that sum, my Lord, was intended for improving the rural water-supply and for sanitary measures generally; at any rate the Government circular made it abundantly clear that that was the intention. But the district board instead of doing that chose to increase their closing balance and out of its total income of one crore of rupees—it had in one particular year a closing balance of 51 lakhs—and that in a year when the whole province was crying for pure drinking water. The next year it had a closing balance of 41 lakhs of rupees. In that year I had the privilege of bringing these facts to the notice of this Council, and subsequently at the instance of Government action was taken, more at the instance of Government and less, I am sorry to say, on the initiative of the district boards themselves, that this undesirable state of things has been remedied. At the same time, my Lord, I feel the force of the observations of Sir Henry Wheeler, that these local self-governing bodies should be left to work out their own salvation, if I may make use of such an expression. That is all the more reason why I want this statutory provision only in respect of those union boards which agree to tax themselves. If we make this statutory provision, the district boards cannot complain that the executive is interfering with them; it will be a statutory provision and the executive will have every right to see that the district boards carry out this provision. But, on the other hand, if we do not have such a statutory provision, there may be if they do not help even those union boards who have taxed themselves. One word more, and I have done. It has been said that in the past the district boards have helped the union committees liberally; I do not dispute that proposition, but at the present moment we have comparatively few union committees, scattered all over the province. Last year I put a question in the Council and I was told that if progress went on that rate, it would take 104 years to apportion out the whole of the province into union committees. With the few union committees that we have, it is quite possible for the district boards to help them generously, but we are legislating for the future. I look forward to the day and I hope that it is not very far distant, when the whole of Bengal will be parcelled out into a number of union boards, and in a district with an area of 4 to 5,000 square miles there will be a large number of union boards, and if there be a statutory provision of this nature, it will stimulate the union boards to tax themselves."

Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, on a recent amendment I found myself in disagreement, I am sorry to say, with many of the non-official members of this Council, as to the degree to which it was wise to rely upon the good sense and discretion of the district boards in helping union boards financially, and the Hon'ble Mr. Mitter has just sought to adduce evidence justifying the doubt that is in him. But he will perhaps recognise that the instance to which he alluded had reference rather—may I say—to the bad old days, when the official hands lay heavily on district boards. I was looking forward to the happy time when the de-officialised district boards will attain to greater glories of common sense than they ever reached before, and I still think that my view of the previous amendment was justified in the best interests both of the district boards and of union boards. For instance, if we make it obligatory, every time a union board is created, for the district board to give it a grant, the district board, whose views are to be taken before the union board is created at all, might, after a certain point, be almost bound to oppose any suggestion for creating new bodies of this kind. However, I think we can differentiate between that amendment and this. In the first place, this amendment does not actually tie the discretion of the district board as to the amount of the grant, and one of my main grounds for objection to the previous amendment (although we did not come to that point) had reference to the subsequent amendment, by which, as a sequel to the principle of the obligatory grant, it was sought to commandeer anything up to half the road and public works cesses on this account. This amendment does not introduce a rigid system of that kind; it merely says a suitable grant, which will mean that the district board will have to use its discretion as to the amount. If it was determined to act thoroughly mala fide, it could, of course, give a purely nominal sum and yet keep within the four corners of the clause. That is a risk which must be run, but as I believe in a certain amount of common sense in district boards, I am willing to take it. The other feature of this amendment which differentiates it from that preceding it, and which presents some ground for regarding it in a different light, is the linking of the grant with the self-taxation of the union for the municipal duties which will not be obligatory upon it, but which it can take up at its option. We have recognised that there may be a certain amount of reluctance on the part of the union boards to tax themselves for these purposes, and we may willingly do anything reasonable to encourage them to do so. As a matter of fact, this form of encouragement is, as I understand, the policy at present adopted. Most district boards say to union committees 'If you tax yourselves and raise so much, we will add to it to such and such an extent.' Bearing these facts in mind, Sir, and also having in view the considerable volume of opinion which was expressed by non-official members in favour of a statutory recognition of the district board grant in some form, as also the wish of Government as far as possible to pass this Bill with the assent of us all (as it is merely directed towards an advance which we all welcome), I am prepared to accept the amendment which has been moved by the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"I find, my Lord, that within a few minutes of opposing my amendment, Sir Henry Wheeler has changed his mind to a certain extent and he seems to have now come to the conclusion that it would be better not to oppose such a volume of non-official opinion in connection with this matter, and has taken the opportunity of accepting this amendment of the Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter, but there is one point I want to draw attention to, and that is that in our amendments, at least in my own, there was no provision to the effect that half or one-fourth should be contributed by the district board, or anything of that kind. It was absolutely left to the discretion of the Government."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President.

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 133 and 134.

The President said :—

"No. 133 is no longer in order, and in view of the decision which the Council has just reached, I think 134 is no longer desirable."

The following motions were then, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

New Clause 46A.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after clause 46 the following be inserted, namely :—

"46A. The Local Government shall make to the union board such grants-in-aid as they may think fit, the amount of such grant being not less than one-third of the total expenditure incurred by the union board in carrying out the purposes of this Act in the year preceding the year in which the grant is made, and may attach to such grants any conditions that may appear to the Local Government to be desirable."

The Hon'ble Kumar Shib Shekhareswar Ray to move that after clause 46 the following be inserted, namely :—

"46A. The Local Government may direct the district board to make to the union board such grants-in-aid from the district fund as may be thought necessary for the purpose referred to in section 46, and may attach to such grants any conditions that may appear to the Local Government to be desirable."

AMENDMENT No. 135.

Clause 47.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that after the words "under section 25" in line 3 of sub-clause (1) of clause 47 (now clause 46) the following be inserted, namely :—

"all fees paid on account of processes of any court served through the union board."

He said :—

"After the amendment which has been accepted by the Council, I submit that this amendment is more or less consequential to it. It has been accepted that chaukidars shall serve processes and all fees paid on account of processes of any court served to the union board, and in that view I think this amendment may be accepted. However I leave it to the Government. I think it would be desirable to have these words."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Mr. P. C. Mitter.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I had not viewed the amendment in the light in which the Hon'ble Member has just explained it. We had interpreted it as a desire on his part to make over to the union boards all process fees that were realised by the courts in respects of the processes which might be served by these union boards."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My Lord, in view of the observation made by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, I think it right that I should explain what I have in view. What I have in view is that the chaukidars will have the power to serve process; and it has already been explained by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler that it will depend upon the negotiations with the High Court. Now, supposing that the High Court allows the chaukidar to serve processes and that it may also be arranged in the course of these negotiations that the whole amount realised from process fees be paid to these union boards. I do not say that necessarily the whole amount should be paid to the union boards, which will employ these chaukidars, but that as the Civil Courts will also have their staff, it is just possible that an equitable arrangement may be made. It is from that point of view, I submit, that it is desirable to have these words included."

"My Lord, as I have said, we thought that the amendment desired to make over to the union boards all the process fees realised by the courts in respect of processes which might be served through the agency of the union boards, and in that sense we could not have accepted the amendment. The process fees realized by the courts belong to them, as they are levied in respect of various actions taken by the courts, and they do not belong to the serving agency through which the processes actually reach the hands of the recipients. Moreover, the financial interests involved are obviously so large that Government could not agree to do anything which might involve the handing over of the revenue derived from process fees to these union boards. However, I understand, that the Hon'ble Member regards the matter as largely one of accounts, and merely seeks to make a statutory provision that if any fees are paid to these union boards for executing processes served through them, the fees may be credited to the union fund. The system, which we have adopted in places where processes are served by chaukidars, is to pay the actual serving chaukidar at a rate of so much per process, which is, I believe, 2 annas per process, and that remuneration goes into the chaukidar's pocket in return for the extra labour involved in delivering the process. Probably, in any system which we might lay down, we should adhere to that procedure. I do not think that it would be right that the union board should be turned into a kind of process-serving machinery which would make a profit out of the labour of the chaukidar. The wages of the labourer ought to go to the actual worker, which, in this case, will be the chaukidar. As a matter of accounts I do not think there is any harm in accepting the amendment, if it is worded in the following way :—

'Any fees paid to the union board in respect of processes served through the board' which, I think, will meet the wishes of the Hon'ble Member. In this form I am prepared to accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My Lord, I accept the modification suggested by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler."

The motion was then put in the modified form and agreed to.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur ; The President ; Babu A. C. Mazumdar ; Mr. P. C. Mitter ; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, may I inquire whether Your Excellency is going to adjourn the Council now as it is now half past six."

The President said :—

"I think we may make a little more progress and we might take advantage of the present cool spell of weather. We might adjourn when we come to clause 56.

I shall now call upon the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that after the word 'court' in line 5 of clause 47 (l) the following be inserted :—

'including any subscription or contribution from any private person'."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved the following motion which was agreed to :—

"That after the word 'court' in line 5 of clause 47 (l) the following be inserted, viz.:—

'including any subscription or contribution from a private person'."

AMENDMENT No. 136.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that after clause 47 the following be inserted. namely :—

"47A. The union board shall keep, in accordance with rules prescribed under section 111, a separate account entitled 'Endowment and Contribution Fund,' in which all sums received by way of gift or by virtue of any trust created to further any of the objects of this Act shall be entered."

He said :—

"My Lord, my object is that a separate account will show these receipts. It will show how much donors have contributed in one separate account and it will also have the effect of keeping the account clear, because if any trust be created I suppose the union board will have to keep proper account of that trust. No doubt it will be quite possible for the union board to keep proper accounts under clause 47 (now clause 46), but it would, perhaps, be better if a separate account is kept of gifts and endowments."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord. I do not think that a specific clause is necessary to this effect, and it might even be misleading to provide definitely in the law for one individual register and not for others. In clause 111 (m) [now clause 101 (m)], we have taken power to make rules prescribing the method in which the accounts of the union fund should be kept. If it is desirable that a separate account should be kept for these endowments and contributions, it will be perfectly easy to prescribe it by rule."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. P. C. Mitter; Babu A. C. Datta; Mr. Kerr.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My Lord, in view of what the Hon'ble Member has said, I beg to withdraw the amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 137.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that clause 52 (now clause 47) and schedule III be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in the course of the discussion of some of the previous amendments I have indicated my reasons objecting to the delegation of powers by the District Magistrate. I do not like to repeat these arguments at this late hour of the day and I place this amendment for Your Excellency's acceptance."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"My Lord, the object of the Hon'ble Member is apparently to do away with all powers of delegation in this Bill and to make the District Magistrate exercise all the functions which the Bill purports to invest him with. The Hon'ble Member has mercifully refrained from giving any reasons for his proposal, but I think I had better explain as briefly as possible to the Council why it is absolutely necessary to retain some powers of delegation. We estimate that ultimately there will be on an average between 250 and 300 union boards in each district throughout the Presidency. There will be in each of the boards a force of about 10 or 12 chaukidars and dafadars : so that the District Magistrate will have to deal with the appointment, dismissal and discipline of a body of 2,000 to 3,000 men. It will be noticed that the delegations in schedule III are mainly confined to the questions relating to dafadars and chaukidars. The powers of appointment and dismissal of chaukidars and dafadars may be delegated to the Subdivisional Magistrate the Superintendent of Police or the circle officer. The power of fining dafadars and chaukidars under clause 25 may be delegated to the same authorities, but the power of requiring chaukidars to supply local information under section 26 and of calling for assessment papers and passing of orders thereon under clause 41 can be delegated only to the Subdivisional Magistrate. These are the main points of delegation. Under the present Act, it is open to the District Magistrate with the sanction of the Commissioner to delegate all his powers under the Act to any Magistrate of the 1st class or to any Magistrate in charge of a subdivision or to the District Superintendent of Police. Therefore, we have, in the present Bill, considerably curtailed the existing powers of District Magistrates in the matter of delegation. It cannot be said that the District Magistrate has been given a blank cheque in regard to this matter. We have carefully limited the powers which he may delegate and the persons to whom he may delegate. Having regard to the figures as to the chaukidari force in a district. I do not think that it can be said that the powers of delegation which we have provided are excessive or unreasonable. If the Hon'ble Member's amendment is accepted, the District Magistrate would have to do all the work himself and that would be absolutely impossible. The Hon'ble Member has not suggested any modification in the particular delegations which are provided for in the Bill as it stands, and it would be impossible to take away the power of delegation altogether. I therefore think that the Council will be well advised to reject this amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there is certainly some force in the argument advanced by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr that the work will be stupendous for the Magistrate and he will not be able to cope with the work. That is certainly true, but at the same time on the other side. my real point is that I object to some of these powers being delegated to the Superintendent of Police or to the circle officer. If the delegation is to be made to the Subdivisional Magistrate as in items 4, 5, 6, 8 and 9 of the schedule, I have no complaint against. My point is that the words 'Superintendent of Police or circle officer' be omitted from items 4 and 5 of schedule III."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said :—

"The Hon'ble Member is now speaking on amendments Nos. 215 and 216. The point does not arise on the present amendment."

The President said :—

"This point might more suitably be taken on item No. 215 in which the Hon'ble Member specifically raises that point."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, what I really meant to submit is that if the new suggestion is acceptable then I might see my way to withdraw amendment No. 137."

The President said :—

"I am afraid the Hon'ble Member will have to wait till we come to the schedule in order to be satisfied on that point."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 138, 139.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the words "District Magistrate," in the two places in which they occur in lines 3 and 4 of clause 54 (now clause 49), the words "Divisional Commissioner" be substituted.

He also moved that the proviso to clause 54 (now clause 49), be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, may I be permitted to move both the amendments 138 and 139 together because they refer to the same clause, namely, No. 54? The proviso to this clause contemplates that if the District Magistrate is a member of the municipal authority concerned, his functions under this clause shall be discharged by the Commissioner. My point is that the union board is under the control of the District Magistrate; so if a dispute arises between the municipal authority and the union board, the District Magistrate being the head of the union board and the controlling authority, he should not be the final judge. My proposal is that in that case the matter should be referred to the Divisional Commissioner, whose decision shall be final. It is unreasonable that in one capacity he being the head of the union board should be the final judge in the case of a dispute between a municipal authority and the union board, as the municipality may not be represented and thus may become a sufferer. That is all, my Lord, I have to say in this matter."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this amendment has reference to a comparatively unimportant clause of the Bill—a clause which we hope will seldom come into operation. This clause merely provides what is to happen if a dispute occurs between a municipality and a union board. Obviously that contingency may arise, even although it is likely to be rare : and the clause says that, in that event, the quarrel shall be decided by the District Magistrate as long as he is not a member of the municipality. It is modelled on section 136 of the Local Self-Government Act, which says that if a dispute arises between a municipality and a local authority, or authorities, within the same district, the matter shall be referred to the Magistrate of the district. That is an exact precedent. I understand, however, that the Hon'ble Member says that the connection of the District Magistrate with the union board will be such as to disqualify him for the post of arbitrator. In that I think the Hon'ble Member is mistaken. The immediate supervising authority over these union boards will be the local board and the district board : the issues involved are not likely to be serious, and the District Magistrate is not likely in any sense to be biased one way or the other in respect of them. It seems to me to be an unnecessary complication to insist on these petty trifles coming up before the Divisional Commissioner who has far more important duties to attend to."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I beg to submit that the union boards will be practically under the direct supervision of the circle officers and the circle officers will be directly under the district board. In that case I am not convinced of the reasons for saying that it will be proper that the District Magistrate should be the final authority in a dispute like the one contemplated in this clause. If there is any precedent that should not be followed. District Boards in the majority of cases are also presided over by the District Magistrate : so I am not convinced of the reasons of the opposition and I leave the matter to Your Excellency's Council".

The motions were then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 140.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after clause 55A (now clause 50) the following be inserted, namely :—

> "55 (A1). All matters placed under the control and administration of the district board under the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885 shall be wholly transferred to the control and administration of the local board with adequate funds for the purposes of such control and administration, and the function of the district board shall primary be that of a controlling authority over the local and union boards."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta.

He said :—

"The Bengal Local Self-Government Act was passed on the 4th April, 1885. There were three classes of bodies brought into existence by the Act, viz., Union Committee, Local Board and District Board. The whole question of local self-government was discussed at length by the District Administration Committee after about 30 years' working of the Act. That Committee declared that both the Union Committees and the Local Boards have been great failures. Various reasons have been given for this failure. But I accept without reservation the conclusion of the District Administration Committee that one of the chief reasons is to be found in the changes made in the original Local Self-Government Bill of 1883. The terms of the Bill which was introduced into the Council in February 1883 is a most interesting and profitable study. Only two classes of Boards were originally proposed, viz., the Union Committee for the management of village affairs, and Local Boards for the general control of the Union Committees and for the management of works and institutions of more general importance. The Local Boards were to be entrusted with the powers and duties now exercised by District Boards, and were to be under the general control of a Central Board sitting in Calcutta. But the Secretary of State opposed the idea of a Central Board, and wanted to substitute it by a District Board so as to place each of the Local Government bodies completely under the eye and hand of the District Officer. The good and sagacious Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Rivers Thompson, unsuccessfully protested against this suggestion, as in his view the efficient and independent working of the Local Boards would be endangered by the establishment of District Committees, and he therefore insisted upon the Local Board being the largest unit of administration. The proposal of Sir Rivers Thompson was accepted by the Government of India. But most unfortunately for the cause of local self-government in this country the Secretary of State adhered to the scheme of District Committee and the result was the creation of the District Board as an administrative body. The Secretary of State had no objection to treating the District Committees as committees of control rather than committees of administration. But to our greatest misfortune further and worse changes were made and the District Board under the chairmanship of the District Officer became the unit of administration and not simply a committee of control, and the Local Boards were the agents of the District Boards with very restricted powers and without any financial independence. while union committees became merely optional appendages of the superior bodies. In fact they came to be the fifth wheel to the coach. Thus the changes made at the instance of the Secretary of State completely transformed the whole scheme for local self-government in Bengal originally elaborated with great care and wisdom by the framers of the Bill. It was certainly a mistake to make the District Board the administrative unit of local self-government, and to leave the smaller bodies dependant on its charity and with no clearly defined position in the general scheme. This, according to the District Administration Committee, was to begin local self-government at the wrong end, for the system ought to start from the bottom and work up, as was originally intended, rather than from the top and work down. The Decentralization Commission was also of opinion that the scant success of the efforts hitherto made to introduce a system of rural self-government is largely due to the fact that we have not built up from the bottom. Even as committees of control the areas of jurisdiction of the District Board is too large and experience has shown that they are composed largely of members who have neither local knowledge or interest in local works. It must be the common experience of many District Boards that members representing one sub-division are ignorant about the local condition of other subdivisions. How can you feel an interest in works of public utility unless you know the locality and the people and their wants and wishes? My own experience is that at present roads and khals and bridges and tanks and schools and dispensaries

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta.

are now undertaken by a District Board piecemeal and at random without considering the wants of the entire district and without any adjustment of the conflicting claims of the different parts of the district. Nobody knows the whole district and nobody feels and takes any keen interest in the entire district. We sometimes have an unseemly contest between the representative of different subdivisions each trying to screw out as much money as he can for the improvement of his own subdivision. The most important part of the work of the District Board is done in the various committees, e.g., the Education Committee, Public Works Committee, Medical Committee, and so on. For obvious reasons the members living in the interior of the district are unable to serve on those committees with anything like efficiency. Thus it oftentimes happens that those who have local knowledge do not work on those committees, and those who work on those committees have no local knowledge. Besides the number of members is very restricted, and many parts of the district go absolutely unrepresented. At present each District Board on the average has twenty members with an average population of 17 lakhs. Speaking roughly, therefore, each member represents a population of close upon one lakh. This, to say the least, is very meagre and poor representation. In Assam they have no District Board as in Bengal; they have all Local Boards, one for each subdivisions the status of a Local Board there being similar to that of a District Board here. Each member there represents about 20 thousand persons, i.e., the representation there is five-time as much as we have got here. In Bengal the representation in municipalities is immeasurably better than in District Board areas, each Municipal Commissioner representing about 1,400 persons. Then again some members are too influential to be ousted by others. The result inevitably is an unequal and inequitable distribution of the district fund over the different parts of the district. A thorough and intimate knowledge on the part of the members of the entire area of their jurisdiction is the only remedy of this state of things. This intimate knowledge cannot be ensured without reduction of inordinately large charges. If partition of districts is necessary for bringing the executive officers of Government into closer touch with the people, then, my Lord, the partition of local self-government areas is much more necessary for bringing the members of the self-governing bodies into closer touch with those people whose affairs they are invited to manage. The question now arises how this can be accomplished. I venture to think, my Lord, the abolition of the District Boards and transference of all their powers and duties to the Local Boards will solve the whole problem. It is not a revolutionary proposal that I make. I have reviewed the history of the law of local self-government in Bengal only to show that that was precisely the original idea of those responsible statesmen and administrators to whom belongs the glory and pride of making an attempt to introduce local self-government. I do not plead for the acceptance of a new idea, new policy or new scheme. I only urge that the great blunder against which Sir Rivers Thompson fought unsuccessfully should now be rectified. I only plead that the scheme which was approved in 1883 by the Government of India should be adopted. I only say this that the institution which has now been given a trial for 34 years, and which, according to the District Administration Committee, has failed because its basis was unsound and unpractical—I only say, my Lord, that institution should now be practically abolished. While however holding this strong view, I cannot be insensible to the supreme importance of disturbing the existing system as little as possible. I cannot overlook this stupendous difficulties involved in the dislocation of the present structure. I have therefore proposed not the abolition of the District Board altogether, but only the transference of the administrative duties and powers of the District Boards to the Local Boards. In other words, I propose that the Local Boards should be the largest unit of administration so far as works and institutions of more general importance

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta.

are concerned, and the District Board should be essentially a board of control —a board for controlling and supervising the Local Boards and Union Committees. This principle has already been accepted by Act III of 1885, section 101 of which gives power to the Local Government and the District Board to transfer all their powers to Local Boards. But the power is discretionary and has, as a matter of fact, never been exercised except recently in favour of the Asansol Local Board. This is a matter, my Lord, in which Bengal can imitate with advantage the system which now obtains in Assam. Whoever has seen the roads and bridges and other works executed and managed by the Assam Local Boards must admit their superiority to those of most districts of Bengal. The verdict of those who are competent to speak with authority on the subject is that the system of Local Boards in Madras has been an unqualified success, and a reference to the Madras Local Boards Act, V of 1884, and the Amending Act of 1900 shews what an important position has been assigned to the Local Boards established in that Presidency. It is these boards that really form the principal units of sanitary administration.

Allow me, my Lord, in conclusion to invite the attention of the Council to the historic resolution which the Government of India issued on the 18th May, 1882 on the subject of local self-government. The view of the Government of India, as then formulated, was that District Boards had failed to secure the attendance of members possessing local knowledge of outlying parts of the district, with the result that undue attention was paid to the area adjoining the district headquarters, or that the business fell into the hands of the Collector. The Government of India therefore modified the previous suggestion to constitute one committee for each district, and expressed a desire that the smallest administrative units—the subdivision—should ordinarily form the maximum area to be placed under a Local Board. It was laid down that 'the cardinal principle, which is essential to the success of self-government in any shape, is this, that the jurisdiction of the primary board must be so limited in area as to ensure both local knowledge and local interest on the part of each of the members.'

The recommendation of the Decentralization Commission may also be considered with profit in this connection. Paragraph 736 of their report runs as follows :—

'We are strongly in favour of the principle enunciated by Lord Ripon's Government in 1882 that Subdistrict Boards should form an essential part in the scheme of local self-government, that they should have adequate resources and a large measure of independence, and that their jurisdiction should be so limited in area as to ensure both local knowledge and interest on the part of the members, and be at the same time a unit well known to the people. We think that the admitted failure of Subdistrict Boards, as a whole, has been largely to due circumscription of their powers and resources. In Madras and Assam, where they have a freer scope, they appear to have achieved to some measure of success.'

The specific recommendation of the Commission formulated with great precision in paragraph 93, page 307 of their report substantially supports my recommendation.

My motion also receives unstinted support from Dr. Bentley, our Sanitary Commissioner, who, while discussing the Bill from a sanitary point of view, says "If the Circle Boards are not established, it is essential that Local Boards should be developed so as to form intermediate units of local self-government administration. District Boards have been woefully neglectful and inefficient, specially in respect of public health—and this is largely due to the excessive size of the areas they have to administer. The District Board should be the co-ordinating and controlling authority for the public health administration of the district, but the attempt to administer measures for the prevention of the disease over an area of several thousand square miles will prove expensive, wasteful and inefficient and it is absolutely essential that intermediate sanitary districts should be created if systematic work is to be attempted in rural areas with any hope of success.'

Mr. O'Malley; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

Conditions in England are no doubt very different to those in Bengal. But the English system also supports my motion.

In England the largest unit of administration is the county and on the average a County Council administers an area almost 2½ times smaller than that under a District Board in Bengal. This would be the nearest approach to the average area of a Local Board in Bengal. County Councils, moreover, are not really responsible for the details of sanitary administration which is left in the hands of smaller bodies intermediate in size between County Councils on the one hand and Parish Councils on the other.

So, my Lord, reason, authority, precedents and experience—they are all in support of the motion which I hope Your Excellency's Government and the Council will accept."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, the clause which the Hon'ble Mover wishes to add to the Bill is of a revolutionary character, and judged from the fact that only seven elected members are present, it does not appear to have been thought attractive by the other side of the House. Section 101 of the Local Self-Government Act provides that any particular matter which is under the control and administration of the District Board may be transferred either wholly or in part to a Local Board with adequate funds; for instance, all the roads or some of a subdivision may be transferred to a Local Board with an allotment sufficient for their construction and upkeep. This amendment, however, is quite of a different nature as it aims at transferring the whole work of a District Board to Local Boards. It contemplates a drastic change in the system of local self-government which has been in force for over 30 years. If it were accepted, the District Boards would be reduced to a shadow of themselves. The whole organization now existing would be swept away, District Engineers would have to be abolished and the control of roads, schools, dispensaries, public health, etc.,——in fact all the functions of the District Boards——left to the Local Boards. This is not a fair amendment to make in connection with the Village Self-Government Bill, the object of which is to create village authorities. It is nothing less than a sweeping amendment of the Local Self-Government Act cutting at the root of the system which the Act has established Government cannot possibly consider such an amendment in connection with the Village Self-Government Bill, and on behalf of Government therefore I must give an uncompromising negative to the motion."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, this may not be acceptable to the Council—that is quite another matter. But it passes my comprehension how my amendment can be characterized as a revolutionary proposal. I have placed before the Council the whole history of the matter. I have shown how this was the original idea of the Self-Government Bill of 1883 and how it was accepted by the Government of India. This was also the idea of Sir Rivers Thompson. I have heard nothing said in reply to that portion of my speech. In fact I take my stand upon the history of the matter and I know it is impossible to give any answer to that. Quite apart from that, however, the principle that I am advocating has been expressly and in so many words accepted in section 101 of the Local Self-Government Act of 1885. And my amendment is almost a verbatim reproduction, with some slight alterations, of that section in the Act of 1885

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

There is absolutely no difference between that section and my amendment, except that in the former it is optional to the Lieutenant-Governor, while in my amendment I have suggested that it 'shall be transferred.' That is all. So far as the principle is concerned it is accepted in the Act of 1885, and I cannot follow the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley when he characterizes my proposal as revolutionary. My real point is this: I am not proposing to do away with the control of the District Board. All I want is that the District Board should be the controlling body and the Local Board should be the administrative body. There is nothing revolutionary in this. And I think in view of the results obtained in other provinces under this system it deserves a careful consideration by the members of this Council."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 141.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the words "except in matters relating to dafadars and chaukidars" in the last two lines of clause 55A (now clause 50) be omitted.

He said:—

"My Lord, the whole subject has been discussed several times, and I do not think any useful purpose will be served by any new observations on this point."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, a little while ago I thought I had reached the last of these items which would place the dafadars and chaukidars under the subordination of Local Boards, but I had apparently missed this one. My objection to such a proposal is the same, namely, that Local Boards have no historical connection with dafadars and chaukidars, and that they are unsuitable authorities to be placed in a supervising position over them."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 142.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after clause 55A (now clause 50) the following be inserted, namely:—

"55B. (1) Every Union Board shall submit annually to the Local Board, on or before such date as the Local Board may appoint an estimate of the probable receipts and expenditure of the Union Board under each head of account for the ensuing year, and an account of its receipts and expenditure for the past year; and shall submit any other reports which the District Board or Local Board may, from time to time, require.

(2) Every estimate submitted under this section shall be subject to the sanction of the Local Board, who may, before sanctioning any estimate, modify it as it may think fit.

55C. No union board shall incur expenses or undertake liabilities to any amount exceeding the limit imposed by the Local Board."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu A. C. Datta.

He said :—

"My Lord, in support of this amendment I have only to say this : that these provisions are already to be found in the Local Self-Government Act in respect of the union committees. It does occur to me that these provisions are wholesome and there is no reason why they should not be included in the present Bill."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, it is true that these clauses are modelled on sections 105 and 106 of the Local Self-Government Act, and the Hon'ble Member would justify them as a simple prudent measure of accounts procedure. But, in fact, they go beyond that. In the first place, as regards accounts matters, we do not require a special clause. We shall have a rule-making power in respect to accounts, and in so far as it may be desirable to make Union Boards draw up estimates and budgets of the expenditure they seek to incur, we shall have power to direct them to do so. But the objection to inserting clauses of this kind in the Bill is not only that it is not necessary, but also that, as worded, it would result in giving Local Boards a direct authority over chaukidari administration which will be in conflict with the powers vested in the District Magistrate. That is one of the results of combining in one body the chaukidari and petty municipal administrations which were previously entrusted to two different bodies. If we adopt account rules which were previously applicable to one body only, we arrive at the undesirable result that we give a right of interference with a side of the administration with which that body had previously no connection whatever Under the proposed section the Union Boards cannot incur any expenditure or undertake liabilities of any amount exceeding the limit imposed by Local Boards, and it would, therefore, be in the power of the Local Board to say that there shall or shall not be so many chaukidars, and that their pay, even if approved by the District Magistrate, shall or shall not be paid to them unless it is in accordance with what the Local Board has laid down. There would thus be a direct conflict of authority, and on this second ground also, I would oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing more to say."

The motion was then put and lost.

Adjournment.

BENGAL VILLAGE SELF-GOVERNMENT BILL, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Mr. Kerr.

The discussion on the Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919, was resumed.

AMENDMENT No. 143.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the words "Subdivisional magistrates" and "circle officers" in lines 2 and 3 of sub-clause (l) of clause 56 (new clause 51) be omitted.

He said:

"My Lord, the words 'the subdivisional magistrates' and 'circle officers' were not in the original clauses. They have been introduced by the Select Committee on the second occasion. Whatever may be the position as regards subdivisional magistrates we have serious objections to this important power being invested upon the circle officers; we are afraid that the result will be the departmentalization of the union board. In the light of our experience of the working of the wholesome provisions of the Chowkidari Act of 1870, we know how the village police were absolutely departmentalized. With regard to this matter, of course, the circle board was the essence of the scheme of the District Administration Committee, but the circle board has been eliminated by the Select Committee and the Council has accepted that position. Now, that being so, the circle board having been eliminated, it is only proper that the circle officers should also go out. Circle officer without a circle board is rather an anomaly. The result will be that the village council will be something like a village school with the members of the union board as peoples and the circle officers as pedagogues, and what we are afraid of, my Lord, that like a veritable pedagogue the circle officer will use the road too frequently and too indiscriminately and will possibly hinder the spontaneous growth of the self-governing institution. That is our apprehension. In paragraph 720 of their report the Decentralization Commission said that it is most desirable that the union board should be free from interference of lower Government subordinates. I am not quite sure, my Lord, it may be said possibly that this was a remark which was not intended for officers of the class of circle officers, but I should think that this applies to the circle officers, specially in view of the fact that the proposal to appoint deputy magistrates as circle officers has been for all practical purposes rejected and that it is now proposed that circle officers will be young sub-deputy collectors either just appointed or who will be appointed presently. In view of all this we fear that the interference of circle officers is likely to hinder the growth of union boards: and besides, my Lord, it appears to me that this is more retrograde than the corresponding section of the Local Self-Government Act, section 120, and especially as these words were not in the original clause there is no special reason why they should be added at this last stage."

The Hon'ble Mr. Kerr, said:—

"My Lord, I may begin by correcting one misapprehension under which the Hon'ble Member seems to be labouring. He says that these words to which he objects were not in the original Bill; but in the Bill, as it was presented to the Council in February last, it was provided in Schedule III that the district magistrate should be authorized to delegate to a subdivisional magistrate or a circle officer the power of seeing that the proceedings of union boards were in conformity with the law and the rules

Bengal Village Self-Government Bill.

Mr. Kerr.

made thereunder. In the Select Committee it was objected—and I think quite rightly objected, that this was not a proper matter for delegation. It was argued that if it is the policy of Government to employ these officers in seeing that the proceedings of union boards are conducted in conformity with the law, the policy of Government ought to be provided for in the law itself and should not be left as a matter of delegation for the magistrate's decision. The Select Committee agreed with that view, and they consequently cancelled that item in the schedule and inserted these words in clause 56—the words which the Hon'ble Member wishes to get rid of.

As far as I understand the Hon'ble Member, he does not very much object to subdivisional magistrates exercising this power and I think it is fairly clear that under the present system of administration, the district magistrate and the subdivisional magistrate must have the power of inspecting these union boards and of seeing that their proceedings are conducted on the right lines. But the Hon'ble Member does object to this duty being entrusted to circle officers. The Hon'ble Member has quoted a good many extracts from the report of the District Administration Committee; and I gather that he considers that the views of that body are entitled to considerable weight. I am rather surprised therefore that he does not seem to have studied their scheme of circle officers. He says that as the circle boards have been knocked out, we should knock out the circle officers also. Under the District Administration Committee's scheme, circle boards were to meet once a quarter; the circle officer might be its Secretary or he might be a member. It was an obvious defect in the Committee's scheme that there was very little work for the circle board, and therefore the Select Committee abolished the circle board. But, as regards the circle officer, the position is entirely different, and the fact that circle boards have been abolished is no reason for abolishing circle officers also. The circle officer is to be a touring officer. He is to have under his jurisdiction 25 or 30 of these boards, he is to be on tour nearly the whole of the month and he is expected to visit each union at least once a month. It can hardly be expected that a circle officer visiting a union would merely pass the time of day with the president, talking about the weather and the state of crops, and carefully refraining from putting any questions as to how the union boards were working and as to what sort of difficulties they were meeting. It is to be a definite part of the functions of the circle officer to see that the proceedings of union boards are in conformity with the law, and the circle officer is obviously the person who will have the best opportunities of doing so. If the Hon'ble Member's amendment were accepted, the only people who would have power to look into the working of these small bodies would be the commissioner, the district magistrate, the chairman of the district board and the chairman of the local board. I explained yesterday that in each district there will be on the average, when the scheme is extended throughout the province, 250 union boards. Obviously, the district magistrate could not inspect these bodies individually—still less the commissioner. The subdivisional officer will have 80 or 100 union boards in his jurisdiction. but that number is too many for him to be in touch with. If there is to be any control over these union boards and if they are to be given real guidance and help, we must go lower down the official hierarchy, and I do not think that it will be seriously suggested that these small bodies composed of village people will not require help and guidance at any rate for some years to come. Government, therefore, consider it essential to retain this function of the circle officer. The circle officer is not going to be a raw youth put in to worry these bodies. We have, it is true, increased the cadre in view of the passing of this Bill; but it does not follow that we shall put in men who were only appointed the other day to undertake the duties of circle officers. We shall probably put in more experienced men who have already been trained as circle officers, and in any case sub-deputy collectors will be trained before they are entrusted with these functions. On these grounds, I submit that it is necessary, for the proper working of the Bill, to retain these functions of the circle officer and I must therefore oppose the amendment."

Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; The President.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said:—

"My Lord, one of the important arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr is this—that the institution of circle officers has been very much recommended by the District Administration Committee. Now, my Lord, I wanted to avoid any reference to the District Administration Committee's report about the origin of this institution. I wanted to avoid advisedly and deliberately because I think there is something very wrong in the case that has been made out in favour of the circle officer by the District Administration Committee. If we analyze the position of the District Administration Committee about these officers, it comes to this: They say that the real problem is how to bring Government officials into touch with the people in order to enlist their co-operation and sympathy in all administrative measures. Then it is said that in Bengal administrative devolution stops at the subdivisional officers: there is another agency subordinate to subdivisional officers as a connecting link between Government on the one side and the people on the other. Then they go on to consider as to how an agency between the villagers and Government can be established here in Bengal. And then they consider as to why the tahsildars and other officers below the subdivisional officers, whose main function is the collection of revenue, should not form this agency; but having regard to the permanent settlement in Bengal it would be quite unreasonable to bring into existence a class of officers for that purpose and therefore they go on to observe that there must be some other justification for bringing into existence some such officers, and then they say that justification will be found in village organization. It is in that way that a case has been made out for circle officers: in other words, according to the view of the District Administration Committee, circle officers are not wanted as a means to the end, which is the primary object of the villlage self-government, but circle officers are the end and that in order to give them some occupation that the village system should be organized. In any case the view that has been taken by the District Administration Committee has nothing to do with the village self-government. In this clause 56 (now clause 51 there is first of all the commissioner, then the district magistrate, then the subdivisional officer, the circle officer, then the chairman of the district board and finally the chairman of the local board who will inspect the working of the local board. That cannot be conducive to the growth of these individual institutions."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 144.

The President said:—

"Item No. 144 is covered by the previous decision."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

It was as follows:—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the words "circle officers" in lines 2 and 3 of sub-clause (1) of clause 56 (now clause 51) be omitted.

Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 145.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the word "commissioner" in line 1 of sub-clause (2) of clause 56 (now clause 51) the words "district board" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in this connection I shall only refer to another clause of a similar subject, namely, clause 63 (now clause 58) where similar power is given to the district magistrate or the district board, and besides my Lord, the supervision will be done better by the district board who will be nearer at home than by the commissioner with all his multifarious duties and living at some distance and not in direct touch with the union boards."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I must oppose this amendment. Clause 56 in its first portion places the duty on certain authorities of seeing that the actions of these union boards are in accordance with law, and in the second portion it gives power to the Commissioner to annul proceedings which are not in accordance with law, this being a sequel to the first part. The placing of this power with the Commissioner is in conformity with the ordinary principle of outside control. It has been said on occasions in the past that local self-government has not had a fair chance of success in this province because control has been too much from within instead of from without. Now when, in this instance, we propose to impose control from without, we are told that that, in its turn, is not necessary, and that it will be quite sufficient to vest the controlling authority in the district board. I submit that the suggestion is inconsistent with the idea of outside control, and that the Commissioner is the proper agency to intervene if the proceedings transgress the law. It is arguable, indeed, that in mentioning the Commissioner we are putting it unnecessarily high, and that we might reasonably have vested this power in the district magistrate : but in so far as the setting aside of the action taken presumably, by a responsible local authority, is an act of some importance, I do not see that there is any cause for complaint in that we have vested it in a higher officer, and in answer to the assertion that the Commissioner will know nothing about what is going on. I may say that he will, inevitably, act on the reports of the supervising functionaries that are mentioned in the first part of the clause."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, there is nothing more to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 146.

The following motion was deemed to be withdrawn :—

If motion No. 145 be carried The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta also to move that for the word "he" in line 2 of sub-clause (2) of clause 56 (now clause 51) the word "they" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 147.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Dutta moved that after the word "commissioner" in line 1 of sub-clause (2) of clause 56 (now clause 51) the words "or the chairman of the district board" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, my justification for this amendment is that in clause 63 (now clause 58) where a similar power has been given to the district magistrate as well as to the district board a similar power has been given to the district board and that may be done in this case also."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I have just explained the intention in introducing the Commissioner in this clause and I cannot see any advantage in instituting a dual authority which will have the right to set aside an illegal action if taken by the union board. The precedent of clause 63 (now clause 58) is not very appropriate; that has to do with the suspension of action—a kind of emergency power to be applied immediately if it is found that a serious mistake has been committed. There may be justification for giving that power concurrently to the district magistrate and to the district board which will see a good deal of the working of these union boards, but clause 56 (now clause 51) is entirely different. That covers the duty of definitely setting aside a proceeding, and that is best vested in one authority and not in two."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, so far as the arguments of the Hon'ble Member based on dual authority are concerned, I do not think that as there are so many instances of dual, treble and quadruple authorities in this Bill, that that is a sufficient ground for opposing my amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 148.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the words "or any other person authorized by them or by the local Government" in lines 3, 4 and 5 of clause 57 (now clause 52), be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, the corresponding section in the Local Self-Government Act is section 121, but these words do not appear in that section, and I am not aware of any reason why they should not be used here."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Clauses 57 and 58 (now clauses 52 and 53) of the Bill are, in a sense, consequential on clause 56 (now clause 51). Clause 56 (now clause 51), as I have just said, makes certain people responsible for seeing that the union boards are working in conformity with the law. Clauses 57 and 58 (now clause 52 and 53) give certain people the right of inspecting the record of work of these union boards, and seeing whether their work is running in a proper way or not. In clause 57 (now clause 52) it is provided that 'the chairman of the district board or local board or any other person authorized by them or by the local Government' may have access to books, records, etc. Clause 58 (now clause 53) provides the same as regards works in progress. The Hon'ble Member wishes to omit the reference to "other persons" but to my mind that would be a most regretable curtailment of the section, and I would instance to him persons to whose intervention, I should imagine, no exception can be taken. I mentioned the other day that we shall have power to make rules regarding accounts and audit. Proper account keeping will be an important part of the administration as conducted by the union boards, and it will be apart of the administration which it is most undesirable to allow to go wrong. It may happen that it will be found desirable to send persons down to audit and look into the accounts of these union boards, and if so, they will be authorized under this section, and I cannot see that any reasonable exception can be taken to action on these lines. If so, it is right that this clause should stand as at present."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I have nothing more to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 149.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that the words "and other person authorized by them or by the local Government", in lines 3 and 4 of clause 58 (now clause 53), be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I feel that there may be cases in which it may be necessary to engage other persons for the purposes of the inspection contemplated by clause 58. Therefore, on second consideration, I do not like to press this amendment. I, therefore, beg permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 150.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "district magistrate", in line 1 and in line 5 of sub-clause (1) of clause 59A (now clause 54), the words "district board" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler; Babu A. C. Datta; Babu K. M. Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, had other amendments been accepted, it would have brought the district board into closer relation with the chaukidars and dafadars than they ever have been, or than it was ever intended that they should be. In that case, this amendment might be said to be consequential. But those other amendments not having been accepted, I submit that this amendment is entirely unreasonable and inappropriate, and I therefore oppose it."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have nothing to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 151.

The following motion was deemed to be withdrawn.

If motion No. 150 be carried the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the word "he", in line 6 of sub-clause (1) of clause 59A, (now clause 54) the word "they" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 152.

Clause 61.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the words "district magistrate", in the two places in which they occur in clause 61 (now clause 56), the words "divisional commissioner" be substituted.

He said :

My Lord, my reasons are that in analogous proceedings of these boards, the commissioner has been given the power of interference, and I think that the removal and supersession of these boards should be done by the commissioner independent of the district magistrate. It is a serious matter and it is very desirable that it should not be done locally, but by the divisional commissioner.'

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, I would accept the amendment if the Hon'ble Member would agree to mention the district magistrate as one of the persons whose views the Commissioner would consider, that is to say, that the Commissioner, after consideration of the views of the district magistrate and the district board etc."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"My Lord, I would accept that.'

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill. 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler. The President; Rai D. C. Ghose Bahadur.

The motion was put in the following form and agreed to :—

(1) that for the words "district magistrate" in the two places where they occur in sub-clause (1) of clause 61 (now clause 56) the word "commissioner" be substituted,

(2) that after the words "consideration of the views of" in the same sub-clause the words "the district magistrate and" be inserted, and

(3) the words "with the sanction of the commissioner" in the same sub-clause be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 153.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, amendment No, 153 falls, I think."

The President said :—

"As a result of the decision of the Council on the previous amendment this amendment is no longer in order. The Council decided that the word 'commissioner' be substituted, and they cannot go back on that decision."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn. It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words "if the district magistrate, after consideration of the views of the district board, is", in lines 1 and 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 61, (now clause 56) the following be substituted, namely :—"If the district board are"; and that for the words "district magistrate may, with the sanction of the commissoiner" in lines 6, 7 and 8 of sub-clause (1) of the same clause, the words "district board may, with the sanction of the local Government", be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 154.

The following motion was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the words "with the sanction of the commissioner", in lines 7 and 8 of clause 61 (now clause 56) be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 155.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur, in the absence of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, moved that at the end of sub-clause (1) (b) of clause 61 (now clause 56), the following be added, namely :—

"either as regards the exercise of its power under part I or part II, or both".

He said :

"My Lord, in the absence of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray I applied for permission to move the amendment which stands in his name. The

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. P. C. Mitter; The President.

Hon'ble Mr. Roy apprehended that in consequence of the supersession of the union board by an order of the magistrate, the result will be that it would affect the status of those members of the board, who might be appointed as members of the union bench and as members of the union court, that is the criminal bench and the civil court, and that it is desirable that it should not have such consequences. But this morning, the Hon'ble Mr. Duval has drawn my attention to the fact that this criminal bench and the civil court will be created by an order of the local Government. That being so, it does not follow that an order of the magistrate will affect such institutions, and therefore I do not think on reconsideration that the amendment proposed is necessary. I therefore ask permission to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 156.

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter moved that after sub-clause (1) of clause 61 (now clause 56), the following be inserted, namely :—

> "Provided that in the case of an order under clause (b) it shall be necessary for the district magistrate to obtain the concurrence of the chairman of the district board before recording the order."

He said :—

"My Lord, as a result of the amendment which has already been accepted, I would like to make a little alteration in my amendment, leaving the substituted words 'divisional commissioner' for the words 'district magistrate'. I may submit that the change I am asking for is more or less consequential on the amendment already accepted by the Council. In the Bill as it originally stood it was the district magistrate who was to be given this power. but now the Council has decided that that power will be exercised by the divisional commissioner. I will ask your Excellency's permission to make that alteration in my amendment and then I shall make my submission with regard to the main point."

The President said :—

"Yes, you may."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My object in moving this amendment is that with regard to the supersession which is the subject-matter of clause 61 (1)(b) [now clause 56(1)(b)] and with regard to that alone the concurrence of the chairman of the district board should be obtained. The whole scheme of this Bill is such that the chairman of the district board and the district magistrate should act in mutual co-operation, and it is desirable that when a serious step like that of supersession is taken, there should be concurrence of the chairman of the district board. That will obviate a misunderstanding, and that I submit will lead to a better working of these union boards. My Lord, on another occasion I indicated that if a local self-governing institution needs to be reprimanded or superseded in the interests of self-government, strong action should be taken, and at the same time it is desirable that all the authorities should be unanimous in a matter like this."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler; Mr. P. C. Mitter; Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I do not think that this was a very good amendment even as it was first filed, and I submit that it has become worse now that we have amended clause 61 (now clause 56) in the manner which has just been approved. The original clause was to the effect that if the district magistrate, after consideration of the views of the district board, was satisfied that a union board is incompetent, he could supersede it with the sanction of the Commissioner. The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri proposed that the order should vest solely in the Divisional Commissioner, although in any case the Divisional Commissioner's sanction would have to be obtained, and we have agreed to that course. I can imagine the Hon'ble Member arguing, though I should not agree with him, that we might require the district magistrate to get the concurrence of the district board, but I cannot see how the Commissioner of the Division can properly be expected to get the concurrence of the district board. Surely now that we have given this power to the Divisional Commissioner and have required him to consider the veiws of the district magistrate and the district board, we have done all that can be reasonably expected. This power of supersession is the last step in the matter of outside control. It will only be applied as an extreme step, and, we hope, it will not be applied frequently. Let it be remembered that it is to be applied to what, after all, is a small local body; the union board will be a small body concerned with petty administration over a very small area, and administering funds which may run to Rs. 1,000 or so on an average. Is it unreasonable to give the Divisional Commissioner the ultimate right of superseding them if they fail in the discharge of their duties?

It would be entirely anomalous to require the head of the division to obtain the concurrence of the chairman of the district board before he can take action of this nature. Moreover, it is conceivable, though I do not think it likely, that the district board might be interested or concerned in the events which led up to the supersession of the union board. I therefore oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My Lord, with regard to the first two lines of clause 61 (now clause 56) the Council will notice that all that is laid down there is that the views of the district magistrate will be considered, not necessarily accepted, but will only be considered. My amendment suggests that in case of supersession, the concurrence of the chairman of the district board may be obtained. Therefore, I submit that instead of the amendment which has already been accepted, the necessity remains. I can quite understand the disinclination on the part of the divisional commissioner to obtain the concurrence of the chairman of the district board, but, my Lord, if we are to make local self-government a success, such disinclination should be discouraged. For that reason, my Lord, I venture to think that my amendment ought to be accepted."

The motion was then put in the amended form and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 157.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq moved that after sub-clause (2) of clause 61 (now clause 56) the following be inserted, namely :—

"(3) An appeal shall lie to the local Government from an order of supersession of a union board within such period, and in such manner as may be prescribed by rules under section 111".

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul Haq.

He said :

"My Lord; it has been a matter of the deepest regret to me that owing to a sudden indisposition I have not been able to take my share in the discussion on the Bill during its passage through this Council. Perhaps the Council have to be congraulated on what might possibly have been a curse, but to me, my Lord, the disappointment has been very great and I crave your Excellency's pardon for having said something by way of personal explanation before saying anything on the amendment which stands in my name.

The amendment which I propose is that in case of an order of supersession having been passed either by the district magistrate as originally proposed or by the divisional commissioner as has now been accepted, in consequence of the amendment that has been moved by the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri, the order of supersession shall be subject to an appeal to the local Government. I do not think I need take up the time of the Council by discussing the broad principles on which all rights of appeal are based. Briefly stated all human tribunals are more or less imperfect ; and an order against which there is no right of appeal carries with it a sort of finality, which ought to attach to the decisions only of infallible tribunals. We may concede at once that this power of superceding the activities of the union board by an order of the divisional commissioner shall be very sparingly exercised and even if it is exercised at all, it will be exercised with the utmost care and caution. But after all, my Lord, an order of supersession may be found to be on enquiry not justified, and if no power is given to a higher tribunal to revise that order, the effect will be that there will be a wrong without a remedy. The right of appeal does not and cannot cause any reflection on the tribunal against which the right of appeal is given. Instances are not wanting in which the very tribunal against which the right of appeal is provided, itself gives the permission for the aggrieved party to appeal. I can mention, for instance, the case in which the High Court certifies against its own judgment that an appeal to the Privy Council is allowable. Therefore, so far as the divisional commissioner or any other authority who passes an order of supersession is concerned, there can be no reflection on him if the right of appeal is permitted. Secondly, a right of appeal gives to an aggrieved party a chance of taking the matter up to a higher tribunal, and having the facts examined by a second party, and thereby there is some sort of consolation to the aggrieved party that after all the order might perhaps have been justified. If the right of appeal is taken away, the party who is given the power to pass an order which carries with it this amount of finality, is led by the very fact of there being no appeal, to act in an arbitrary manner. My Lord, within the last few months, there have been several cases in which orders of supersession have been passed against certain municipalities. These orders have been passed by no less an authority than the local Government itself, and although we need not discuss whether these orders were justified or not, there can be no question that these orders have provoked an amount of protest from public bodies, and almost all the parts of the country affected by these orders thought that in one case, at any rate, the order of supersession should not have been passed. What will happen if an order of supersession is passed by the divisional commissioner and there is no right of appeal to the local Government? How are the aggrieved parties to vent their grievances and acquaint the local Government of what they have got to say in the matter. Supposing they send in a petition to the local Government, the section does not provide the local Government with any power of cancelling the order of supersession passed by the divisional commissioner. Secondly, I would ask Hon'ble Members to read that sub-section and they will find at once that although in an order of supersession a time-limit

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler.

can be fixed, there is no limit again to the time-limit. What I mean is this; supposing the commissioner passes an order superceding the union board for a period of 10 years. Who is going to restrict his hands, who is going to rectify the wrong? Supposing, so far as that particular matter is concerned, an order has got to be set right, who is going to do that, under what authority is it to be done? Thirdly. I would ask the Hon'ble Members to examine clause (a), as regards which we have not said anything, for my hon'ble friend, Mr. Mitter, who has just moved an amendment in connection with this section, has not said anything as regards sub-clause (a) I have not thought it proper to move any amendment as far as that sub-clause is concerned, because the district magistrate or the divisional commissioner or any other authority may remove, if necessary, the president of the union board. There, only an individual is concerned; it does not raise any question of principle, and I do not think it would be right and proper to take away the power of the commissioner or the district magistrate to remove the chairman through whose neglect of duty the work of the union board might suffer, but when we come to the supercession of the activities of a corporate body, like that of the union board, there the questions that arise are of a far more serious character, and it is only when the rights of the union board as a body are affected, by an adverse order passed by the commissioner, that I recommend that an appeal should be provided for, and to no less an authority than the local Government. Briefly stated, therefore, my reasons are these: In the first place, all orders ought to be, as a matter of principle, subject to appeal, so that they may be set right if there is something wrong; and secondly, this provision to prefer an appeal does not cause any reflection on the authority over whom a right of appeal is given. Thirdly, the section is so worded that if the commissioner passes an order without fixing a time-limit, there is nothing in the section to set at least that kind of wrong right, and fourthly, the supercession of the activities of the union board affects very seriously the rights and privileges of a corporate body and should always be subject to revision by a higher authority. I do not think, my Lord, that in moving this amendment I need say anything further."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, we are all glad to see the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq among us to-day, though, possibly for the reason that he was absent for the last two days, he has supported his amendment at greater length than will characterize my reply. I oppose the amendment as being unnecessary, and as being framed with a want of sense of proportion of what the issues at stake really are. It seems to me that a rather unexpected result may have followed from the Select Committee suggesting the adoption of the term 'union board' instead of 'village committee' as in the original Bill. We are accustomed to 'boards' as indicating bodies of some magnitude and importance, and possibly the use of the same term in connection with these unions has conveyed a similar impression in relation to the union board. But it is an erroneous impression. I have already referred to the scope and the functions of these boards; they will, in fact, be glorified panchayets, though we hope that they will be panchayets which will be more useful and satisfactory than were the existing chaukidari panchayets, while they will have greater scope for beneficial activities than the present union committees. But, in essence, these union boards will be small village bodies. In the event of their going entirely off the rails, some power has to be taken to curtail their functions, and I submit that it is not unreasonable to allow that power to be exercised by the Divisional Commissioner, and that it is entirely out of proportion to ask the Governor in Council, sitting here in Calcutta, to intervene in a matter of this kind."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur; The President.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I desire to say a few words on this motion. I regret that this motion, which has been moved by my hon'ble friend, Mr. Mitter, is not to be accepted, as I hoped that it would be accepted, following the precedent of yesterday when some of his motions were accepted. We had, however, the misfortune of losing all our amendments."

The President said :—

"We are now discussing the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq's motion No. 157 and not the Hon'ble Mr. Mitter's motion. The Hon'ble Member should therefore confine his remarks to the motion before the House."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur (continuing) said :—

"Coming to the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq's motion, I think I have heard with great care and attention the reply of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. I find he says that union boards will be glorified panchayets, having greater scope for increased activities than the union committees and that as they will be small village bodies there ought to be a sense of proportion between district magistrates and subdivisional magistrates. Subsequently an amendment has been accepted providing that the sanction of the divisional commissioner should be obtained before passing an order and that in such small matters the local Government should not be troubled. I think I may go back to the history of the question because although it may be well known to the official members, it may not be known to the members on this side of the House; and I may state that before 1908 under the then existing Act the power of superseding these union committees, which are now to be transformed into glorified union boards with larger scope and activities, vested in the district board—and not in the district magistrate, nor in the divisional commissioner, but in the local Government. In 1908 the Act was amended and under a certain section of the Act it was enacted that if a district board or local board or a union committee was not competent to perform the duties or persistently made default in the performance of duties imposed on it by or under this Act, the local Government may by notification specifying the reason for doing so supersede such district board, local board or union committee for a period to be specified in such notification. This is an Act, my Lord, of this legislature which will remain in force until this Act is passed. It will thus be seen that before that a much less glorified body, with smaller powers, used to be superseded not by the district magistrate nor by the divisional commissioner but by the local Government; and the local Government which thereafter in this province was transformed into a Presidency Government by a subsequent amendment of the Bengal Act, must be taken to mean the Governor in Council. Therefore, my Lord, the Governor in Council up to the present time is the only authority which could supersede such a small body as the union committee. It will thus be seen that here we have got the existing Act in our favour and this is a year of progressive reform. The result of the legislation is that the district magistrate with the sanction of the divisional commissioner will supersede these union committees although they will be much expanded. I appeal to your Excellency to consider whether having regard to the march of intelligence in this country and the genuine efforts made by Government to bestow self-government upon the people, this piece of legislation will be considered as a reform towards progress or of retrogression. Then, my Lord, I do not know what is opposed. What I ask for is that an appeal may be allowed to the local Government; the local Government will no doubt consider the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the order of the district magistrate. The district magistrate is not always an infallible person and the local Government presided over by your Excellency or your Excellency's successor, and assisted by the cream of the service which rules the land, will surely be in a much better position to exercise judgment than a district magistrate however good and able he may be. Therefore, my Lord, I think when we the people of this country, the subjects of the British Empire, seek that we should have the right of appeal to the highest representative of the Crown in our own Presidency, why should we be kept out and said that 'our sub-agent must decide and you must submit to his order.' Are we not subjects of the British Crown? It is in this view of the matter that I pray that this amendment may be accepted, so that we may be able to approach your Excellency with an appeal whenever necessary."

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; Sir D. P. Sarbadhikari.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said:—

"My Lord, I wish to add only one word in support of this amendment. The order of supersession is the extreme penalty which can be imposed under an Act of this kind and where the sentence is so very severe I do not see why there should not be an appeal. It does not derogate the authority and the position of the Commissioner or that of the Magistrate. It is an universal proposition that in case of an extreme sentence even the worst offender is entitled to an appeal. If the power of supersession had been reserved in the Government as the power now is there would have been no complaint. In fact by this Bill we are going to delegate that function to an inferior officer of Government. In that case I think it is only just and fair that there should be a right of appeal for the union boards. Our recent experience has shown that the sentence of supersession whether rightly or wrongly passed is strongly resented by the people, and I hope if not for anything else, at all events for the satisfaction of the people Government would act wisely to give this right of appeal. It will not take much of the time of the Governor in Council, as there will be very few cases of this character. Then why create the dissatisfaction of the people by making the order of a magistrate subject to Commissioner's sanction final. My learned friend, Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq, only wants that there should be a right of appeal. I think that this is a very reasonable modification of the present clause which I hope the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler will still see his way to accept."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said:—

"My Lord, in the first place, I should like to draw your Excellency's attention to clause 1, sub-clause (3), of the Bill, under which the local Government may, by notification, withdraw this Act from any district or part of a district. So far as sub-clause (b) of clause 61 (1) (now clause 56) is concerned, what does it really amount to? It really withdraws for the time being the Act from that part of the district, superseding the board for a period to be specified in the order. I doubt very much whether the Act can take away the power from the local Government; supersession of the board for the time being means nothing short of the withdrawal of the board. That is a matter for the Government to consider before this amendment is further resisted. In the second place, it strikes me that a provision like this made for right of appeal to the Government should automatically be acceptable to Government, if for no other reasons than for reconciling public opinion and making the work of self-government smoother in this country. I do not know whether these sentiment that the authority to be initiated under this Act relates to a very small measure of self-government with regard to what may be called glorified panchayets has found expression before or not. I do not appreciate this sentiment and would rather deprecate it. Well, my Lord, the panchayets in the olden days was a very big institution. It may have degenerated in the immediate past; and if we are really to interest ourselves in glorifying that once 'glorious' institution which was one of the features of previous administrations, we are justified in belittling it. But, my Lord, I think that what we propose to inaugurate is something more than a glorified panchayet. Judging by the great interest displayed by your Excellency in its inception and judging from the speeches of the Hon'ble Members introducing the measure in this Council from time to time, I should think that we are laying absolutely the first stone of the great structure of self-government that is coming. When it was urged by some that it might as well stand over till the Reform Scheme was matured, it was pointed out—with force—that it is right that, pending the Reform Scheme, we should be ready with the concrete foundation for the inauguration of the great measure and take the first steps that would make the success of that measure assured. It was from that point of view that we have so long been approaching this measure; and if what we have so long been maturing it was nothing more than a 'glorified panchayet', as Sir Henry Wheeler has said to-day, I do not think that the time and attention that this Council and the various select committees have been well spent. To my mind, this measure is really and truly a great measure and it ought not to be deprecated in the way it has been this morning.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. P. C. Mitter; Rai M. C. Mitra Bahadur.

"My Lord, I do not wish to labour this point beyond submitting that having regard to the various diverging interests that will arise from time to time and to the strong appeal that was made, your Excellency's Government should have at least thought that it would be graceful on the part of the Government to accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Provash Chunder Mitter said :—

"My Lord, there is one aspect of the question to which I should like to draw your Excellency's attention. It is true that a large number of these union boards will concern themselves with the administration of a small force of men but it is equally true that a fair number of them will be concerned with the administration of a considerable force of men. There will be a number of these union boards which will deal with subdivisional towns which will have bazars and big hâts and will be in receipt of an income of not less than eight to ten thousand rupees. I understand that it is the policy of Government that with regard to very small towns it is very desirable to have union boards and union committees than to have the application of the Bengal Municipal Act and therefore the suggestion which I venture to throw out is whether or not it is possible to make a distinction between the more important of those union boards—say union boards having an income of Rs. 2,500 and those having a less income."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I desire to speak a few words in this connection. There is a deep impression in the minds of the people that whenever their grievances are not redressed, they would like to submit a memorial to the Lat Sahib for redress. If we look, therefore, to the impression of the people, we can very well understand that everybody desires that there should be a right of appeal to your Excellency's Government and why should this desire of the people be not allowed? This is a matter which demands your Excellency's consideration. Now, so far as the position of affairs goes, we understand that the decisions arrived at by the subordinate officials of Government ought to be controlled by your Excellency's Government, not in all cases but in many cases. If that be the view, then, it is a matter which ought to be considered. The union boards are for the first time introduced in our province and if any decision is arrived at by the subordinate officers of your Excellency's Government, is it not fair, just and proper that the Government—the highest official of that Government—should take that into consideration, namely, look into the matter? My Lord, I speak from my personal experience that the people of this country wish that such matters ought to be taken into consideration by the highest official of Government, and in this view of the matter I support the amendment."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul Haq.

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq said :—

"My Lord, I did not know that the joys and sorrows of poor rustics—their homely joys and their destinies obscure—were so very insignificant as not to be worthy of consideration at the hands of the high officials of Government. I had an idea that by this Village Self-Government Act high privileges and rights were going to be conferred on these institutions; but we are told practically that these institutions would be nothing but 'glorified' nonentities —so insignificant in fact that the members of your Excellency's Government cannot condescend to hear an appeal if an order is passed by a subordinate authority suspending their activities for a period, the length of which is to be determined by the authority passing the order without any restrictions as to what that period is going to be. If these bodies are really so very insignificant as that, why not leave the order of supersession to be passed by the district board; why trouble the district magistrate and the divisional commissioner again; why not place the union boards entirely subject to the control of district boards—for the district boards to look into their working, to pass an order and do whatever they like and if necessary without any right of appeal to a higher authority. I submit, my Lord, that in the original draft of the Bill itself, there was something, if not actually a provision for a right of appeal, or at least something of that character. Your Excellency will notice that, in the clause as originally drafted, the order of supersession was to have been passed by the district magistrate and the power of the district magistrate was to have been exercised with the sanction of the commissioner by an order in writing. This means that although it would have been the district magistrate who would have first taken action, the action that was proposed to be taken would have been revised by a higher authority. In this particular case, the initial step is to be taken by the divisional commissioner and there is no higher authority to revise that order. I submit, therefore, that this is going back in principle upon the original draft itself. After all that has been said by Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari and Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur, I do not think it is necessary for me to take up the time of this Council. I am not also physically fit, and I do not wish to inflict any long speech on a question like this. I will only say a few words before I resume

Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler.

my seat. My Lord, suppose an order of supersession is passed and it is really resented by the people, how are they going to give vent to their grievances? Are they to run to the office of the Amrita Bazar Patrika and kick up an agitation and are they to lead a procession through the streets and to go on selling forbidden leaflets in order to let the Government know what the public feeling is in the matter? I submit that there ought to be some provision to allow the people to let your Excellency know what their grievances are and this can best be done by providing the right of appeal. After all, why should an order be passed and the right of appeal shut out? If the order that the magistrate or the divisional commissioner passes is just and right, why should they shrink from scrutiny? I submit, therefore, that it is wrong in principle; it is subversive of all rules and orders and justice to deprive an aggrieved party from the right of appeal. I appeal to your Excellency not to reject this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, if I wanted evidence in support of my contention that this amendment betrays a certain amount of lack of proportion in the proposal which it contains, I should produce the evidence of the speeches that have been delivered with reference to it. I still maintain that we are in danger of getting entirely out of proportion in our view of the issues involved in this matter.

As the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur has referred to section 131 of the Local Self-Government Act and has quoted it in his favour, I would briefly state that it is perfectly true that the Act groups district and local boards and union committees in one lump, and vests the power of supersession in the local Government. I can only characterize it as one of many sections which were first framed in connection with local self-Government, which are based upon an undesirable degree of centralization, towards the removal of which subsequent legislation has been directed. A section which groups as analogous bodies district boards and union committees seems to me to be defective on the face of it.

The only other point that I would mention is as regards the curious allegation that has been made by various speakers, that we want to belittle the union boards which we are endeavouring to set up. The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari seems somewhat inconsistent in referring to the glorious past of the panchayets in this country, and simultaneously saying that I am belittling union boards by referring to them under that name. The accusation reminds me somewhat of an instance some little time ago when, in a published resolution, we were rash enough to say that certain officers were discharging functions of subordinate responsiblity. We were then told that we had insulted these officers by that remark, and I endeavoured to clear up that misapprehension in this Council Chamber. As regards these union boards nothing can get away from the fundamental fact that their concern is with small areas, touching which they discharge minor functions and are concerned with exiguous funds. There is really no insult intended in mentioning that the circumstances of the case are of that description.

As regards the joys and sorrows of the poor villagers, which the Hon'ble Maulvi Fazl-ul-Haq charges us with disregarding, I may mention that the supersession of a union board, if it occurs at all, will be directed towards the enhancement of those joys by removing a body which has presumably failed entirely to perform the functions allotted to it."

AMENDMENT NO. 158.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that after sub-clause (1). (a) of clause 62, (now clause 57) the following be added, namely :—

"(aa) all powers and duties of the union board under Part I shall, until such board is reconstituted, be exercised and performed by the local board."

He said :

"My Lord, this amendment and amendment No. 161 are related to each other and I propose to speak on them together and it is for your Excellency to decide whether they should be put to the House separately or together. In case of the supersession of an union board the question is which body shall carry on the work of the superseded body. This Bill is divided into two parts —Part I and Part II. Part I deals with the municipal functions and Part II with judicial functions of the union board. So far as the municipal functions are concerned it is only proper that in case of supersession of an union board, they should be carried on by the local boards. But the matter stands on a different footing when we come to the judicial functions. Therefore, I propose that the powers and duties of the union boards under Part I of the Bill should be carried on by local boards and those under Part II should be carried on as under sub-clause (b). That, my Lord, is my submission."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, this clause deals with the distribution of the powers and functions of the union board in the event of its supersession, and it provides that these powers and functions shall be exercised and performed by such local authority, person or persons, and in such manner, as the district magistrate, with the sanction o. the Commissioner, may direct, and we framed it in that way so as to give a certain amount of elasticity in distributing the different duties with which these boards may have been concerned. My objection to accepting amendment No. 158 is that it would finally vest all powers under Part I in the local board, whereas Part I contains many functions with reference to chaukidari administration, with which, as I have frequently argued during the last two days, local boards are not concerned. It would not therefore be proper that, even on the supersession of the union board, the local board should step into its shoes in regard to chaukidari matters.

The Hon'ble Member has also referred to his second amendment, No. 161, although it is governed by different considerations, and it may save time if I also state the objections to them now. There seems to be some misapprehension underlying it. What the Hon'ble Member has in his mind is that along with the supersession of the union board, all powers under Part I should vest in the local board, while those under Part II, which deals with judicial functions, should vest in persons to be decided as in the clause as at present drafted. But I may point out that the powers exercisable under Part II are not powers of the union board ; they are powers of the union bench and of the union court. If the board is superseded there will be no members of the board, and therefore there can be no bench or court, which is made up of members of the board. Therefore there is a fallacy in the reasoning of the Hon'ble Member as regards the second amendment, and I cannot accept it."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"I think my hon'ble friend is under a misapprehension. The fact of supersession will not certainly affect the criminal bench or the civil court in any way. They will remain as they are and I do not see the necessity of the second amendment proposed by my hon'ble friend. As I said a short time ago in connection with amendment No. 155, the bench and the court will be appointed by an order of the local Government. That being so, no order of supersession by a subordinate authority can touch them. They will, of course, be formed by appointment from among the members of the union board, but if the union board is abolished it does not follow that the court and bench should also be superseded because the appointment of the latter lies with the local Government and, of course, the district magistrate or the divisional commissioner cannot turn them out by saying that we abolish the court and bench."

Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler; The President.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"As regards amendment No. 161, I must admit that there was some fallacy underlying it which has been pointed by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, but which did not occur to me before. I now see that it is unnecessary and I am fully convinced by the arguments of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler. Therefore, I would not press amendment No. 161. But, as regards the other amendment, I take my stand upon the arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler himself who says that Part I, among other things also deals with the chaukidari function, and so far as that particular function is concerned it cannot be exercised by the local board in case of the supersession of an union board. So far as that statement goes I am quite prepared to concede that it is quite correct. But at the same time I may point out that Part I, includes other functions also—I mean the municipal functions—functions which are more important than chaukidari duties, sanitary improvements, primary education, medical relief, conservancy, drainage, etc. So far as these functions are concerned, according to the line of argument followed by Sir Henry Wheeler, they should be more appropriately exercised by the local board in case of a supersession of the union board. Therefore, if I may be permitted by your Excellency, I would like to slightly modify my amendment on these lines. My proposition is this : that so far as the municipal functions are concerned they will be carried on by the local board leaving out the other function, namely, the chaukidari function mentioned in Part I. I am entitled to do this as I am not asking for more than this amendment involves."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I think I can satisfy the Hon'ble Member without the modification of his amendment. All powers and duties under this clause can be made over either to a local authority or to a person or persons, and we inserted the words 'local authority' in order to render it possible to make over the municipal functions of the union board, it may be, to the local board or to an adjoining union board. These municipal functions will ordinarily be made over to the local board, and under the clause as framed it will be perfectly possible to do so. If, as I understand, the Hon'ble Member wishes to ensure that these municipal functions must be made over to the local board, that can be done under the present Bill, but I strongly deprecate inserting other words as he now suggests, since we have no time to scrutinize the whole Bill with the view of appreciating their precise bearing."

The President said :—

"In view of what the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said, I think the Hon'ble Member had better move his amendment in the form in which it appears on the paper."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 159 to 161.

The President said :—

"Nos. 159 and 160 are covered by the decision on the former amendment, and I understand the Hon'ble Member wishes to withdraw No. 161."

The following motions were then deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler; The President.

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray to move that after the words "union board", in line 1 of sub-clause (1) (b) of clause 62 (now clause 57), the words "under part I", be inserted; and for the words "such local authority, person or persons, and in such manner, as the district magistrate, with the sanction of the commissioner, may direct, and", in lines 3 to 7 of the same sub-clause, the following be substituted, namely :—

"the local board within which the union board is situated, and under Part II by a nominee of the district magistrate".

If motion No. 159 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray also to move that sub-clause (1) (c) of clause 62 (now clause 57) be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that after the words "union board" in line 1 of sub-clause (1) (b) of clause 62 (now clause 57), the words and figures "under part II" be inserted.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 162 AND 163.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

My Lord, No. 162 and No. 163 which stand in my name are exactly the same, and therefore I am taking them together.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, when I was examining these amendments, they seemed to me to be consequential, as I thought they followed the Hon'ble Member's desire to replace the district magistrate by the district board. But in any case, whether consequential or not, I do not think they are an improvement, as if the power of supersession rests with the district magistrate, with the sanction of the Commissioner, and we have now vested it in the Divisional Commissioner, it is only reasonable that the distribution of the superseded powers should equally rest with the executive authorities. The district board will not come into the act of supersession, neither should it properly come in under the distribution of the superseded powers, particularly since with chaukidari matters the district board has no concern."

The President said :—

"I was just going to raise that point. I think as a result of the amendment made in clause 61 (now clause 56), we ought strictly speaking to make a similar amendment in 62, and in place of 'the district magistrate, with sanction of the commissioner', to insert the word 'commissioner'. Under these circumstances, we had better come to a decision upon the Hon'ble Member's amendment, and if that amendment is not carried, I will ask Sir Henry Wheeler to move the amendment which I have suggested."

The motions were then put and lost.

They were as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words "district magistrate, with the sanction of the commissioner" in lines 5 and 6 of sub-clause (1) (b) of clause 62 (now clause 57), the words "district board" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta also to move that for the words "district magistrate, with the sanction of the commissioner" in lines 4 and 5 of sub-clause (1) (c) of clause 62 (now clause 57), the words "district board" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir H. Wheeler; Babu A. C. Datta; Babu K. M. Chaudhuri.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"With your permission, Sir, I will now move in consequence of the amendment in clause 61 (now clause 56) which has been accepted by the Council, that in clauses 62 (b) and 62 (c) (now clause 57), the words 'district magistrate, with the sanction of the commissioner,' wherever they occur, should be replaced by the word 'commissioner'."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 164.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta also moved that for the words "the district magistrate" in line 1 and in line 7 of clause 63 (now clause 58) and for the words "such magistrate", in line 4 of clause 63 (now clause 58), the words "the local board" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"This is the clause which gives power to suspend the action of a union board in case of emergency, and it vests that power in the district magistrate or the district board. Under section 124 of the Local Self-Government Act the corresponding power is exercised by the magistrate of the district or the commissioner. In the Bill we have introduced the district board, and to that extent we have recognized the desire to emphasize the position of the district board in connection with the supervision of union boards, but this amendment now asks us to go further. It asks us to take out the district magistrate entirely, and to substitute in his place the local board. In other words, it would eliminate all outside right of intervention by the district magistrate, in the event of the doing of an act which in his opinion was likely to cause injury or annoyance to the public, or to any class or body of persons, or to lead to a breach of the peace, and I submit that the intervention of the district magistrate in such a contingency is amply justified by his position in the district and the responsibilities which devolve upon him. He is essentially the man who is concerned with these considerations, and I cannot see the wisdom of eliminating him from the right to see that these considerations are not endangered by any improper action on the part of the union board."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I have nothing further to say."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 165.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri moved that for the words "or the district board", in line 1 of clause 63 (now clause 58), the words "on the recommendation of the district board to that effect" be substituted.

He said :—

"By this amendment I rather wish to restrict to a certain extent the power of the District Board. Clause 63 (now clause 58) as its stands provides for dual control either by the district magistrate or by the district board. But I think it would be better if the district magistrate be the final authority, and I would like to leave the initiative to the district board. My object is that there should not be any difference of opinion between the two authorities. In most cases the magistrate is the real authority, but in this case, instead of acting independently, I want him to act on the initiative of the district board, which is more concerned with the working of the union board. That is all I have to submit, my Lord."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I doubt if the Hon'ble Member has correctly represented the effect of his own amendment. As I understand him, he says he wants to avoid the dual control which now exists in the clause, under which, as framed, the district magistrate or the district board may take action, but if we accept the amendment which he suggests, the clause would run 'the district magistrate on the recommendation of the district board may, etc.,' the practical result being that even if it appeared to the district magistrate that injury or annoyance is likely to be caused to the public, or a breach of the peace is to be apprehended, he would not be able to move without the recommendation of the district board. My objection to this amendment is similar to that which I took in connection with the previous amendment, viz., that this is a matter in which the district magistrate is acutely interested and in which he should have an unfettered hand to intervene if he thinks it necessary."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri said :—

"I have nothing further to add, my Lord."

The motions was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT Nos. 166—169.

The following motions which were held to be covered by decisions on previous amendments were deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for clause 65 (now clause 59) the following be substituted, namely :—

> "65. When the local board makes any order under section 63, such board shall forthwith submit to the district board a copy of the order, with a statement of the reasons for making it and with any explanation which the union board concerned may wish to offer, and the district board may thereupon confirm, modify or rescind the order."

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the words "or the district board", in lines 1 and 2 of clause 65, (now clause 59), the words "on the recommendation of the district board to that effect" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri also to move that for the words "the magistrate or board, as the case may be", in lines 2 and 3 of clause 65 (now clause 59), the word "he" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that after clause 65 (now clause 59) the following be inserted, namely :—

"65A. Whenever the district magistrate or the divisional commissioner passes any order under this chapter either in the first instance or upon revision, he shall forthwith transmit the whole record of the case to the local Government, who may thereupon confirm, modify or rescind the order."

AMENDMENT No. 170.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "all or any", in line 3 of clause 74 (now clause 65), the words "any three or more" be substituted.

He said :

"My Lord, clause 74 (now clause 65) relates to the constitution of the union bench. Under the clause as it stands even a single member can form a bench. In view of the fact that the decisions will be summary and final and not governed by the procedure laid down by the Civil and Criminal Procedure Codes, my contention is that it would not be safe to have the bench constituted of a single member only. It is said there is safety in number and in that view I propose that the minimum number of members constituting the union bench should be three."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, as two other Hon'ble Members have similar amendments, I may briefly explain the position. It is perfectly true that under clause 74, (now clause 65) as it stands, the local Government may appoint all or any of the members of the board to be members of the bench, and that, therefore, it would be possible to constitute a one-man bench. It is also true that the members of the District Administration Committee seem to have contemplated a bench of several members, as they observed in paragraph 133 of their report as follows :—

'The other members of the Bench should ordinarily be appointed from among the members of the panchayat, and three should form a quorum for the disposal of case work.'

It would follow that if three was to be a minimum quorum we could not have a one-man bench. We considered this point in Select Committee, and opinion was not altogether unanimous with regard to it; but we eventually came to the conclusion that the change was a substantial one, which should be left to the consideration of the Council. The arguments in favour of a bench is, of course, that collective opinion is thereby secured; and when we are constituting a judicial tribunal the proceedings of which will be somewhat informal, as compared with those of the regular courts, it may be desirable to retain that collective judgment as a corrective to any possible errors of one member only. That is the argument for the amendment as I understand it. On the other hand, if we require that the bench must consist of three men, it may hamper the extension of the system, in so far as, while in some parts it may be possible to find one, or even two, men fit to exercise these powers, it may not always be the case that we can find the minimum of three ; also, in subsequent stages of judicial hearings, it is more difficult and more complicated to get three men together at one time and place than it is to call on one man. These are the considerations which strike me on the other side ; and I would adopt the attitude of the Select Committee and say that we are perfectly willing to leave the matter to the decision of the Council."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, as I gather from the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler, he is not keen about retaining a provision as regards the constitution of the union bench and leaves it to the decision of this Council. As the Hon'ble Member has said there is much to be said in favour of the collective wisdom of a body of men than the judgment of a single individual, and as the members of the union bench are not likely always to be men of judicial experience it is better to put 2 or 3 — 3 would be preferable—on the bench, and as regards the difficulty in securing the requisite number, I think if we find three persons suitable for the union board they might as well serve on the union bench, or if there be any such difficulty we need not have the bench at all. The safest thing is to have three persons on the bench, and I would, therefore, support the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta's amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have a similar motion in which I suggest that the words 'at least three' be substituted for the words 'any of the'. My reason is that such a kind of trial is like a trial by jury, and we therefore ought to have not one member but at least three. If we take two, the decision will be unsatisfactory, in case of difference of opinion. If we take at least three, the decision of the jury will be satisfactory. So my Lord, if a bench is to be formed, as the language of the clause is, then a bench consisting of one gentleman will not be satisfactory. It is, therefore, necessary that due attention should be given, I submit respectfully, to the suggestion which I have put before the Council. My Lord, if it be argued on the other hand that competent men to form the bench are not available, then, I submit respectfully that the whole scope of the Bill will be frustrated. It is with this view that we put before the Council that men of educational qualification should come to the bench. Being a mufassal man, I am sensible of the fact that there may be places where this difficulty will arise, but in that case it is necessary to see whether such a bench can be formed or not. If such a bench cannot be formed, then, I submit the bench of one man will not be sufficient for the purpose and the whole idea will be imperfect. It is with this view perhaps that the framers of the Bill thought it necessary to put in it the elastic expression 'or any'. But, my Lord, if the object of Government be that in every union a bench is to be formed, it will be necessary to strengthen the body of the members of the board. How can that be done? I submit that if the villagers are to depend upon the decision of one man, it will be far better to go to the munsif and to have a decision from him—a trained lawyer. If we are to depend upon the decision and judgment of a man who is an untrained lawyer and not cognisant of the principles of law, depending solely upon his own common-sense, the judgment of such a man will be unsatisfactory whatever it may be. I, therefore, submit respectfully that the Council will consider the desirability of having such an expression as 'at least three'."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Hart; Babu A. C. Datta.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, may I rise just to explain why I am unable to vote for this amendment. I did not rise to speak before because I thought that the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohun Chaudhuri would move his amendment (No. 172). I wish to point out to this Council that in the practical working of union benches there would be considerable difficulty in securing a quorum of three. The ordinary practice in the mufassal is for a bench of honorary magistrates to be constituted of two members; and unfortunately a great deal of delay occurs in the trial of honorary magistrates' cases, owing to the fact that the two members who start a particular case can be very seldom got together on the subsequent days to which the case may be adjourned. In the case of union benches, it is very desirable that the case should be tried and disposed of in one day; but sometimes that will be impossible. Difficult as it is to reassemble a bench of two, the difficulty with a bench of there will be far greater, and if we are now to insist that at least the same three members of the bench who begin the hearing of the case must hear it right through to the end, it will result in very great delay and trouble to the parties concerned. For this reason, I am unable to vote for anything more than a bench constituted of two members. I may say that in other provinces the same difficulty has been experienced and I may be permitted to quote one instance. In the Report of Civil Justice in the Punjab for 1916, the following occurs :—

> 'At present, there are no honorary civil benches in the province, the main obstacle to their constitution being the direction in section 28 (2) of the Punjab Civil Courts Act, that such benches must consist of an uneven number of members. In practice, it has been found impossible to get three or five men to meet. There seems to be no reason why two members should not form an efficient and popular tribunal.'

With this opinion, I think that most practical men, who have had experience of village life, will agree. I should like, however, just to allude to the reasons why the Bill contains the provision for a single member constituting a bench. We have, even at the present time, on certain union committees, retired members of the provincial, judicial and executive services, such as retired munsifs and subordinate judges and retired deputy magistrates; and it was thought by the framers of the Bill that where the services of such men were available, the villagers would be very pleased to take advantage of them by having them invested with single-sitting powers. However, if the Council desires that a bench should never be constituted of one member only, I do not think that there would be very much objection to a second member being always associated with him. This arrangement would have the advantage that the other member would get the experience of legal work which the retired officer would be able to give him; whild on the other hand, the retired officer would gain by being associated with a colleague who would probably have more knowledge of local affairs and a clear understanding of local conditions For these reasons, I should see no objection to a minimum quorum of two; but a minimum quorum of three is, I think, a proposal so impracticable that if it were carried we shall not be able to get the union benches to work. In order that this Bill may not be a dead letter, I must vote againt the amendment as it stands 'at present'."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I am quite prepared to accept the proposal of the Hon'ble Mr. Hart, about two members forming a bench; but there may be a difficulty in the event of disagreement of the two members."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Hart; Babu A. C. Datta; Sir H. Wheeler; the President.

The Hon'ble Mr. Hart said :—

"My Lord, may I explain that most benches of honorary magistrates consist of two members and I have never heard of any difficulty of that sort being experienced."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"Very well, my Lord, I am quite prepared to accept the suggestion of the Hon'ble Mr. Hart, viz., two members constituting the bench."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"I have no objection."

The motion was then put in the following amended form and agreed to :—

That for the words "all or any" in line 3 of clause 74 (now clause 65), the words "any two or more" be substituted.

The following motions were then deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur to move that for the words "any of the" in line 3 of clause 74, (now clause 65), the words "at least three" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the word "any" in line 3 of clause 74 (now clause 65), the words "at least three" be substituted.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 173 and 174.

The President said :—

"Items No. 173 falls to the ground and I think that No. 174 necessarily fails because the Council have just decided that the bench may be constituted of two members. By this motion (No. 174) the Hon'ble Member wishes to say that it must not be less than three; and that would, I think, be contrary to the decision which the Council have just come to."

Amendment No. 173 was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that for the word "any", in line 3 of clause 74 (now clause 65), the words "as many" be substituted, and after the word "board", in line 4 of the same clause, the words "as may be necessary" be inserted.

Amendmennt No. 174 was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that the following be added to clause 74 (now clause 65), namely :—

> "Provided that not less than three of such members must sit together for the trial of a case, and they shall serve in such rotations and for such periods at a time as may be fixed by rules prescribed under section 111, and in accordance with rosters prepared by the District Magistrate for each union bench."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; Sir H. Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I might abide by the decision of the Council on the previous amendment and might move that not less than two of such members must sit together and so on."

The amendment was then amended by the substitution of the word "two" for the word "three".

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar (continuing) said :—

"My object in moving this is simply this: that in all probability Government will take care to appoint more than two persons to be magistrates of a bench, but then the functions of the bench should not be confined to any two for any length of time, or at all events for the term of their office. It may be a very unpleasant information to this Council, but truth must be said in a matter of this description. One of the most important features of this Bill is the constitution of a criminal bench and a civil bench in connection with union boards and it should be the utmost effort of Government to make these courts, whether civil or criminal, to be above suspicion. Now, if any two members are required to form the bench or the court for any length of time, there is the grave danger of their losing the confidence of the public. In the villages there are factions and consequently it is necessary that there should be changes of these benches at intervals. This can only be effected by rules of Government saying that for one quarter there must be two and for the next quarter another two, and there should be rosters prepared by the district magistrate as are prepared by him in the cases of benches of honorary magistrates, so that there may not be any fixity of the persons who are to try these cases: that will be a safeguard against these corruptions. I may tell this for the information of the Hon'ble Members of this Council that something has been said about honorary magistrates, but I should like to say that outside Calcutta honorary magistrates are not above suspicion. In fact, we who practise in the mufassal are fully aware that applications are very frequently made to magistrates to transfer a case from an honorary magistrate to a stipendiary magistrate. These things are being experienced and I do not think I am saying too much that this fact is even known to some of the district officers, and I think we should take steps in the present case not to allow the honorary magistrates, as they may be called bench magistrates in this case, to have any opportunity of being vitiated in their judgment and in their conduct, and I therefore earnestly hope that their service should be by rotation and in accordance with such rosters as may be prepared by the district magistrate. There is considerable danger of having permanent benches of one, two or more persons and that would be a safeguard against corruptions. There is party feeling, party factions, and they ought to be also guarded. I think if the system suggested in my amendment is accepted it will command public faith. As 'two' has been accepted by the Council I need not press for more."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"Sir, there are two points involved in this amendment. In the first place the Hon'ble Mover apparently wishes to ensure that the quorum of the bench should in no case be less than two, but this seems almost to follow from the amendment which has just been accepted to the effect that the local Government may appoint 'any two or more' members to form a bench. It would scarcely seem consistent with that provision to constitute a quorum of one. I doubt, therefore, whether the first part of the amendment is not already covered by the previous decision, and, if so, it is unnecessary. Also it could be rendered unnecessary by rules to be framed under section 111(g), which gives the local Government power to prescribe the method of forming a quorum. The local Government could easily say that the quorum shall not be less than two, and in the light of the discussion of to-day, I have no doubt that the local Government would adopt that line.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir D. P. Sarbadhikari ; Babu M. N. Ray.

The second part of the amendment is, I think, open to objection on the ground that it is seeking an elaboration which will render the working of these village benches impossible. The whole idea of the village bench is that it shall be a small body, called together on a local complaint, to dispose of that complaint by simple methods and without the complications which attend proceedings in the ordinary courts. If that is the intention of the Bill, it will be entirely frustrated if we are to require these small village tribunals to serve by rotation and at such periods of time as may be prescribed by rules and in accordance with rosters to be prepared by the district magistrate. That is a procedure which is entirely inappropriate in the case of union benches, and it is inconsistent with the objects which it is intended that those benches should fulfil. Therefore I would oppose that part of the amendment on these grounds."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, clause 74 (now clause 65) of the Bill seeks to appoint a bench and not a panel of men ; a bench can only be a bench. Therefore, the question raised in the amendment does not really arise."

The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray said :—

"My Lord, I entirely agree with Sir Henry Wheeler that the elaborate procedure suggested in this amendment will frustrate the very object of the Bill. A union board will usually consist of members of not less than six and not more than nine. The local Government will select some of the members of the union board and appoint a bench, the number may be 2, 3, and I do not think it will be more than 4 generally. It is therefore desirable that when a bench consists of 2, 3, or 4 members they should all meet, and, as has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Mr. Hart, it is difficult to get all the four men together. Therefore no question of the members of the bench working by rotation can possibly arise. It is only in districts where the number of honorary magistrates is very large, say 20 or exceeds 20, that the procedure suggested by this amendment is followed. Surely such an elaborate procedure will be out of place in regard to union benches consisting generally of 2 to 4 members. Another reason has been suggested which I am glad the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has not referred to, but which I am bound to refer to. Opinion has been expressed that if some members of the union bench are allowed to sit together without rotation, the fact that they sit together as members of the union board for a pretty length of time would affect their integrity and honesty. I am very sorry to hear such remarks made by my hon'ble friend who, I believe, represents one party of constitutional reform in this country. If a representative of those parties would come forward and tell us in Council that the representatives of the people in a board like the union board—because they are generally representatives of the people—run the risk of becoming dishonest if only they have got to do their work without adequate interruption or intermission, I am afraid the enemies of constitutional reforms will make a very strong case against all such reforms. I am very sorry to hear such remarks made, especially because, although I do not belong to any strong political party, my own experience as a mufassal man who has to deal with a large number of honorary magistrates belies the very sad experience of my learned friend. I do not desire to discuss these matters which are very painful matters, and I hope the Council will reject this amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, following the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, although I am opposing the motion, I rise to speak—and to speak for one special reason, and that is to dissociate myself, with the utmost emphasis at my command, from the observations made by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar. The stalwart champion of reform and of the rights and privileges of his countrymen now comes forward on the eve of constitutional reforms to denounce his countrymen as unfit for the most elementary administration of justice in the most advanced Presidency of India. I must say that the work of the honorary magistrates as a whole in this Presidency has been one which has merited approbation not only from the Government but from the people.

Then, my Lord, coming to the merits of the resolution itself, I fully associate myself with the observations of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler and the Hon'ble Mr. Hart. From what we know of the comparative backwardness of a considerable portion of our countrymen in the far distant and remote villages, I think it would not be advisable to make such an elaborate procedure for benches by routine, etc., as there may be many places in the mufassal where the requisite number of capable men may not be found. For these reasons, I think, that it will be well to reject this amendment."

"My Lord, it has given my friends to the right no more pain to hear me say something about honorary magistrates than their expression has given me. I know abuse is no argument, and I must say that I may belong to one political party in this country from which many of my friends are perfectly free. It may be that I have always in my life strongly advocated for reforms, but I do not belong to that class of advocates of reforms who would not speak the truth when it is necessary to be said in order to rectify an abuse in the administration. That because I have advocated and I still advocate reforms in this country and therefore I am bound to say that there is no corruption and everybody in the country is a saint and no institution can be tainted—that is not my position and that is not a position which I have at any time assumed nor I hope shall I assume till I am removed from this world. On the contrary I will press the defects of any system, the defects in the constitution of our social organism and so forth and try to remedy them as far as practicable. If there is any Reform Scheme coming and at the supreme moment I say that there is corruption in some parts of the country, therefore the Reform Scheme will be thrown out is a proposition which may be advanced by men who are perfectly unconcerned with political agitation, but that is not a position which I can ever assume or think of. The thing is that, fact is fact. I have said that I know something about the work of honorary magistrates in the mufassal, but I do not cast any reflection on the honesty or integrity of the honorary magistrates of Calcutta, but I know that the honorary magistrates in the mufassal are not free from suspicion. If that is a truth then I am entitled to speak without any fear of the Reform Scheme being wrecked on that account. Well, it may be that the experience of my hon'ble friend living at Howrah may be different, but if anybody is to give his honest opinion and says that there are corruptions and that a man utters the word corruption is sufficient to abuse him and throw him out of his political creed and political party. Well, that is a position which I cannot appreciate. However, I have said that the procedure will not be at all elaborate. The thing is, as my hon'ble friend, Babu Mahendra Nath Ray, has told us, that the number of magistrates vested with criminal powers will not be many. Of course, in a union there may be six or nine members. My idea is that Government may vest magisterial powers upon all the members of the board and then ask them to serve by rotation or according to the roster prepared by the District Magistrate—in fact by permutation and combination. Different sets of magistrates may serve in different quarters in the year. However, I have placed this amendment, whether it is elaborate or not I don't know. My object is to improve and purify these benches so as to make them such as to command public confidence and respect. Some of the hon'ble members have criticized my amendment and they are, of course, perfectly entitled to their own opinion."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 175.

Clause 78.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the words "or, if in the opinion of the bench, he shows negligence in prosecuting his case", in lines 2, 3 and 4 of clause 78 (now clause 69) be omitted.

He said:

"My Lord, clause 78 (now clause 69) relates to the dismissal of a case for default before a union bench. Now it appears to me that this provision is very vague and ill-defined. The words are 'if in the opinion of the bench he shows negligence in prosecuting his case'. Now, negligence may be considered differently by different persons and on a flimsy excuse a case may be struck off for default. Not to speak of these union benches, even in munsifs' and sub-judges' courts and, I am sorry to say, even in sessions courts cases are sometimes struck off on flimsy excuses. For instance, if there is a case fixed for a certain day and for some unforeseen reasons the case is adjourned to another day and other cases are called upon the parties to which do not appear, those cases are struck off without giving the parties an opportunity to appear. If this can happen in a responsible court, I am afraid it would be giving a very wide power to the union bench if these words are not omitted from the clause."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said:—

"My Lord, on behalf of Government I oppose this amendment. In many cases tried under the Criminal Procedure Code if the complainant neglects to pay court-fees, and similarly if he does not produce his witnesses or takes the proper action to get them summoned, the case can be summarily decided in their absence. Cases tried by these benches cannot be allowed to hang on indefinitely owing to the negligence of the complainant. With reference to the remarks of the Hon'ble Mover, and as to his fears that the benches might dismiss cases without sufficient cause, I would point out that that purpose will be protected by the provision which has been laid down in a subsequent clause as to the revision by the district magistrate or subdivisional officer against any unfair dismissal of cases. I urge that the clause should remain as it stands."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Datta; Rai R. C. Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"If a certain party after being notified does not take the trouble of making an appearance then, of course, it is a fit case for dismissal. But my only objection is that the provision is very vague and ill-defined. Supposing a man has a case before the union court and supposing that for some reasons over which he has no control the case is delayed for ten or fifteen months, will it be considered as negligence in prosecuting the case? If what is to be considered as negligence is specifically mentioned there can be no complaint. What I fear is that this provision is of an extremely vague character."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 176.

Clause 80.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that for the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71) the following be substituted, namely :—

> "Provided that the district magistrate or sub-divisional magistrate may, of his own motion, or on the application of the parties concerned, cancel or modify any decision or order of a union bench or direct the re-trial of any case by a court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to him."

He said :—

"My Lord, clause 80 (now clause 71) bars an appeal from or a revision of the order of the union bench and only provides for a re-trial. But I think that some sort of revision of jurisdiction should be vested in the district magistrate as a check upon any possible failure of justice or vagaries on the part of the union bench. On an inquiry the district magistrate may modify or cancel the order to meet the requirements of a particular case, but if a re-trial is the only remedy it will lead to hardship. In certain cases the parties should be authorized to bring to the notice of the district magistrate instances of failures of justice and the magistrate should be authorized to make an inquiry and cancel or modify the decision of the bench. This may be the intention of the Bill, but it should be made clear. I have explained my object very briefly and I may state that as far as I understand there may be no objection on the part of Government to accept my suggestion."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, in order to explain the justification of the clause of the Bill as framed, we have to remember the kind of benches which it was sought to set up under the Bill, and the District Administration Committee gave a good summary of the opinion of the Decentralisation Commission which, I think, affords a clear description of the purposes of these courts. They said :—

"The (Decentralisation) Commission contemplated a system of village courts of equity, which would be freed from the observance of complicated rules of evidence, and the technicalities of the ordinary legal procedure and would bring to bear on cases before them their own intimate acquaintance with village sentiment and their local knowledge of the facts. The primary objects of these village courts was not to afford relief to the regular tribunals. They were partly designed to give petty litigants the opportunity, if they wished to avail themselves of it, of settling their disputes by a simple and inexpensive procedure near their homes, but their main purpose was educative, to develop the sense of communal responsibility within the union, and to teach the people to manage the affairs of their own villages. At the same time, it was hoped that the creation of these village courts would enhance the influence of the panchayats and strengthen and encourage them in the performance of their other duties, thus gradually paving the way to the exercise by them of higher powers."

That was the underlying sentiment when the proposal for these courts was mooted, and it follows that it is desirable to keep all matters relating to the procedure applicable to them as simple as possible. It was in pursuance of that idea that the right of appeal and revision was barred. But, on the other hand, it was thought that cases might be brought to the notice of the district magistrate and the sub-divisional officer in which a serious failure of justice had occurred which would require to be set right. Of course, an ordinary appellate court cannot only set aside an order, but can modify it, but when this Bill was framed it was thought that the procedure of the original union bench having been very simple, and there being no record, it would be difficult for the district magistrate or the sub-divisional officer to do more than say that the case must be heard over again. He could say that he was satisfied that the order passed was wrong, but he might not be in a position to pass a correct order, and would therefore have to direct the case to be sent back and be re-tried. As against that system, the arguments that have been used by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur are not without weight. It does seem rather hard to say that even if the district magistrate or sub-divisional officer is satisfied that a man has been unfairly convicted, he cannot remedy the justice, but that all he can do is to put the man to the trouble of a second trial. That is a defect, and I would accept that line of argument as justifying a modification of the clause on the lines proposed in this amendment. I think, however, its wording can be improved upon because we want to make it clear that the right to cancel or modify a decision would not enable the district magistrate or sub-divisional officer to convict a man who had been acquitted. That is neither desirable nor is it probably intended by the Hon'ble Member. I would also like to keep that portion of the existing clause which the Hon'ble Member has omitted, namely, 'if satisfied that a failure of justice has occurred'. That is to emphasise the point that action should be taken only in the event of a failure of justice, and not on technical irregularities which might justify intervention by an ordinary appellate court. If, therefore, the Hon'ble Member will word his amendment in this form, I would be prepared to accept it :—

'Provided that the district magistrate or sub-divisional magistrate, if satisfied that a failure of justice has occurred, may, of his own motion, or on the application of the parties concerned, cancel or modify any order of conviction or of compensation made by a union bench, or direct the retrial of any case by a court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to him'"

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Mr. Duval.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"I am thankful to the Hon'ble Member for accepting my amendment although in a modified form."

The motion was then put in the amended form and agreed to.

AMENDMENT Nos. 177-80.

The following motions were covered by the decision on previous motions and were deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words cancel any decision or order of a union bench and', in lines 3 and 4 of the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71), the words 'uphold, reverse or modify any decision or order of a union bench, or' be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray to move that after the words 'subdivisional magistrate' in lines 1 and 2 of the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71), the words 'court of sessions or the High Court', be inserted : and for the words 'and direct the retrial of any case by a court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to him', in lines 4 to 6 of the same proviso, the words 'or pass such orders as the magistrate or court thinks fit and proper' be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words 'sub-divisional magistrate' in lines 1 and 2 of the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71), the words 'sessions judge', be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the words "district magistrate or subdivisional magistrate" in lines 1 and 2 of the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71), the words "sessions judge, additional sessions judge or assistant sessions judge" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 181.

The Hon'ble Mr. H. P. Duval, in the absence of the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, moved that the words "nor shall any application in revision be entertained by any court in respect of any order passed by such bench" in lines 4 to 6 of clause 80 (now clause 71), be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, now that we have provided by a previous amendment for revisionary powers of district magistrates and subdivisional officers, these words 'nor shall any application in revision be entertained by any court in respect of any order passed by such bench' in clause 80 (now clause 71), appear to be superfluous. I therefore move that they may be omitted."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 182.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar :—

That before the word "failure" in line 2 of the proviso to clause 80 (now clause 71), the word "grave" be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

He said :—

"My Lord, do I understand that 182 goes out also?"

The President said :—

"The Council have just decided that a certain form of words is to be substituted for the proviso which appears in the Bill as drafted. That being so, it is not open to the Council to go back and alter the form of the words just adopted. Therefore it is out of order because the Council have just decided to insert the words which were contained in the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur. The Council having once decided that these are the words which are to be inserted in the Act, they cannot now proceed to make further alterations."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 183.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur moved that after the words "in writing" in line 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 81 (now clause 72), the words embodying the substance of the evidence" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, as the trial is a small one, and as we notice that there is no appeal, therefore, the Council has to consider whether the substance of the evidence has to be omitted or not. When the District Magistrate is required to consider the decision of the bench, he will not have any material and therefore it is highly necessary that the substance of the evidence should be recorded in the decision, the simple order of dismissal or conviction will not be sufficient. Even if revisionary powers are given to the Magistrate, still in order to see whether there is a failure of justice or not, he must see whether there is evidence in connection with the alleged offence. Therefore, my humble submission is that the decision should embody the substance of the evidence. Referring to the mode of trial in the ordinary criminal court, we have got two sections, 263 and 264. In section 264 there is an appeal, and it is there laid down that the substance of the evidence is to be embodied. In section 263 of the Criminal Procedure Code, there is nothing about it, but the reasons are to be stated therein. We find that if there be simply a decision on the point, it will not be sufficient but the reasons are to be given. Consequently it is necessary that the evidence is to be embodied. I do not find in the Bill whether evidence is to be recorded or not. If the Bill is silent upon that point, it is highly necessary that some indication should be given for recording of evidence against the offender. I find further that there is no definition of the word 'decision' in the definition clause. The Hon'ble Members of this Council are aware of the fact that the word 'judgment' is not also mentioned in the Bill, consequently reasons ought to be given for decisions, and if reasons are given they must be based upon some evidence. If we refer to clause 94 (now clause 86) of the Bill, we find that when the parties or their agents have been heard, and all the evidence on both sides considered, the union court shall by written order pass such a decree . . . . . This shows that in simple cases, evidence is to be taken and considered on both sides by the union courts. We do not find anything in clause 81 (now clause 72) to this effect. I presume, therefore, that evidence will be allowed, and if evidence may be allowed then in that case it is necessary that the decision should embody the substance of evidence."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I object to this amendment on the ground that it is contrary to the intention with which these courts were created. They were meant to be, as I have said before, simple courts, and the whole of the idea underlying their constitution could probably be summed up by saying that they were meant to dispose of cases according to justice, equity and good conscience. It is particularly desired that they should be freed from technicalities of procedure and that they should not become merely an inferior edition of existing tribunals. Therefore, Sir, it was outside the intention of their constitution that they should compile records and write judgments. Of course they were meant to hear evidence, but I do not agree with the Hon'ble Member when he argues that clause 94 (now clause 86) means that evidence must be recorded. The idea was that parties should come before the bench, bring their witnesses, and have their say, and that the bench should then give their decision. This amendment goes beyond that, and says that the bench should give reasons, which means a record and all the procedure of an ordinary court. For that reason I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry I cannot support the Hon'ble Mover in this matter. Having been trained in a city bar, my hon'ble friend finds it difficult to disassociate himself from the methods of the Criminal Procedure Code and he says that if a trial has to take place in any criminal court, the procedure of the Criminal Procedure Code should apply to such trials. The curse of legal procedure in this country is that it is expensive and dilatory and as it would appear, it is not only a curse but that it brings on all interested, a lot of inconvenience. But the proposed courts are meant to be cheap and expeditous, and to secure a sort of rough justice. You cannot have evidence recorded, and if you are going to do that, there will be no end to these trials, and the question will arise whether the evidence has been properly recorded or not. I think, looking at the matter from both sides, the balance of convenience is that the provisions of the Bill should be maintained as they are."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I am surprised to hear that if a person's liberty be taken away, or if a person be convicted, no evidence should be recorded. If the scope of the Bill be that the evidence is to be taken, is it not necessary that some such note should be taken of the evidence that has been adduced against the offender. Here is a man charged with committing an offence. There must be some proof before a conviction is made, and when there is a decision on the matter under issue is it not fair and just that there should be some evidence. and if there be that evidence, is it not fair for me to contend before the Council, that a note should be recorded of such evidence and the decision? Certainly I am familiar with the procedure of law in criminal courts, but making the present Bill as simple as possible, there ought not to be any difficulty in providing for taking note of the evidence and the decisions. I do not contend that the evidence is to be recorded as in a regular trial, but I contend that a note of the evidence should be taken, otherwise it will be very difficult for the District Magistrate to consider what materials there were for the conviction, or for acquittal. How can the District Magistrate come to a conclusion whether there is a failure of justice or not ; simply the writing down of the decision will not be a satisfactory procedure, and, therefore I press this amendment to the consideration of the Council."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; The President; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 184 and 185.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words "twenty-five rupees" in lines 3 and 4 of sub-clause (1) of clause 81 (now clause 72), the words "fifty rupees "be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that for the words "seven days" in the last line of sub-clause (1) of clause 81 (now clause 72), the words "fifteen days" be substituted.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 186 and 187.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "all or any" in line 3 of clause 82 (now clause 73), the words 'any three or more," be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, a similar point in respect to the position of the union bench has already been decided by the Council. May I take the liberty of suggesting that a similar modification be made with respect to this clause also."

The President said :—

"I would suggest that the Hon'ble Member should move his amendment in the form in which a somewhat similar one was accepted before, that is to say, "any two or more."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"The arguments are the same as in the case of benches, and I would accept the amendment in its modified form."

The motion was put in its modified form and agreed to.

The following motion was then deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the word "any" in line 3 of clause 82 (now clause 73), the words "at least three." be substituted.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 188—190.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn, viz. :—

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that for the word "any" in line 3 of clause 82 (now clause 73), the words "as many" be substituted ; and after the word "board," in the same line, the words "as may be necessary" be inserted.

Also to move that the following be added to clause 82 (now clause 73), namely :—

> "Provided that not less than three of such members must sit together for the trial of a suit, and they shall serve in such rotations and for such periods at a time as may be fixed by rules prescribed under section 111, and in accordance with rosters prepared by the district judge for each union court."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Ambica Charan Mazumdar; Mr. Duval.

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that for the words "two hundred" in lines 15 and 16 of clause 83 (now clause 74), the word "fifty" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 191.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that the word "or" at the end of sub-clause (5) of clause 84 (now clause 75), be omitted; and at the end of sub-clause (6) of the same clause the following be added, namely:—

"or

(7) for the specific performance of any contract, or for the establishment of any right or title to any land or water, or for any right-of-way or other easement in any land or water."

He said:—

"My Lord, in clause 83 (now clause 74) of the Bill the nature of suits that will be entertained by the union courts has been provided. They are suits for money due on contract, suits for the recovery of movable property or the value of such property; and suits for compensation for wrongful detention or injury to the movable property and then follows something else. Clause 84 (now clause 75) of the Bill provides that no suits shall lie in any union courts and then the nature of the suits is specified. My amendment is that at the end of the clause 84 (now clause 75) of the Bill as it stands the following be inserted, namely:—

"or.

If clause 83 (now clause 74) stood as it had been framed and then clause 84 (now clause 75) negativing the power of the union board had not been introduced, it would not have been neccessary for me to move this amendment. In the first place, we have in clause 83 (now clause 74) stated the nature of the suits which can be brought into the union courts; and then in clause 83 (now clause 74), we have specified what classes of suits shall not be entertained by the union courts. If we are to specify what classes of cases shall not be cognizable in union courts, I think the list would be exhaustive. I think it was not the intention of the Select Committee to allow suits for specific performance of contract—by which I mean specific performance under the Specific Relief Act, or suits of title or easement to lie in such courts. These are very difficult and complicated matters, and I think it is not the intention of the legislature that they should be entertained in these which will not be held by very experienced lawyers. We have, of course, said that they shall try certain class of cases. If the word "or" at the end of sub-clause (5) of clause 84 (now clause 75), be omitted and in clause 84 (now clause 75), we mentioned certain class of cases which ought not to be within the cognizance of these courts, I think the clause should be made exhaustive by including title suits and suits for easement and so forth, and also suits for specific performance of the contract under the Specific Relief Act.

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said:—

"My Lord, clause 83 (now clause 74). of the Bill lays down that the village courts shall only try petty suits for money and simple matters of tort such as are of the nature of cases triable by the present mafussil Small Cause Courts. Then in clause 84 (now clause 75), mainly following the precedents of the Small Cause Court procedure in the mafussil we exclude from the cognizance of the village

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur; Babu Mahendra Nath Ray; Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur.

courts certain class of suits for money such as suits arising on bonds of mortgage, suits in connection with partnership, suits of inheritance and suits for legacies. We also exclude certain number of cases on the ground that they are brought either against Government or against certain classes of individuals, such as minors and lunatics. The suits, however, the Hon'ble Member now proposes that we should exclude, are not money suits or simple suits for tort; their suits for the specific performance of contract and suits of easement. I submit, therefore, my Lord, that as clause 83 (now clause 74) only deals as I say, with money suits and simple matter of tort, there is no necessity at all to include the classes of suits which the Hon'ble Member wishes to do, in the exception in clause 84 (now clause 75). For this reason on behalf of the Government I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Debender Chunder Ghose Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I think there is some little force in the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar's statement that the provisions of clause 84 (now clause 75) should not appear inwards as exhaustive of the list of suits which ought not to be brought in the union court. It is difficult to make an exhaustive list of possible suits. If it is intended to show that by the expression 'suits for money due on contracts in clause 83' (now clause 74) suits on contracts of partnership on mortgage, for a share or part of a share under an intestacy or for a legacy should not be instituted in such a court. I think the better course will be to preface the first line of the clause in this way—'no suit amongst others shall lie in any union court on contracts of partnership, etc. It would remove any contention which might be raised on the ground that this is an exhaustive list of suits which ought not to be brought here, though we are borrowing the words of the Small Cause Court Act in this Bill.

The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray said :—

"My Lord, I would not have wasted the time of this Council but for the fact that I find two members of my own profession discovering defects in the Bill as it has been drafted. I suppose it was put very clearly that clause 84 (now clause 75) only specifies some classes of suits for money and some classes of suits for immovable property which it is proposed to be excluded. There is therefore absolutely, no defect and to suggest that clause 84 (now clause 75) should be so worded as to run 'no suit shall lie in any union court amongst others' is, I think, quite unnecessary. If exceptions are indicated they must be indicated exhaustively' You cannot say that the list of exceptions should include (a), (b), (c), etc. As I have said, the point is so very clear that it would be better for the Council not to be guided by the legal opinion but by plain common sense."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I beg to submit a few words in this connection. It appears that the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar wishes that suits for the specific purpose of any contract, or for the establishment of any right or title to any land or water, or for any right-of-way or other easement in any land or water to be included in clause 84 (now clause 75). There is some difficulty which I feel just now. In suits for the specific performance of contract, there is always a prayer for damages and my hon'ble friend Babu Mahendra Nath Ray will agree with me. Now, therefore, in order to make matters as clear as day light it is necessary to state that suits for specific performance of contract will not lie in the union court and so I cannot support my friend the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar in enunciating the whole proposition which he has put forward in his amendment. But as I have submitted, my difficulty lies here—that if simply we include in clause 83 (now clause 74) suits for compensation for wrongfully taking or injuring movable property, that shows that suits for damages of a certain class but are we to understand that suits for damages will not be instituted with reference to suits for compensation for specific performance of contract, then I submit that my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, is wrong. But we can understand very well the object of clause 83 (now clause 74) and the object of clause 84 (now clause 75)—one is inclusion and the other is exclusion. So there will be no difficulty about them."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu A. C. Mazumdar; Sir Henry Wheeler Babu; A. C. Datta.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said:—

"My Lord, I have fully understood the arguments of the Hon'ble Mr. Duval but I am not sure that he has understood my difficulty. In clause 83 (now clause 74) we specify the classes of suits that will be cognizable in these courts. If the Bill had ended there, there would have been no difficulty at all; that is to say that we all know that beyond the classes of suits mentioned in clause 83 (now clause 74) no other suits shall be entertained in these courts. But in clause 84 (now clause 75) we introduce certain cases which we say shall not be tried by them. The main difficulty arises because you say in clause 84 (now clause 75) what suits shall not be entertained by these courts then the only question I would put to the Hon'ble Members of the Council is:—is it or is it not our intention to invest these courts with power of dealing with title-suits? If the answer is in the negative then is not clause 84 (now clause 75) an element of doubt? But here it is said that the union court shall have a concurrent jurisdiction to try the following classes of suits. Are we or are we not going to exclude the question of assessment from the cognizance of these courts which are very difficult? If that is our intention in one section we say that they shall try these suits and in the subsequent section we say that they shall not try these suits. Then that section should be exhaustive otherwise doubt may arise whether suits for land will not be cognizable by these courts. Therefore I have suggested if we leave clause 83 (now clause 74) as it stands without clause 84 (now clause 75) there will be no difficulty at all, but if we introduce clause 84 (now clause 75) and also mention that certain classes of suits shall not be entertained by these courts, in that case we should also include those classes of cases, viz., those of title and assessment, etc., which it is our intention not to include amongst the classes of cases to be tried by these courts."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, this is rather a lawyer's argument, and I feel some diffidence in intervening, but what strikes me as a layman, is this; under clause 83 (now clause 74) these courts can only try suits of a specified description, which we may call class A. The amendment says that they shall not try suits of another specified class B; but class B is already excluded from class A, and, therefore, in so far as the powers of these courts will be confined to class A, it is unnecessary specifically to exclude class B, any more than it is necessary to exclude classes C, D or E, which are equally outside class A. Clause 84 (now clause 75) specifies certain circumstances in which suits that may fall in class A will not lie."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 192.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said:—

"My Lord, in view of the fate of amendment No. 175 which is almost similar to this amendment No. 192, I should think that no useful purpose would be served by pressing this amendment for acceptance. I, therefore, with your Excellency's permission beg to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

It was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that the words "or, if in the opinion of the court, he shows negligence in prosecuting his suit," in lines 2, 3 and 4 of clause 88 (now clause 79), be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 193.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after clause 95 (now clause 87), the following be inserted, namely :—

"95A. If the judgment-debtor pays into court the decretal amount, together with the fee payable under section 99 and the costs, if any, within thirty days from the date of the decree, he shall be allowed a remission of ten per cent. upon the amount decreed and the decree shall be deemed satisfied upon the payment of the balance :

Provided that no such remission shall apply in the case of an order passed for payment by instalments under section 95, or after the issue of the certificate mentioned in section 102 of this Act."

He said :—

"My Lord, this is a somewhat novel provision which I wish to introduce as a new clause. This clause which I wish to have introduced in this Bill might be misconstrued as one in favour of judgment-debtors, but in point of fact, as far as I am concerned, I am moving it in the interest of creditors, for every one knows that the real difficulty of a plaintiff begins when he obtains the decree. In executing a decree various difficulties arise, the property fails and as the last resort the judgment-debtors go to the insolvency court ; so that any one who has practical experience of the difficulty of decree-holders knows that in many cases and I must say in the majority of cases the creditors fail to get anything from the judgment-debtors. Therefore it is my intention to place some inducement before the judgment-debtor to pay the money without much harrassment and hence my amendment. It would be I believe some inducement to a judgment-debtor when he sees that he may pay 10 per cent. less of the decretal amount to pay the money into the court without raising much difficulty in the way of the decree-holder, and the decree-holder I believe would be quite satisfied to get Rs. 90, out of Rs. 100, which he has very little chance of recovering through the ordinary process of execution. But I have added two restrictions to this remission, viz., if the judgment-debtor gets a decree by instalments it would be hard to extend such a favour to him, and in the second place if the decree-holder has obtain a certificate of execution through another court such remission ought not to be granted, but before the grant of the decree if the man comes forward to pay the decree-holder the remission of 10 per cent. would be a good inducement to him to do so as it would be as much to the advantage of the decree-holder as it will be to the advantage of the judgment-debtor to pay off something less than what is actually due from him. It is with this view that I move this amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said:—

"My Lord, I quite admit that a plaintiff's troubles begin only after he obtains his decree, but it must be remembered that certain decrees are realised in full. Government cannot accept this amendment ; it would mean that a debtor no doubt might be induced after decree had been passed against him to pay off quickly on the chance of getting a discount of 10 per cent., but it might also be that the debtor might avoid paying a debt and force his creditor to go into the court so as to be able to get a 10 per cent. discount which he could not obtain unless he was sued. On behalf of Government, I would, therefore, oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I heartily support this amendment. My hon'ble friend has perhaps got the idea from the procedure which is laid down in execution of decrees. After sale of immovable property indulgence is shown to the debtor to pay the amount with certain penalties. Now if this procedure is accepted by court, I submit that such indulgence ought to be shown to the debtor at the time when the decree is passed. There will be some delay in realising the amount and if this procedure be in the statutory book this would be something like an inducement to the debtor to pay the amount. I therefore submit that it is for the consideration of the Hon'ble Member whether he would accept this amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, although I did not like to speak, but following the Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitter Bahadur I am rather tempted to speak in opposition to him and the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar. What is the matter, my Lord. An agriculturist lends Rs. 100 to another man; the villager finds that he can at the time of payment of that sum get a remissoin of 10 per cent. if he pays the amount at the court. If the creditor finds that there are some bad debts which he cannot realise in full he can make some bundabast and can settle his claim for any amount he likes. But I do not understand why this statutory provision is intended to be inserted in the Bill to enable the court to grant a remission to the person who is bound in all conscience and in all equity to pay back the money which he has borrowed. I do not understand the reasons; of course the trouble begins no doubt in many cases when the decree is passed, but in such cases some mutual bundabast may be made. Here under this amendment he will demand in every case a remission of 10 per cent."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, for the information of the Hon'ble Mr. Duval I may say that I have considered the aspect which he has referred to.

Ordinarily people make more than 10 per cent. remission. There is hardly any case where the judgment-debtor does not get oftentimes more than 15 to 20 per cent. remission, so that it will not make the position of the decree-holder worse, but rather better. The suits to be brought in these courts would be of the utmost value of Rs. 200; now if a creditor gets Rs. 180 altogether with costs he will thank himself and thank the debtor, but the apprehension that they won't pay amicably and would press a man to court is a mistaken one, because if amicable payment is made it is not 10 per cent. but more than that what is oftentimes allowed."

The motion was then put and lost

AMENDMENT No. 194.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "cancel the order of the union court and" in lines 2 and 3 of the proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88), the words "uphold, reverse or modify the order of the union court, or" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

He said :—

"My Lord, there has been some modification made with respect to the revision of the order of the union bench. The Council has already come to a decision on that point. May I suggest that a similar modification be made with respect to the order of the union court also ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the argument is the same both in relation to courts and benches, and as we have accepted the modification in the case of benches, I have no objection to accepting it in this case also. I would only ask that, as there are two amendments on the same point, and as that of the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur (No. 195) happens to be more in conformity with the change as made in connection with benches and with the existing wording of the Act, the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta might withdraw his amendment, and the Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur might then move his, which we will accept. The effect will be the same."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I am very glad to withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 195.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that after the word "cancel", in line 2 of the proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88), the words "or modify" be inserted; and for the word "and", in line 3 of the same proviso, the word "or" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I need not make any speech; it has been fully explained, and I believe the amendment will be accepted."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 196.

The following motion was deemed to be withdrawn as the Hon'ble Member was absent :—

The Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray to move that after the words "district judge", in line 1 of the proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88), the words "or the high court" be inserted; and for the words "and direct a retrial of the suit by the same or any other union court, or by any other court subordinate to him", in lines 3 to 5 of the same proviso, the words "or pass such order as the judge or court thinks fit and proper" be substituted.

AMENDMENT No. 197.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after the word "suit", in line 2 of the proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88), the words "made within thirty days of the decree of the union court" be inserted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. Duval; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

He said :—

"My Lord, in moving this amendment I would draw attention to proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88). There is it said—'provided that the district judge, on the application of any party to the suit, cancel the order . . . .' and so forth. I think there ought to be a limit for such an application, and therefore I propose that after the words 'any party to the suit', the words 'may within thirty days of the decree of the union court' be inserted. It ought not to be left indeterminate. Here the revision comes in through the application of the party to the suit, but the party should not have indefinite time for making such an application. Therefore I move that it should be limited to thirty days."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said :—

"On behalf of Government, I accept the amendment."

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 198.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that before the word "failure", in line 6 of the proviso to clause 96 (now clause 88), the words "clear error of law or grave" be inserted.

He said :—

"This also, my Lord, refers to the same proviso with regard to which I have just moved an amendment. The ground there is that the district judge may on the application of any party to a suit cancel an order of the union court and direct a retrial of the suit, by the same or any other union court, or any other court subordinate to him, if he is satisfied that there is a failure of justice. I wish to introduce the words 'clear error of law or grave.' My reason is this: If substantial justice is done by the union court, there should be no interference, and in the second place, I would add the words 'clear error of law'. This comes in because in an earlier clause it has been provided that the union court may throw out a suit on the ground of limitation. My Lord, questions of limitation are often times very difficult to decide, so that I think this addition should be allowed—'clear error of law or grave failure of justice'. If the Judge is satisfied that clear and substantial justice has been done, there ought not to be any interference with the judgment of the court, but if there be a mistake committed by the union court as regards the point of limitation, he should have power of interfering with the judgment. Add:—If the Judge's power of revision be not thus restricted the finality of the decisions of the Union Courts will be a misnomer."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said :—

"On behalf of Government, I accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I was about to rise when the Hon'ble Mr. Duval rose and accepted the amendment. I am afraid I must oppose this amendment. I do not know what the Hon'ble Mover's object is. Here in this provision the framers of the Bill have provided that if the district judge is satisfied that there has been a failure of justice he can take action, but this amendment restricts the discretion of the district judge. The members of the union court are not lawyers, they will deal out simple justice and the suitors themselves will be ordinary simple agriculturists. Then who is to decide whether there has been a clear error of law or grave failure of justice.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Mahendra Nath Ray; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Babu Mahendra Nath Ray; Sir Henry Wheeler.

How are they to establish it. Therefore, my Lord, I think that the clause should stand as it is and I hope Government will reconsider their decision about the acceptance of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray said :—

"I am sorry to have to make a statement now as a member of the Select Committee who had discussed this matter at great length. In clause 80 (now clause 71) and in the other clause 86 (now clause 77), the words originally were 'serious failure of justice'. The Select Committee, as will appear from the report, considered that the word 'serious' was somewhat out of place and therefore should be omitted, so that the wording of clause 80 (now clause 71) was modified deliberately by the Select Committee by the exclusion of the word 'serious', and they went back to the original expression 'failure of justice.' That is why we find in clause 80 (now clause 71) the words 'failure of justice' alone without the word 'serious' preceding them. The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved an amendment in connection with clause 80 (now clause 71) also, that the word 'grave' should be prefixed to the expression 'failure of justice', but that was ruled out of order.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"But that was disallowed by the President."

The Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray said :—

"But this amendment in this clause would, I am sorry to say, not only differentiate the two clauses unnecessarily, but it would be an instance of bad drafting. I do not know whether Mr. Duval representing Government has carefully considered this matter. In fact, if the Select Committee thought that the words which should occur in both the clauses should be 'failure of justice' without any qualifying word 'serious' or 'grave', that was deliberately done in order to make the two clauses consistent. I am only concerned with the wording of the amendment; I do not mind whether Government accept the expression or not, it will simply amplify the power of the district judge to interfere in any case, although I understand that that was not the object of the Bill. It was intended that the district judge will not interfere except when there has been a serious error of law. For instance, there may be a clear error on the question of limitation, but that question of limitation may not be a serious error of law, but still to give effect to the law of limitation, the district judge may interfere in any particular case. I am bound to make this statement because I do not exactly realise either the position of the members of the Select Committee or the somewhat altered position of the Government as indicated by what the Hon'ble Mr. Duval has just now told us."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"This discussion rather points to the fact that the path of good intentions is not always easy, and it is not always wise to try and please every body. Much of what the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray has said is perfectly correct. The facts are that in the Bill as originally introduced, we had the word 'serious', and when we were considering the Bill in the light of the amendments sent in, we found that one Hon'ble Member had objected to the use of that word; in our desire to meet the wishes of Hon'ble Members

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill 1919.

Babu Ambika Charan Majumdar.

as far as possible without sacrificing any grave matter of principle, we eliminated the word. Now we find that another Hon'ble Member wants to put back words of a somewhat similar purport, and from his amendment I concluded that the impression conveyed to the Select Committee, viz., that the omission was wanted by the Council, was incorrect. In that belief Mr. Duval has expressed our willingness to go back to the wording of the Bill as originally framed. But now we understand that even to this course there are objections, so in these circumstances, it is best to leave the point to the decision of the Council."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I would like to say one word. My hon'ble friend to my right says that this was considered by the Select Committee, and he is surprised that the Government should have changed its mind. I thought otherwise. We should always welcome any change of mind on the part of Government, but of course if my hon'ble friend thinks that the Select Committee has got the last word, that is another matter. With regard to the expression 'clear error of law' I have already pointed out that there is a clause which says that a union court may throw out a suit on grounds of limitation. I will only give a simple illustration. Suppose a man brings a suit upon a bond. The law provides that limitation may be saved by endorsing an acceptance on the back of the bond, but the union court may not understand this; they may not know that there is a certain difference between certifying on the back of the bond on payment of interest or of principle by the party himself or by a different person. All these niceties may not be understood by the judges of the union court. Therefore I ask that when there is a clear error of law, the judge may interfere. There may not be injustice but still it would be a serious matter. My hon'ble friend to my right has said that a similar provision has not been adopted in the case of the union bench. I submit that he is experienced enough to know that there is a considerable difference between a criminal court and a civil court, and, although the scope of the serious injustice may not be much in a criminal case, there is a very grave chance of substantial justice not being done in a civil suit, and, therefore, I urge this amendment. If there is substantial justice which we all understand and which we all deal with in civil cases, there ought to be no interference of course. I press this amendment."

AMENDMENT No. 199.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the words "one anna" in line 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 99 (now clause 90), the words "half-an-anna" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, apparently this is a very simple matter, but really it is a very important one. It affects vitally a large class of people for whose benefit the union courts have been instituted. The rate of court-fee in ordinary civil courts is 6 annas for Rs. 5 ; according to this provision it will be 5 annas for Rs. 5 ; in other words the court-fees in these courts will be almost as high as in the ordinary civil court. The question is, is it proper that in union courts the court-fee should be as high as that? Here, the whole object in the village court is to administer simple and cheap justice without making it complicated and expensive. But that object would be frustrated if the court-fee is raised as high as 1 anna in the rupee. There are several other reasons why the court-fee ought not to be so high. These courts will be presided over by honorary officers, and therefore the expense incurred in administering justice will not be as great as in civil courts. We all know that in ordinary civil courts a large profit is made by these court-fees. But there should be no profit expected or made by administering justice in union courts, and we could very well afford to have a lower rate. Above all, my Lord, there is another consideration which cannot be lost sight of, and it is this: we want to make these union courts a reality and we want to make them successful. If we are to do so, we must induce people to come to these courts in preference to the ordinary civil courts. These courts have no exclusive but concurrent jurisdiction with the civil courts. If that is so, there must be some inducement to come to these courts. If the suitors find that they have got to pay here more than in the ordinary civil courts, there will be no inducement for them to come to these courts, and the result will be that these courts, which we all wish to be successful, will not be taken advantage of by the people. Therefore, my Lord, in order to make these union courts successful, I want to have the court-fees reduced to half-an-anna."

The President said :—

"The amendment which follows amendment No. 199 deals with the same subject and I think we might discuss both the amendments together."

The amendment No. 200 was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar to move that at the end of sub-clause (1) of clause 99 (now clause 90), the following be added, namely :—

"up to twenty-five rupees, and an additional fee of half-an-anna for every rupee of the claim above twenty-five rupees."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, my amendment is that the fee should be at the rate of one anna up to Rs. 25, and an additional fee of half-an-anna for every rupee of the claim above Rs. 25. I have taken the mean between the two; up to Rs. 25 in an ordinary course under the Court-Fees Act the court-fee would be Re. 1-14, but under this Bill in a union court it would be Re. 1-9, so that it would be something less; but we have to consider also the expenses to be incurred in going on with the suits and various incidental matters and, therefore, I have suggested that up to Rs. 25 the rate fixed by this clause may remain but above that it should be half-an-anna for every rupee of the claim; otherwise as my friend has pointed out there would not be sufficient inducement for the litigant to go to the union court. In the case of a claim for Rs. 100 under the Court-Fees Act the court-fee leviable would be Rs. 7-8, but if you make one anna all round then the court-fee for Rs. 100 under this Bill would be Rs. 6-4, there being a difference of only Re. 1-4. This would hardly be an inducement to the poorer people to seek the assistance of the union courts which it is our object to popularize no doubt, and in that view I submit that up to Rs. 25 we might agree to one anna, but for every rupee above Rs. 25 we shall make it half-an-anna."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said :—

"My Lord, as has been pointed by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, the fee for suits in the civil court is Rs. 7-8 for a claim of Rs. 100. The fee rate proposed in the present Bill is at the rate of Rs. 6-4. I would submit that in so far as the small cases up to Rs. 25 which, when brought in the village court are not liable to be transferred at the wish of defendant this fee is sufficiently low, that is to say, for a claim of Rs. 25 the plaintiff will be able to get judgment at the expense of Re. 1-9. In the case, however, of cases of above Rs. 25 in value, it would probably be an advantage to have as low a fee as possible so as to induce the people to come to these courts and not to apply for a transfer to the munsif's court. In this view opposing the proposal of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to reduce the fee of one anna to half-an-anna for all suits, Government is prepared to accept the amendment proposed by the Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I have submitted my reasons; my only object is to make the union court popular and the administration of justice by them less expensive. The controversy now is whether up to Rs. 25 the court-fee should be half-an-anna or one anna. My submission is this; all the suits that will be tried by the union courts are necessarily suits of small value; the higher the value the less will be the inclination of the litigants to go to these courts, and they would go to the ordinary courts; and therefore so far as the higher amounts are concerned they are not of very much value, and the most important question is what should be the rate of court-fees for lower amounts. In that view of the matter I feel rather strongly on this matter—it is a matter which will affect a very very large class of persons and I am only afraid, my Lord, that unless the fee is reduced the whole object of these provisions will be frustrated and the courts will not be taken advantage of by the litigant. In that view of the matter I would like to press the amendment No. 199 for the acceptance of the Council and I only hope that the Members of Council will give their serious consideration over this important matter."

Motion No. 199 was then put and lost.

Motion No. 200 was then put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 201.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta :—

That after clause 99 (new clause 90) the following be inserted, namely :—

"100. If any suit is instituted in the court of small causes or the court of a munsif which, in the opinion of the court which tries the same (whose opinion shall be final), ought to have been instituted in a union court, no costs shall be allowed to a successful plaintiff, and a successful defendant shall be allowed such costs as the court may consider reasonable."

Disallowance of costs in certain cases.

He said :—

"There is a question of order."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, we have already accepted in clause 83 (now clause 74) that if the union courts and the munsif's courts will have concurrent jurisdiction, is it open to us to say that the litigants shall be penalised for going to a court which has concurrent jurisdiction over these matters? This would not be governed by this Act but by other Act."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar; Sir Henry Wheeler.

The President said :—

"I think that is correct. The point raised by the Hon'ble Member is, I think, a good one. We have already decided that these different courts are to have concurrent jurisdiction. That being so, I think it would be out of order to make a suggestion which would have the effect of penalizing a litigant, who wants to go to one of these courts in preference to another. But if the Hon'ble Member desires to make any observation on that point, I would be glad to hear him."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, that has reference to the jurisdiction of the court so far as the question of the value of the suit and the nature of the suit is concerned. But I think that has no reference to court-fees. The question of court-fees is absolutely different. Two courts may have jurisdiction over the same matter concurrently, and at the same time the rate of court-fee, if the law prescribes so, may be different in the two different courts."

The President said :—

"I do not think that that invalidates the point raised by the Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari. If you want to lay down by statute that two or more courts are to have concurrent jurisdiction, that clearly means that the litigant is to have the option of going to either of the courts. If that is so, it is surely out of order to endeavour to insert in the latter part of the Act, a provision which would penalize a litigant if he selects one particular court out of those which are provided for him. That seems to me to be unreasonable, and I think it is out of order."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 202.

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar moved that after the word "distributed", in line 4 of clause 102A (now clause 92), the following be inserted, namely :—

"in proportion to the fee payable under section 99 and the amount decreed to the party under section 94."

He said :

"My Lord, this amendment refers to clause 102A (now clause 92). I think what I am going to move was the very intention of the Select Committee also. I wish to make it clear by adding that the sum shall be rateably distributed in proportion to the fee payable under clause 99 (now clause 90) and the amount decreed to the party under clause 94 (now clause 86). I only want to make it clear what should be the rateable distribution, that is to say, the rateable distribution of fees under clause 99 (now clause 90) and the amount decreed. That will make the matter clear and I think that is also the object of the Select Committee."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the amendment is really one of drafting. The clause deals with the case in which the sum realized from the debtor is not sufficient to pay the amount of the decree and of the fees due, and it then says that the proceeds that are realized should be distributed rateably; rateably means in proportion to the fee payable and the amount decreed, and I am advised that as a matter of drafting, the further words proposed in the amendment are not required, since the meaning of the clause is already sufficiently clear. As we are generally guided by our own advisers in the matter of drafting, I deprecate the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, there is no difference between what I have said and what the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler has said. Rateable distribution means according to certain proportion, and by my amendment I wanted to make that more clear ; that is to say, the proportion between the fees leviable and the amount realised."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 203.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur moved that after sub-clause (2) of clause 103 (now clause 93) the following be added, namely :—

"(3) Rules referred to in clauses (q) and (s) of sub-section (2) of section 111 (now section 101) shall come into force subject to sanction by the legislature, after previous publication in the Calcutta Gazette.

He said :—

"My Lord, under section 111 (now section 101), the local Government are authorised after previous publication to make rules to carry out the purposes of the Act. In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the local Government may make rules. Now rules regarding determining the manner and time of appointment or election of members, rules regarding the election of the president of union board and rules regarding various other matters are to be made by the local Government. My submission is that the Bill as has been framed is not exhaustive. The provisions of the Bill show that rules for regulating the procedure and institution of suits, etc., should be left to the rules which are to be framed by the local Government, that is, the executive Government. My contention is that the legislature or the Legislative Council ought to sanction these rules. I have no objection, if the rules are framed by the local Government but they must be subject to the sanction of the legislature. When the Bill shows in clear terms that provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and the Criminal Procedure Code will not apply to the present Bill, is it not fair and consistent that the procedure which should be substituted in place of the Civil Procedure Code and the Criminal Procedure Code should be sanctioned by the legislature? It is true, my Lord, that if the legislature delegates its authority to the local Government, the legislature may be pleased to do so, but the question is that the mere statutory authority given by the legislature to the local Government will not go so far as to lay down that those rules ought not to be sanctioned by legislature. We are to deal with adjective law ; in whatever way the rules may be treated or in whatever way the rules may be explained, it appears to me that the rules must have the force of law and consequently the sanction of the legislature is necessary.

"In the first place, my contention is that the legislature ought not to delegate its authority to the local Government to frame rules—call them as rules, call them as laws or call them as generalisation for proceedings in the trial of suits. That is my view of the matter. The legislature ought not to delegate its authority, and if the legislature does delegate its authority to the executive Government, it is necessary that these rules should be sanctioned by the legislature, and in that view of the matter I have placed this amendment for the consideration of the Hon'ble Members of the Council.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

"Now, so far as the procedure in courts is concerned, are the litigants to be bound by rules framed by the executive Government? The legislature up to this moment does not know what the rules are. What are the rules of procedure for the trial of suits in the Courts of Justice? It will appear that so far as the jurisdiction of the union courts or union benches is concerned, that they should be guided by rules framed by the executive Government. Of course I am not prepared to say that these rules are to be viewed as ultra vires; but I do contend that when the legislature is enacting the law, this is the time for the legislature to consider whether the rules are to be subjected to the criticisms of the Hon'ble Members of the Legislative Council. In this view, it is a very important question which Your Excellency will have to consider—it is a question which was raised several times at the bar and before the bench and they could not say that these rules were ultra vires because statutory power was given by the legislature to the Local Government, but these have reference to minor matters, i.e., election rules and those which are specified in the first part of clause 111 (now clause 101). But when we have to deal with the procedure for the trial of suits, is it to be contended that these rules will have the force of law, because the legislature delegates the authority to the local Government? My Lord, it is a very important question which the Hon'ble Members will have to consider. I do not for one moment wish that the operation of the Bill should be delayed. I had welcomed the Bill at the time when it was introduced by Lord Sinha; but, at the same time, I want to submit to the Hon'ble Members that if the rules are framed by the Local Government, let these be subjected to the criticism of the legislature. Your Excellency has noticed that the Bill was at the first instance put before the Hon'ble Members of the Legislative Council, and recommitted to the Select Committee, and we find that various amendments have been put in. What for?—for the reason of seeing that the Bill is a perfect one. But the rules are framed by the executive Government and they are not subjected to the criticisms which naturally and legitimately will arise. Consequently the rules, if published in the Calcutta Gazette, will have the force of law and the legislature has no voice at all. What I submit, my Lord, is that these rules ought to be subjected to the criticisms of the Legislative Council. That is a point which I submit for the consideration of Your Excellency and the Hon'ble Members of this Council. It is a question of great importance, and, therefore, I move his amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said:—

"My Lord, I am afraid I am not prepared to accept this amendment. It really makes two requests: one is that rules shall only be framed after previous publication in the Calcutta Gazette, and my answer to that point is that that provision is already in the law. Under clause 111 (now clause 101) of the Bill, the local Government may, after previous publication, make rules; so that matter is already provided for.

"The second proposition in the amendment is that rules should not be valid under the Bill, unless they are sanctioned by the Legislative Council. Now, Sir, the insertion in Acts of powers to make statutory rules is a common feature of most of the legislation in this country, and I think the fact that it is so common a feature points to the conclusion that it is recognised as an administrative necessity. It is not practically possible to foresee, at a time when a Bill is framed, every contingency which may arise to be dealt with under it hereafter. These statutory rules are largely framed in the first instance no doubt on general grounds; but they are amended and added to from time to time in the light of experience. When a need arises demonstrating that a rule is required, a rule is framed. Again any attempt to provide for everything in the Bill would over-burden it with a most undesirable

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur; Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar.

amount of detail. The amendment, if accepted, would place a statutory rule and a provision of the legislature practically on the same footing; and we should not be able to make any change which might be necessary for administrative reasons without having, practically, to go through the whole procedure of a Bill. I submit that the proper function of the legislature is to lay down the matters which may be dealt with by rules, and then to leave it to the authority which will be entrusted with the administration of the Act. Many of the points covered by clause 111 (now clause 101) are matters which are essentially details of administration. The time and manner of election, registration of voters, the powers of presidents and vice-presidents, the conduct of meetings and the method of forming a quorum, registers and records, details of assessment, and so on—all these are matters that we can scarcely bring before the Legislative Council. I submit therefore that the procedure of rules is justified by experience, and it is the only procedure which will ensure the smooth working of the Act.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur said :—

"I have nothing more to add."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 204-206.

The Hon'ble Rai Mahendra Chandra Mitra Bahadur moved that sub-clause (3) of clause 106 (now clause 97) be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, I have put this amendment for the consideration of the Council, viz., to omit sub-clause (3) of clause 106 (now clause 97). The object of the amendment is to invite legal practitoners to attend union courts. If legal practitioners are considered to be obstacles in the way of the administration of justice, that is another point, but if these legal practitioners are not allowed to attend these union courts, the result will be that suitors will be under the influence of touts. I do not wish to add any other reason to what I have said, but if Government consider that they should not attend such courts, that is another matter, but I thought it my duty to bring the matter for the consideration of your Excellency's Council."

The Hon'ble Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar said :—

"My Lord, I belong to the legal profession, but I think that the very object of this Bill would be defeated by allowing legal practitioners to appear in these union courts. The appearance of a legal practitioner before any court no doubt helps considerably for better administration of justice, but in establishing these union courts, we are thinking more of the expenses of litigants than of anything else. We want to establish courts to avoid ruinous litigation, but if experienced lawyers are permitted to appear in these courts, then I do not think there will be much difference between a suit tried in the union court and that tried by the ordinary munsif. Besides, my Lord, we have carefully limited the extent of the pecuniary jurisdiction of the union courts up to only Rs. 200, and in case of criminal cases, we have specified certain simple and ordinary offences. In these matters if we permit the services of lawyers to be available in these courts, a rich man might harass a poor man and at the same time both may be ruined by the heavy expense of litigation. In this view I have always considered that it is a very salutary provision by which legal practitioners are debarred from appearing in these courts, but there is one little difficulty which I hope Sir Henry Wheeler will try to explain, and that is this: the Legal Practitioners' Act is an enactment of the Government of India, and under that Act lawyers are authorised to practise in all courts subordinate to the High Court, and it is a question whether in face of that statutory power we can legitimately debar them from appearing in those courts. But I have already said I welcome this salutary provision, provided it does not go against the provisions of the Legal Practitioners Act over which this Council has no jurisdiction."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Sir Henry Wheeler; The President; Mr. Duval.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"I would accept the provision of the Bill as it stands, but there is one point to which I would draw attention. There is a provision here, that full-time servant, partner or a relative of the party may appear before the union courts. My hon'ble friend, Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar, says that if there is a fight between a money-lender and an agriculturist, the money-lender may have a powerful lawyer to appear for him, but at the same time a full-time servant is not always available to appear for the party, and therefore I would ask whether it would not be better to omit the provision of a full-time servant."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"I rise to a point of order; this is absolutely a different matter."

The President said :—

"I think that is so; I was trying to see what bearing the speech of the Hon'ble Member had on this amendment. I do not find any."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said :—

"I do not think there is much to add to what Babu Ambika Charan Mazumdar has said against this proposal which on behalf of Government I oppose. He has raised one point, however, as to whether we can legislate for the exclusion of legal practitioners on the ground that the Legal Practitioners Act of 1879 was an Act of the Government of India. In this connection I would inform him that in the original draft of the Bill which we sent up for approval of the Government of India, we included this provision pointing out to the Government of India that not withstanding anything contained in the Legal Practitioners Act, legal practitioners should not be allowed to practise before the union court or the union bench and the Government of India raised no objection. I do not think therefore that there can be any difficulty on this point, and I think this Council has ample jurisdiction to pass the proposal as set out in the Bill. As to the merits, I would simply add this. In the district courts of the United Provinces and in the Punjab, legal practitioners are not allowed, and when the District Administration Committee issued its report, they said as follows: 'We think it would be inconsistent with the character and constitution of village courts and for the purposes for which they are intended, to allow legal practitioners to practise in these courts, and we are strongly of opinion that they should be rigorously excluded.' With these remarks on behalf of Government I oppose this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

Two identical motions, Nos. 205 and 206, in the names of the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri and the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta respectively, were deemed to be withdrawn.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur ; Mr. Duval.

AMENDMENT No. 207.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that for the words " after previous publication, " in lines 1 and 2 of sub-clause (1) of clause 111 (now clause 101), the words " subject to the provisions of section 143 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885," be substituted.

He said :—

" My Lord, I believe that the provisions of section 143 of the Local Self-Government Act should be taken in here, and I believe that that also is the intention of Government as far as I can judge ; it would be better to have that clause inserted here. Then perhaps the objections raised by some of my hon'ble friends about the rules not being considered by the legislature would be minimised. If my amendment is accepted, Government would be required to consider criticisms on the rules before they are finally published."

The Hon'ble Mr. Duval said :—

" I would submit that this amendment is perfectly unnecessary. No doubt under section 143 of the Local Self-Government Act rules could only be framed after observing certain formalities. Since, however, 1885, in which year that section was passed, we have had the General Clauses Act, I of 1889, and section 24 of that Act says :—

"Where, by any Bengal Act, a power to make rules or by-laws is expressed to be given subject to the condition of the rules or by-laws (as we have provided in this clause) being made after previous publication, then the following provisions shall apply, namely—

(1) the authority having power to make the rules or by-laws shall, before making them, publish a draft of the proposed rules or by-laws for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby ;

(2) the publication shall be made in such manner as that authority deems to be sufficient, or, if the condition with respect to previous publication so requires, in such manner as the Local Government prescribes ;

(3) there shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date on or after which the draft will be taken into consideration ;

(4) the authority having power to make the rules or by-laws, and, where the rules or by-laws are to be made with the sanction, approval or concurrence of another authority, that authority also shall consider any objection or suggestion which may be received by the authority having power to make the rules or by-laws from any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified ;

(5) the publication in the Calcutta Gazette of a rule or by-law purporting to have been made in exercise of a power to make rules or by-laws after previous publication shall be conclusive proof that the rule or by-law has been duly made.

I submit, my Lord, that in view of this statutory provision of the General Clauses Act and of the fact that in this clause we have inserted that the rules can only be made by after previous publication, there is absolutely no necessity to refer to the old Act of 1885, nor to section 143 of that Act. The present law under the General Clauses Act covers the object which Government intended and which the Hon'ble Member also wishes. "

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"I thank the Hon'ble Member for the information which he has furnished, and I beg leave to withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 208.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta :—

That after the word "publication" in line 2 of sub-clause (f) of clause 111 (now clause 101)' the words "and after consideration of the views of the district boards" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in view of the provisions of the General Clauses Act which we have just heard, I beg leave to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 209.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri :—

That after the word "president" in line 2 of sub-clause (2) (b) of clause 111 (now clause 101), the words "or vice-president" be inserted.

He said :—

"My Lord, this has become unnecessary, because the provision for a vice-president has not been accepted by the House, so I beg leave to withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 210.

The Hon'ble Member being absent, the following motion was deemed to be withdrawn :—

If motion No. 46 be carried, the Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that after sub-clause (2) (e) of clause 111 (now clause 101), the following be inserted, namely :—

"(ee) prescribing the procedure for convening and conducting meetings for passing votes of censure on members under section 14B."

AMENDMENT No. 211.

The following motion stood in the name of the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta :—

That sub-clause (2) (h) of clause 111 (now clause 101), be omitted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta. The President; Sir Henry Wheeler; Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I am not quite sure, my Lord, in view of the decisions already come to by the Council, whether it is in order to move this amendment. I have my doubts about it. If this amendment is passed, it will not be quite in conformity with the decisions which the Council has already arrived at."

The President said :—

"Yes, I think the Hon'ble Member is right. He proposes to leave out sub-clause (h) of clause 111 (now clause 101) which gives power for 'regulating the powers and duties of union boards in regard to the control to be exercised by them, over dafadars and chaukidars within the union'. The Hon'ble Member suggests that if that amendment is carried that would be contrary to the decision which has already been arrived at by the Council. I think he is correct; it would be so. Under these circumstances he is not in order in moving it."

The motion was then deemed to be withdrawn.

AMENDMENT No. 212.

The following motion was also covered by a previous decision of the Council and was deemed to be withdrawn.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta to move that the words "of dafadars, and" in line 1 of sub-clause (2) (i) of clause 111 (now clause 101), be omitted.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"With your permission, and in connection with a previous amendment accepted by this Council, I will now move, Sir, that after sub-clause (i) of clause 111 (now clause 101) the following be inserted, viz.:—

'(ia) prescribing the processes to be served by dafadars or chaukidars and regulating the service of such processes'.

The amendment will be understood in the light of the discussion that we had yesterday.

The motion was put and agreed to.

AMENDMENT No. 213.

The Hon'ble Member being absent the following motion was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi A. K. Fazl-ul-Haq to move that after sub-clause (2) (n) of clause 111 (now clause 101), the following be inserted, namely :—

"(nn) fixing the period within which, and the manner in which, an appeal under section 61, sub-section (3), shall be preferred"

AMENDMENT No. 214.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur moved that item 3 in column 4 of Schedule I, be omitted.

He said :—

The object of item No. 3 in column 4 of Schedule I is to enable local boards to be established even for parts of subdivisions while section 6 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, lays down a subdivisional area to be the minimum local board area. The original Bill contemplated the substitution of circle boards for local boards, the circle boards comprising only parts of a subdivisional area. The Select Committee have retained the local board, though the amendment of section 6 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act in the manner would enable Government to create local boards for what were proposed to be circle board areas. So the distinction between local boards and circle boards would be more in name than in substance.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Mr. O'Malley.

Section 6 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act should be left as it is, and local boards should not be permitted to be established for less than subdivisional areas. In justifying the elimination of the circle board the Select Committee observed : ' We accept the view that the functions to be exercised by such bodies would be inadequate to confer a status likely to attract energetic members or to give them a keen interest in their work.' If the local boards are to exercise an efficient control over union boards placed under their supervision, they must be composed of men who are of a type superior to the members of the union boards and we cannot have such a type of men unless we include the subdivisional headquarters within a local board area. Moreover, a too close control—such as would be exercised by local boards for areas smaller than subdivisional areas would tend to make the union boards lifeless. Whatever supervision there is to be over these little self-governing units it must be exercised from a distance and by persons capable of efficiently exercising such control. There is also a risk that if areas smaller than subdivisional areas are constituted into local boards, the circle officer may be in a position to impose his will on these weak bodies and reduce them to mere tools in the hands of the executive. It is very significant that under the scheme propounded by the District Administration Committee, the circle officer was to have been the chairman of union boards. This feature has, no doubt, been omitted in the Bill. But if we have miniature local boards of the same size as the circle boards, the circle officer, though not actually the president, will virtually be their dictator. Question of cost is important too. By having a larger number of local boards, establishment charges would be increased. Every thing will have to be met from local taxation, since Government are not definitely committing themselves to any contribution. District boards are also not very affluent. Too close a control was not favoured by the Decentralization Commission even in matters of finance and audit. In every matter it is now proposed to have too close control."

" My Lord, I may explain the reasons which led the Select Committee to insert this item in the schedule. Local boards have been established throughout all but five districts in which the Local Self-Government Act is in force. Two of these districts (Bogra and Malda) have no subdivisions, and have therefore no local board. There is also no local board in the district of Chittagong or in the Sadar subdivision of Dinajpur and the Sadar subdivision of Jalpaiguri. With reference to that, I may mention that the question of establishing local boards in the district of Chittagong has been kept in abeyance, because this Bill, as introduced, provided for circle boards ; and it was felt that there would be little object in introducing local boards when they would be replaced in a short time by circle boards. Now that the idea of establishing circle boards has been dropped, the question of introducing the local board system in Chittagong will be taken up.

" To revert to the amendment, the Local Self-Government Act allows Government only to establish a local board for a whole subdivision or two or more subdivisions, and the object of this item in the schedule is to enable Government to establish local boards for parts of subdivisions.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rài Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Mr. O'Malley.

The reason is first that, as explained by the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler when the Bill was previously under debate, it will be necessary to introduce the Act gradually and in selected areas. To take the case of the districts in which there are at present no local boards, it may not be possible to introduce the Act at one step in the whole of the districts of Bogra and Malda. It may be desirable first to introduce it in parts only of those districts ; in that case it will be desirable that a local board, as the controlling authority over union boards, should be established only for that part of the district in which union boards are established. In the rest of the district, the District Boards would continue to have direct and exclusive jurisdiction. Again, in the sadar subdivision of Jalpaiguri it might not be desirable to introduce the Act and to establish union boards throughout the whole area. The tea-garden coolies are not a very advanced population and would not form a suitable material for such an advanced system as the Bill contemplates. Outside the tea-garden areas, however, it might be possible to establish union boards, and in that case it would be possible for Government by this amendment of the Local Self-Government Act to establish a local board for the area having union boards. That is the main object of this amendment of the Local Self-Government Act.

"The Select Committee also had in view a contingency which is at present remote, namely, that in the course of time the local boards, with the growth of union boards and the consequent expansion of their work, will find it difficult to exercise effective supervision over the whole number. The Hon'ble Mover has not realised what a large number of union boards will be established throughout the districts. The average per district would be about 250. It is to meet such a contingency that this amendment is partially designed. If any local board finds it impossible to get through its work, it will enable the Government to give it a smaller area of control by establishing smaller boards. This, however, is a contingency which is not likely to arise for some time, and the item in the schedule is for the present contemplated to meet only the cases of the districts throughout which local boards have not been established. This item is therefore necessary, and I am unable to accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur said :—

"My Lord, I have tried to follow the Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley's speech and as far as I understand him I think he says that such places as Bogra and Malda have no local boards as there are no subdivisions. But it is necessary to have local boards intervening between the district boards and union boards. What I fail to understand is that when the district has not yet been subdivided into subdivisions it seems that there is no necessity for having a local board there. Further, I would like to quote the Hon'ble Mr. Hart's opinion on this point. He says that it is not necessary to have intermediate bodies as circle boards or local boards. I think that it will be considered sufficient if the union boards are supervised by the standing committees of the district boards. Supposing Malda and Bogra have the district board standing committees to supervise their union boards, I do not think there will be any difficulty."

The Hon'ble Mr. O'Malley said :—

"My Lord, may I refer the Hon'ble Member to clause 55A (now clause 50) of the Bill which says that subject to the control of the district board, a local shall supervise the administration of union boards."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler; The President.

The Hon'ble Rai Radha Charan Pal Bahadur (continuing) said :—

"My Lord, I quite understand that clause; but that clause gives the local Government the discretion to add to the number of local boards. What I say is: that it is necessary to ensure supervision. The provisions of the present Bill are quite sufficient to carry out the supervision of the union boards; and if the contingency to which the Hon'ble Member has referred arises, I think that the district board in such a small district as Malda will be able to manage it by their standing committees.

"Further, it has been stated that there might be on an average of 250 union boards in a district. It may be so; but these boards will be supervised by two bodies—first by the local board and then by the district board. Where there are no local boards in smaller areas, the district boards will be able to look after them and the creation of union boards will add considerably to the cost of the self-governing institution, which I submit is unnecessary. The objection against the circle boards applies to this clause also. A grave impediment to the success of this measure is that it involves a considerable increase in the burden of taxation and that is also my experience in the case of the present union committees."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 215.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that items 4 and 5 in Schedule III be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, in the course of the discussion on a previous amendment, I have already submitted my reasons for objecting to the delegation of powers by the District Magistrate to subordinate officials. Items 4 and 5 are the most important items in Schedule III. In item 4, it is proposed to delegate to the powers of appointment and dismissal of chaukidars and dafadars and in item 5 of the fining of dafadars and chaukidars, to the subdivisional magistrate, superintendent of police or circle officer. My contention is that these powers should not be delegated, because we have had complaints in the past about the evil effects of the delegation of these powers by the district magistrate to the Police. I propose, therefore, that there two items be omitted from the schedule."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, yesterday in amendment No. 137 the Hon'ble Member sought to omit from the Bill the whole of Schedule III. His present proposal is to omit a part of it only. But, as the Council decided yesterday to retain the whole, I am not sure whether he is in order in asking for a modification of it in part."

The President said :—

"The motion that the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler is referring to is to omit clause 52 (now clause 47) and Schedule III. I pointed out at the time that the Hon'ble Member could not then deal with Schedule III, and that he would have to wait till we came to it. The question which I then put was that clause 52 be omitted and that was negatived; but that does not prevent him from proposing an amendment for omitting certain items from the schedule."

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler; Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, I am sorry that I misunderstood Your Excellency's remarks."

"As regards the merits of the proposal, the amendment, if accepted, will require that the appointment, dismissal and fining of dafadars and chaukidars must be done by the district magistrate throughout the whole district. I have very little to add to what the Hon'ble Mr. Kerr said yesterday in connection with amendment No. 137. It is an absolute impossibility for the district magistrate personally to discharge all these functions throughout the district, and it would not be satisfactory that he should attempt to do so. It is far better to delegate these powers to somebody, i.e., the subdivisional officer, the superintendent of police or the circle officer, who is more closely cognizant of the facts and the circumstances which regulate them. For the reason that the adoption of this proposal will seriously impede the administration of the Act, I oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, it is said that it is not possible for the district magistrate to discharge all these functions and the power must necessarily be delegated to somebody. Now, what will be the result? The result will be the continuance of the old system. Athough, there has been a good organisation of the chaukidari union, although the union board is formed with larger powers and although the chaukidars are admitted to be the servants of the union boards, still, for all practical purposes, they will be the servants of the police. So, the present position will be continued and no improvement will be effected of this very important question. For these reasons, I would press this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 216.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that the words "circle officer" and "superintendent of police," wherever they occur in column 2 of Schedule III, be omitted.

He said :—

"My Lord, as regards this amendment my submission is that, in the first instance, I moved for the omission of schedule III. That has, of course, been negatived, then I moved that out of the several items of that schedule, items Nos. 4 and 5 be omitted. That has also been negatived. My only alternative is now to move that in items Nos. 4 and 5, the words 'superintendent of police or circle officer' wherever they occur may be omitted. As a matter of fact, however, those two words occur only in items Nos. 4 and 5. In other words, the result of the acceptance of this amendment will be that so far as the sub-divisional magistrate is concerned, the authority of the district magistrate in these two matters may be delegated to the former and not to the superintendent of police or circle officer. I have nothing further to say as I have already stated my reasons."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, the result of the amendment, if accepted, would be that the district magistrate could only delegate these powers to the subdivisional magistrate and not to anybody else. At present, he can delegate authority to the superintendent of police, and this practice has been in force since 1892, when the right so to delegate was introduced by the amending Act of that year. Sir Henry Cotton then explained that this delegation had not been given at the time of the Act of 1870, mainly because the position of the superintendent of police at that time had not been clearly defined or understood. He further remarked :—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Henry Wheeler.

'When the Act of 1870 was passed, it was thought expedient that all power and control in regard to the village watch should rest with the magisterial authorities only, not with the heads of the department. However, there has been some changes since those times, and there is now do doubt in the minds of any one as to the exact position and relations between the magistrate of the district and the district superintendent. In these circumstances it was thought it would be administratively convenient to empower the magistrate of the district to delegate his authority, subject to the sanction of the Commissioner, to the district superintendent of police, if he should wish to do so in preference to any magisterial officer subordinate to him. By such delegation, ... he will be merely giving effect to the principle which underlies all the old Regulations in Bengal with regard to the relations between the village watch and the regular police. At the same time the power, if so delegated, will have a tendency to result in the improved organisation of the village watch, which is one of the main objects of the Bill which I have introduced into Council'.

These, Sir, were the reasons for which the power was not given in 1870, but was given in 1892. Since then it has been exercised in various ways in different districts without any inconvenience to the administration and without any bad results ; and I submit that there is no justification for seeking to eliminate the authority of so delegating.

The question of circle officers is no doubt more new, as they are a newer creation ; but we hope that they will play an important part in the development of village self-government. In this connection, I would like to correct an impression which the Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta sought to convey earlier in the day, that the District Administration Committee favoured the cry of developing village self-government merely for the sake of securing the appointment of circle officers. The facts are far otherwise. They regarded the circle officer throughout as one of the most fundamental factors in the success of any scheme of village self-government, and that was not only their experience, but it is the experience of all those who have at one time and another enquired into the matter. I have previously referred to two enquiries made by committees presided over by Mr. Beames and Mr. Monro. The finding of both these committees was that part of the reason of the failure of the chaukidari administration lay in the absence of any agency which could exercise supervision. Failing that agency, resort had to be had to the police, but although these committees strongly recommended that if anything was to be done to improve the chaukidari panchayats and to bring them under influence other than those of the police, it must be by the creation of a subsidiary agency which did not then exist, nothing was ever done in that directions. When I enquired into the matter in 1905-06, I again drew attention to this defect and pressed the point ; but just as the recommendations of these two earlier bodies were disregarded, so too my small recommendation did not get through. The District Administration Committee after examining these old papers again came to the same conclusion. To substantiate my contention regarding the importance which they attached to this point, I would read a few extracts from their report. This is what they said in paragraph 94 :—

"The proposed scheme (of circle officers) is one of great administrative importance, for it contemplates the creation, not only of a village organization which it may be possible to utilize as the basis of real local self-government in Bengal, but also of a supervising local agency, without which no village system can ever be expected to work satisfactorily."

In another paragraph, they referred to the detriment to the working of the system which had resulted from the constant interference of the police, which, though not contemplated by law, had to be employed in the absence of any other agency. This was exactly the contention of Mr. Beames' and Mr. Monro's committees and of myself. In paragraph 97, the District Administration Committee observed :—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta.

"Over and over again it has been pointed out that, without at least one whole-time special officer to supervise the work of the panchayats in each district, the president system was bound to fail, but the question has invariably been shelved on some ground or other, and, until the recent deputation of Mr. Weston and Mr. J. N. Gupta to supervise the introduction of an experimental circle system into certain selected subdivisions, practically nothing was done."

This finding shows that the failure of the chaukidari, panchayats and union committees, as also of Mr. Savage's president system was due to the want of adequate supervision. As regards the latter the Committee remarked in paragraph 96 :—

"The initial mistake was made of attempting to introduce it without the special supervision, which both Mr. Savage and Mr. Wheeler, from the first, had strongly insisted upon as necessary to its success."

"So, Sir. I submit that the circle officer is meant to fill a very definite place in the development of village self-government which we all wish to see, and that it would be a fatal mistake to endeavour to deprive him of the powers which, by delegation, it would be possible to give him under the Bill as it stands."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"My Lord, I wish to touch on two points in reply. In the first place, if it is known that the district officers will not be able to discharge their functions and as a matter of necessity these powers will have to be delegated to the subordinate officials, it is difficult to understand why the power should be retained at all in the Bill for the district magistrate. Would it not be better in that case to lay down expressly that this power is to be exercised by the superintendent of police or the circle officer? That would have been more proper and people would have known what the position exactly was.

"Then, My Lord, it is said that the quotations that have been made from the report of the District Administration Committee show that the circle officer is an essential factor in the scheme of village self-government which is sought to be developed by the Bill before us. That is a point, my Lord, on which we have not of course agreed. I only submit this that I am sure some years after it will be realised that if the very good effort made by Government to develop the village self-government fails, it will only fail on account of the institution of their clan of circle officers."

The motion was then put and lost.

AMENDMENT No. 217.

The following motion was held to be covered by the decision on the previous motion and was deemed to be withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Babu Kishori Mohan Chaudhuri to move that the reference to "circle officer" in item 4 and in item 5 of schedule III, be omitted.

AMENDMENT No. 218.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that for the words "twenty rupees" in the last line of item 4 of part A of Schedule IV, the words "twenty-five rupees" be substituted.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Babu Akhil Chandra Datta; Sir Henry Wheeler.

AMENDMENT No. 219.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta moved that for the word and figures "and 411"; at the end of item 4 of Part A of Schedule IV, the figures and word "411, 456 and 457" be substituted.

He said :—

"My Lord, this schedule (IV) defines the offences triable by a union bench. Item 4 gives a list of some sections of the Indian Penal Code under which the offences will be triable by a union bench. In this case I do not ask for any substitution but propose the addition of two more offences, these offences being under sections 456 and 457 of the Indian Penal Code, namely, the offences of lurking, house-trespass or house-breaking by night; in section 457 there is an additional element that the offences may be committed with the object of committing some offence. The object why I have made this proposal is that from our experience, we know—and that is also corroborated by the report of the Police Department—that this class of cases, viz., of house-trespass and house-breaking by night, is by the very nature of the offences such that it is very difficult for the police to detect the criminals. Of course, in some cases the offenders are caught redhanded in the very act of committing these offences and they are detected, without the help of police. But in cases where the offenders are not detected red-handed, it is very difficult for the police to make the detection, not because the police are inefficient, nor because the police are corrupt, but because from the very nature of the offence it is very difficult for them to do so. If there is a case of house-breaking, the ofience is committed at dead of night, and as there are no eye-witnesses to prove the crime it is impossible for the police to find out the criminals. This fact is corroborated by the result of the police investigation as shown in the reports of the Police Department. Therefore, it is believed by some people who have got experience of this matter that these offences might very well be transferred from the jurisdiction of the police to the jurisdiction of the village benches—in the sense that they will have jurisdiction if the aggrieved party wants to go to the village courts and the union bench consisting of members of the village and of the locality, they will be in a better position to do justice to cases under this clause than other people. That is the object of this amendment."

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler said :—

"My Lord, schedule IV, Part A of the Bill defines the cases which shall be triable by the union bench if committed within their jurisdiction. It was deliberately drawn on cautious lines as this experiment of union benches is new. They have yet got to be tested and prove their capacity, and it was not thought expedient to entrust them, especially at the outset, with the trial of cases of much importance. If we accept the amendment we should ordinarily make triable by them the offences of lurking house-trespass by night, and house-breaking by night with intent to commit an offence punishable with imprisonment. These may be very serious offences. In form, too, the amendment is defective as it would make these offences triable when the value of the property in the opinion of the union bench is not over Rs. 20, but the element of property might not necessarily come into these two sections, and if not, I am not quite clear how the amendment would be construed. But my main objection is that these are important offences which very often involve previously convicted bad characters for whom the limit of punishment which the union bench can give would be quite inappropriate. For these reasons, I would prefer not to go beyond the schedule as now framed. In what way this change would facilitate the detection of these offences, I do not understand. I fail to appreciate the Hon'ble Member's argument, and if my memory is not at fault, I think he opposed a suggestion that the chaukidar should have power to arrest a person found in possession of an implement of house-breaking, among others, which is far more in the direction of prevention than the trial of the case. The trial of the case presupposes that the accused has already been caught."

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I do not think any useful purpose will be served by additional observations. I therefore beg to withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

AMENDMENTS Nos. 220 AND 221.

The President said :—

"The next two amendments Nos. 220 and 221 have got misplaced. Amendment 221 will be taken up first and then 220."

Amendment No. 221 was as follows :—

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem to move that after item 4 of Part A of Schedule IV the following be inserted, namely :—

"5. Cases under sections 133 and 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898."

The Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem said :—

"My Lord, I am told that it will be unwise to invest the union boards with these extensive powers which I propose to give them by this amendment ; therefore, I do not think I will be justified in detaining the Council over this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Amendment No. 220 was as follows :—

Also to move that for the words "twenty rupees", in lines 4 and 5 of Part B of Schedule IV, the words "fifty rupees" be substituted.

The Hon'ble Babu Akhil Chandra Datta said :—

"I want to follow the footsteps of my friend the Hon'ble Maulvi Abul Kasem and withdraw this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 4.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler moved that the Secretary be directed to re-number the clauses and sub-clauses of the Bill in consecutive order and to make corresponding alterations in all cross-references thereto.

The motion was put and agreed to.

LIST OF BUSINESS—ITEM No. 5.

The Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler also moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari; The President.

He said :

"After the lengthy discussions of the last two days, I do not propose to make a speech, but would merely put the motion as it stands."

The Hon'ble Sir Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said :—

"My Lord, before the motion is put to the vote, I desire in person to congratulate your Excellency's Government, and your Excellency in particular on the fairly smooth passage of this Bill through the Council. It was resubmitted to the Select Committee, a procedure which, at one time it was thought, would mean a great deal of delay. Fortunately that apprehension has proved to be unfounded and by this some what unusual procedure the ground was considerably cleared. By bringing your Excellency's Government into 'the court' of the Select Committee, we have got our 10 per cent. 'discount' and a great many amendments have been accepted. If we have not done better it is more our misfortune than our fault. Non-official members have rarely been in their places and have freely deffered from one another. As I had occasion to point out and claim before, we are guided by individual judgment and do not favour cliques and caucuses. We have also done our very best to do away with misapprehensions in the minds of your Excellency's Government that there would be delay and obstructiveness. Whatever may be our different points of view, this Bill will be the first step towards that great goal of self-government towards which we are all looking forward, each in our own individual way. Your Excellency on assumption of office made this measure your particular care and I congratulate your Excellency on the successful ending of your worthy labour. When the Reforms Scheme comes into operation, we shall have the initial means ready to begin this new and great service of the country."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The President said :—

"It it is usual for the President to say a few words at the conclusion of the session as to the work which has been done. We have just had three rather long and strenuous days and I propose, therefore, to be very brief in such remarks as I shall make in regard to the past session. The Council, I think, may congratulate itself upon the most fruitful session from the legislative point of view which it has enjoyed for some years past. Several Bills have reached the Statute Book and one or two are very nearly there. Our old and familiar friend, the Calcutta Hackney Carriage Bill, has at last become the Calcutta Hackney Carriage Act. Even though we may not all of us appreciate the actual benefits which that measure confers upon the community, I am sure that for other reasons we are thankful to think that it has passed beyond the purview of this Chamber. Another measure of value, though not a very large measure, for which the Council have been responsible during the past session, is the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act of 1919, upon the passage of which I would congratulate both the Hon'ble Mr. Cumming and the members of this Council.

Then I must make a passing reference to two measures, the passage of which marks a new stage, I think, in the development of legislative practice in this country. I refer to the Juvenile Smoking Act of 1919 and to the Bengal Primary Education Bill, the latter of which has passed this Council and is now awaiting the sanction of His Excellency the Viceroy. I say that these two measures mark a fresh stage in the legislative practice of this country, because they are, I believe, the first enactments for which private members of the Bengal Legislative Council have been responsible. I would like to take this opportunity of congratulating the authors of these two Bills—

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President.

Hon'ble Dr. Shurawardy, the author of the Juvenile Smoking Bill and the Hon'ble Babu Surendra Nath Ray, the author of the Bengal Primary Education Bill, upon the passage of these two measures. Both of them have valuable possibilities. There may be some difference of opinion as to the extent to which the various authorities, who will be authorized under the Juvenile Smoking Act, to adopt a punitive attitude towards small boys, will put it into practice. At any rate the passage of the Act establishes the principle that it is one of the duties of the legislature to assist the public to bring about such changes in the habits of the people as it believes to be desirable and salutary. With regard to the Bengal Primary Education Bill, I should like to express my personal satisfaction, and, I think, I may say the satisfaction of my Government, at the passage of that measure. The whole question of primary education was under the consideration of the Bengal Government, and in particular of my Hon'ble Colleague the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, when this Bill was introduced, and the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, fitted in so well with the views which we had formed as to the best methods of proceeding with a view to extending primary education in Bengal, that we accepted it with satisfacation and gratitude. I believe that a large step in advance will be made in the direction of extending primary education as a result of the provisions of the measure.

One other Bill has advanced appreciably during the past session and that is the Food Adulteration Bill, another measure to which both the Government, and, I am sure, the Hon'ble Members of this Council, attach great importance. The report of the Select Committee upon the Bill has been presented, and I hope that it will be possible for us to take it into consideration during the forthcoming summer session of the Council.

Finally, we have this afternoon concluded our labours upon the Village Self-Government Bill, and I would express my appreciation of the kindly remark which fell from the Hon'ble Sir D. P. Sarbadhikary when the Bill was on the point of being accepted by the Council a few moments ago.

I should like also to express my thanks to the many Hon'ble Members of this Council for the assistance and co-operation which they have given us in giving this measure its final shape. In particular I would like to express my thanks to the members of the Select Committee for giving so much time and so much labour to the matter. It would be ungrateful of me also if I were not to take this opportunity of expressing to the Hon'ble Sir Henry Wheeler my thanks for the immense amount of time and labour which he has given to the measure. That time and labour has been over and above the time and labour which he has to devote to his ordinary duties. But for the unfortunate illness of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan the Bill would have been conducted through the Council by him. I mention that because I think it is only fair to Sir Henry Wheeler who has had very heavy additional duties thrown upon his shoulders, that we should express to him our thanks and appreciation for the courteous manner in which he has discharged his duties.

That I think is all that I need say about our legislative output. As I have said I think it is the most useful legislative output for which this Council has been responsible for a good many years past.

So far as the other functions of this Council are concerned, namely, the criticism of the executive Government, I think Hon'ble Members may look back on a satisfactory session. They have moved a number of resolutions on matters of general importance, some 24 in all, and they have moved some 34 resolutions on the Financial Statement, they have also displayed a laudable desire for information by asking a number of questions, some 360

The Bengal Village Self-Government Bill, 1919.

The President.

in all. The Government have at all times done their best to supply the information which has been asked for in these questions. I may point out that the mere figure of 360 does not by any means indicate the real number of question asked, since a single question is very often divided up into a very large number of sub-heads, and I should say that the actual number of questions asked was nearer 1,500 or 2,000 than the number suggested by the official figures.

There is only one other piece of work to which I need make reference and that is the special session of the Council which was held in November last for the consideration of the Reform Scheme. Hon'ble Members will remember that a committee of non-official members of this Council was appointed as a result of that special meeting in order that they might consider the Reform Scheme and report to Government their opinions upon it. As a result of their labours the Government had placed in their hands a useful and interesting document which clearly indicated to them the views which non-official members of this Council take with regard to the different aspects of the Reform Scheme, and we are proportionately grateful to them for the time and trouble which they took in preparing their report.

It only remains for me to wish you a pleasant vacation until we next meet at a later period of the summer.

ADJOURNMENT.

"The Council now stands adjourned sine die."

Regulations and Signals with respect to Submarines.

No. 119 (first publication).—The following particulars, etc., relative to the above, issued by the British Admiralty (No. 542 of 1919), are republished :—

In order to avoid risk of collisions, etc., arising from the difficulty of recognising submarines operating in the vicinities of seas adjacent to Japan, vessels navigating or operating in the localities where submarines might be met with are warned to take notice of the following signals :—

(i) During the operations of submarines two B flags of the International Code are displayed at the masthead or yardarm of the vessel accompanying the submarines, indicating that such submarines are operating within the radius of 5 sea miles. If necessary the direction with respect to the parent vessel will be indicated by signals in the International Code.

(ii) When vessels recognise any such parent ship exhibiting the above described signal it will be necessary to observe closely her movements and any further signals exhibited by that vessel, and moreover to keep a sharp look-out over the surface of the sea.

(iii) As submarines usually avoid the channels most used by navigation (except where this is impracticable), vessels should therefore, as far as is possible, endeavour not to proceed outside such usual channels.

The Report of the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India.
Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms.

THE Governor in Council is now considering the recommendations of the Public Services Commission concerning the Civil Veterinary Department which are contained in Annexure II of their report and this resolution is published in order to give the public interested an opportunity of expressing their views on the more important questions involved.

2. The three main problems which require consideration are the following :—

(1) the method of recruitment of Indians for the Imperial Veterinary Service ;

(2) the method of recruitment of officers for the Provincial Veterinary Service ; and

(3) the pay of the above two services.

3. The Royal Commission considered that every effort should be made to meet the normal requirements of the Imperial Service within a reasonable time by recruitment in India. They accordingly recommended that classes teaching up to the higher standard of veterinary science should be established in India and that, when they were sufficiently developed, the Government of India should announce that not less than one-half of the number of vacancies in the Imperial Service should be filled by statutory natives of India who have been through the higher course. It is, however, obvious that the time has not yet come for making such an announcement. The establishment, moreover, of such an educational course, which would be in the form of an Imperial Veterinary College, is by no means free from difficulty. As pointed out by Mr. (now Sir Frank) Sly in his note of dissent, the very large expenditure which its establishment would involve would only be justified, if it were assured of an adequate supply of students. It is true this might be secured, if candidates for the Provincial Service were trained at the same institution ; but it is doubtful whether the two classes of services ought to be trained together or whether it is right to centralise the training of Provincial officers at the expense, it may be, of recruitment. An alternative would be to establish an Imperial College for the training of candidates only for the Imperial Branch of the service and of all men who are desirous of taking up the veterinary profession with a view to private practice or research. The Governor in Council would, therefore, be glad to learn whether, having regard to the future requirements for veterinary surgeons in the province, private students from Bengal would be likely to present themselves for training at such a college. Opinion is also invited on the question whether admission to the proposed Imperial Veterinary College should be confined to students who have already taken the provincial service course in a provincial veterinary college, or whether graduates in science (with or without honours) from arts colleges should also be admitted.

4. The Commission have also recommended that, pending the establishment in India of facilities for higher education, one of the opportunities—in addition to promotion from the Provincial Service of suitable persons who had been through a post-graduate course of study in Europe—for the appointment of statutory natives of India to the Imperial Branch should be provided by a system of state scholarships to enable likely young men to proceed to Europe with the object of gaining the diploma of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons ; but in such cases it should be made clear that the fact of having won a scholarship and obtained the British diploma should not give anyone preferential claim to be selected by the Secretary of State. His Excellency in Council therefore desires to know to what extent qualified candidates from Bengal might be expected to avail themselves of scholarships under the terms stated above with the object of gaining that diploma.

5. Regarding the Provincial Service the Commission recommended that it should consist only of Deputy Superintendents and officers of corresponding status in the College staffs. They further remarked that a really efficient Provincial Service cannot be mainly recruited from persons of a relatively low standard of education who entered the service as subordinates. They, therefore, recommended that the level of training in the Provincial Colleges which are maintained for the training of officers of the subordinate service should be raised and that in the future not less than half the vacancies arising in the Provincial Services should be filled by direct recruitment.

It is clear that at the same time the present low standard of the entrance qualification ought to be raised. But if this were done there would be a risk of endangering recruitment to the subordinate service, as the services are not yet popular with men with higher attainments. Direct recruitment in Bengal or the elimination of the practical training obtained in the subordinate service is not, therefore, at present a very practical proposition. The question therefore arises whether it would not be preferable to offer definite prospects of rapid progress through the grades of Veterinary Assistants and Inspectors to persons possessing higher educational qualifications than the ordinary entrance qualification, who have done exceptionally well at a College and studied a more advanced course.

6. For the pay of the Imperial Veterinary Officers recruited in India the Commission have recommended a scale of Rs. 300—30—600—50—1,000 a month, and for those recruited in Europe Rs. 500—50—1,400. Hitherto the terms of the Service applicable to the Imperial Veterinary officers have been materially more favourable than those of the Imperial Agricultural Officers in respect of both the minimum and maximum limits of the sanctioned time-scale pay and of eligibility for exchange compensation allowance. It is therefore suggested that the scale of Rs. 350—35—1,050 proposed for the Imperial Agricultural officers recruited in India might be suitably applied to Imperial officers of the Civil Veterinary Department recruited in India and that an overseas allowance in addition to this pay should be given to the officers recruited in Europe as suggested in the case of the Imperial Agricultural officers. The grant of an overseas allowance would be in conformity with the recommendation made in paragraph 322 of the report of His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State on the Reforms. The members of the Service will as hitherto be debarred from private professional practice in India. The Commission recommended that the normal scale of salary in the Provincial Service should be Rs. 250—$\frac{30}{3}$—450—$\frac{50}{3}$—500 with a probationary rate of Rs. 150.

7. His Excellency in Council does not propose to deal specifically with the other matters dealt with in the Commission's report, so far as the Veterinary services are concerned. It is requested that any remarks or criticisms which any person or body of persons interested may desire to offer, may be forwarded to the Revenue Secretary to the Government of Bengal, not later than the 1st June 1919.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information and a copy sent to the leading associations in Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE PUBLIC SERVICES COMMISSION.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

DARJEELING, THE 10TH MAY 1919.

RESOLUTION—No. 1522E.

READ—

The Report of the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India.

THE Governor in Council has had under consideration the recommendations of the Public Services Commission, contained in Annexure XVIII, concerning the Public Works Department, and this resolution is published in order to give the public interested an opportunity of expressing their views on the more important questions involved.

2. The Department is divided into the Roads and Buildings Branch and the Irrigation Branch.

The Engineer personnel of the Department, which is common to both branches, may be divided as follows :—

(1) Engineers (Imperial Service and Provincial Service).
(2) Upper Subordinates.
(3) Lower Subordinates.

The Provincial Service of Engineers is open only to statutory natives of India ; and its strength is maintained by the appointment by the Government of Bengal of a fixed number of students trained at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur. The present rate of recruitment in Bengal is one officer in every alternate year from among the graduate students who have also undergone one year's practical training and have passed a practical examination at the end of the training. In addition, a selected qualified Upper Subordinate is promoted to the Provincial Engineer establishment periodically—hitherto at the rate of one in every fourth year.

The Upper Subordinate establishment is recruited by the Provincial Government either by the appointment of graduate students trained at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, and the Dacca School of Engineering, or by the promotion of selected Lower Subordinates and occasionally by the appointment of other suitable candidates.

The Lower Subordinate establishment is maintained at the required strength by the appointment by Superintending Engineers, under powers delegated to them, of students holding certificates of the Civil Engineering College and Schools and of other suitable candidates.

3. A summary of the recommendations of the Commission relating to the Public Works Department will be found in Chapter IX of Annexure XVIII of their Report ; the following are the most important recommendations :—

(1) Amalgamation of the present Imperial and Provincial Services of Engineers into one superior service of engineers.

The present Provincial Service has its origin in the recommendations of the Public Services Commission of 1886-87. It was the intention of that Commission that the Imperial Service of the Department should include only those officers who were required for purposes of control and direction, and for the carrying out of works calling for high engineering skill ; while the Provincial Service would be responsible for works for which a lower standard of engineering skill was adequate. The recent Commission found on enquiry that officers recruited in India were engaged on work of the same importance and responsibility as officers of the same official standing recruited in England. The Commission therefore recommend that the present division into the Imperial and Provincial Services should be abolished and that for the future there should be only one superior engineering service.

In regard to the training of candidates for the superior service to be recruited in England, the Commission are definitely opposed to the re-establishment of a residential Engineering College as they consider that, by drawing on the resources of the large number of well equipped engineering institutions, better material for the service can be obtained than could be secured through the medium of a single agency. They therefore recommend that, subject to some modification in detail, the present arrangements should continue. They consider that candidates for appointment should be between the ages of 21 and 24; and that they should have obtained one of the University degrees specified in the regulations or an equivalent diploma or distinction in engineering; but that the fact of having passed the examination for the associate membership of the Institution of Civil Engineers should not in itself, without a collegiate training, be considered sufficient qualification for appointment. The Commission further recommend that a definite condition of appointment should be that candidates should have had at least twelve months' practical experience of engineering work.

As an alternative to the Commission's proposals, it has been suggested that candidates should be appointed in England under a system of combined selection and competitive examination immediately upon leaving college. Suitable candidates would in the first instance be selected to a number in excess of the number of vacancies, and these selected candidates should then be subjected to a competitive examination. It has been proposed that thereafter the successful recruits would be drafted direct to India for a practical training course extending to two years. A modification of this period of practical training has been suggested, viz., that the first six months should be spent in obtaining experience and training in England and about eighteen months in a probationary training course in India. At the end of the two years' training the probationers would be confirmed as Assistant Engineers if found suitable.

(2) Statutory natives of India should be eligible for selection in England; but the arrangement by which 10 per cent. of the vacancies filled in England are reserved for Indians should be abolished.

It has been a standing rule that natives of India shall be selected to the extent of 10 per cent. of the total number of Assistant Engineers recruited by the Secretary of State, if otherwise duly qualified. The Commission has recommended the abolition of this 10 per cent. rule, as officers of the Provincial Service in particular are opposed to the arrangement owing to the invidious distinction which it creates between statutory natives of India recruited in India on the one hand and in England on the other. The system is also open to the objection that it tends to arrest the development of the engineering colleges in India, which have been established and maintained by the Government of India at great expense.

(3) The selection of candidates from Indian colleges for appointment to the superior engineering service should, in all cases, be based partly on their record during the college course, partly on the result of the final examination and partly on the degree of their proficiency in practical work.

The Public Works Department Reorganization Committee have developed the Commission's recommendation as follows. At the end of their college course all students should be given two years' practical training in India. On the completion of their training an examination would be held in purely practical subjects, and the guaranteed appointments would be allotted as a result of the combined college and practical examination—a satisfactory report from the officer under whom the apprenticeship has been served being an essential qualification for appointment. It has been suggested that if the two years' practical training period is adopted, it will be unnecessary that recruits should undergo a further period of probation before being confirmed as Assistant Engineers. The Commissioners recommend that the maximum limit of age for admission to the service should be fixed at 27.

(4) Assistant Engineers should be appointed to executive charges after 8 years' instead of after 10 years' service as at present; and the cadre should be reduced accordingly.

The principal reasons advanced by the Commission are that the duties of an Assistant Engineer make little demand on engineering skill, and men who bring with them into the Department the complete equipment of an advanced engineering training cannot fail to lose both in keenness and in capacity if they are kept on such duties too long. The present period of service in the Assistant Engineer grade also necessitates the maintenance of large and unnecessarily expensive cadres.

The result of the Commission's recommendation would be that an Assistant Engineer would, in normal circumstances, receive officiating divisional charge in the sixth year of service. It is open to doubt whether five years is not too short a time for a thorough training, particularly in the more specialized duties of an irrigation engineer, and specially as it has been proposed that the powers of Executive Engineers should be materially enhanced. On the other hand, an officer who after appointment is employed for two years on a course of practical probationary training, before being confirmed as Assistant Engineer, will, on the date he completes eight years' service after confirmation, have been at work for a total period of ten years.

(5) The decrease in the number of Assistant Engineers should be made good by the appointment of an increased number of Upper Subordinates to subdivisional charges.

To this end the standard of qualification for the Upper Subordinate service should be raised; and, if necessary, the scale of pay of that service should be improved. It is also recommended that the Upper Subordinate branch should be transformed into a service organised on the model of the Provincial Civil Services.

(6) Incremental scales of salaries for Chief and Superintending Engineers and separate incremental scales for Executive and Assistant Engineers should be established. Officers recruited in India should receive lower scales of salaries in the grades of Executive and Assistant Engineers than those laid down for officers recruited in Europe; but in the administrative grades the scale of salary should be the same for all officers.

The rates of salary recommended by the Commission for officers recruited in Europe are as follows :—

	Rs.
Assistant Engineers ...	... 380—40—700—50—750
Executive Engineers ...	... 800—50—1,250
Superintending Engineers	... 1,500—100—2,000
Chief Engineers ...	... 2,500—50—2,750

The rates of salary proposed for officers recruited in India are :—

	Rs.
Assistant Engineers ...	... 300—50-2—500—50—550
Executive Engineers ...	... 600—50—1,050
Superintending Engineers	... 1,500—100—2,000
Chief Engineers ...	.. 2,500—50—2,750

In paragraph 322 of their Report on Indian Constitutional Reforms, His Excellency the Viceroy and the Secretary of State have suggested as a general principle that the standard scales of pay of the services generally should be fixed with reference to Indians recruited in India at rates sufficient to attract the best men available and to give them an income appropriate to their position, while persons recruited, by reason of superior qualifications, in Europe should be given an extra allowance to compensate them for the drawbacks and expenses of expatriation.

With a view to adopting this suggestion it has been proposed that the scale suggested by the Commission for officers recruited in India should be held to be the common scale of pay for both branches, while for the engineers whose domicile is in Europe there should be an expatriation allowance of Rs. 150 for the first eight years of service and Rs. 200 thereafter until administrative rank is reached.

It appears doubtful whether, in view of the great changes which have taken place since the report of the Public Services Commission was written, these salaries and expatriation allowances are sufficient at the present time; and it has been suggested that the scale should be fixed as follows :—

For officers recruited in Europe :—

	Rs.
Assistant Engineers	500—50—850
Executive Engineers	1,000—50—1,600
Superintending Engineers ...	2,000—80—2,400
Chief Engineers	3,000

For officers recruited in India :—

	Rs.
Assistant Engineers	300—35—545
Executive Engineers	650—50—1,250
Superintending Engineers ...	1,600—80—2,000
Chief Engineers	2,500

These scales exhibit a difference at each period of an officer's service which would be granted to officers recruited in Europe as an expatriation or "overseas" allowance according to the following scale :—

	Rs.
Assistant Engineers	200—15—305
Executive Engineers	350
Superintending Engineers ...	400
Chief Engineers	500

(7) The Committee appointed to select candidates in England for the Superior Engineer Service should be enlarged.

The Commission recommended that the Committee at the India Office should consist of a representative of the India Office; two eminent Engineers nominated by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers; a retired member of the Public Works Department; a retired member of the Indian State Railway Department and an Indian in touch with the Indian community in the United Kingdom.

It has been proposed that the representative of the India Office should be an officer with general administrative experience in India.

(8) Officers who, when they enter the Department, receive salaries at the rates fixed for persons recruited in Europe, should be subject to the European Service leave rules; other officers should be subject to the Indian Service leave rules and should continue under those rules throughout their career.

4. His Excellency in Council does not propose to invite opinion specifically on the other matters dealt with in the Commission's Report so far as the Department is concerned. It is requested that any remarks or criticism which any person or body of persons interested may desire to offer on the matters discussed in this resolution may be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, not later than the 15th June 1919.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON THE PUBLIC SERVICES IN INDIA IN REGARD TO THE BOILER INSPECTION DEPARTMENT.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

RESOLUTION—No. 1618Marine.

READ—

(1) The Report of the Royal Commission on the Public Services in India.
(2) The Report of the Indian Industrial Commission.

The Governor in Council has had under consideration the recommendations of the Public Services Commission in Annexure V of their Report, in regard to the Boiler Inspection Department, and this resolution is published with the object of enabling the public interested in the matter an opportunity of expressing ther views on the more important questions raised in the report, which are noted below.

2. Reorganization of the Department.—The Commission have recommended a reorganization of the Department on the following lines :—

(i) that the Boiler Inspectors should be made Government servants ;
(ii) that salaries and pensions should be paid from general revenues, irrespective of fees earned under the Bengal Steam-Boilers and Prime-Movers Act, which constitute the present Boiler Fund ;
(iii) that there should be expert supervision of inspection staff ;
(iv) that the existing system of administration by an officer of the Indian Civil Service or the Indian Police Service together with the representatives of interests to be inspected (i.e., the present Boiler Commission) should be abolished ; and (v) that there should be an officer who should be responsible for the effective working of the inspection staff, to be called either the Chief or the First Inspector.

The Indian Industrial Commission, who have also considered the question of the constitution of the Boiler Inspection Department in their report, are in complete agreement with the above views ; and have, in addition, suggested that the Boiler Inspection Department should be placed under the control of the Provincial Department of Industries.

3. Recruitment.—The Public Services Commission have held that it is not necessary on grounds of policy to go outside India for recruits, and that it is not necessary to do so in order to obtain candidates with the necessary qualifications, also that the recruitment should continue to be made as at present in this country.

In the Bengal Presidency statutory natives of India are not ordinarily candidates for appointment as Boiler Inspector and have not so far been appointed. The reason is that Boiler Inspectors are usually recruited from Engineers of the Mercantile Marine Service, holding extra first class Board of Trade certificates ; and consequently, Bengalis with the requisite educational qualifications who practically never follow marine engineering as a profession, do not appear as candidates.

The Commission, however, have advised that there should be no limitation in the employment of non-Europeans ; and that when the Department is reorganised, it should be made clear that qualified Indians are eligible for appointment.

At present the qualification required of a candidate is the possession of a first class Board of Trade certificate. In this connection the Commission have pointed out that, although the above qualification is generally regarded as satisfactory, the Mill Owners' Association in Bombay hold that a candidate should have special experience of land as well as of marine boilers. The Commission have, however, left this point to be considered by the Local Government and their expert advisers along with the question of the reorganisation of the Department when it is taken up.

Furthermore, the Commission are of opinion that appointments should be made direct as at present and that there should be a fixed age for recruitment.

4. Salary.—The present scale of salary of the Boiler Inspectors is as below :—

			Rs.
1 Senior Inspector	...	...	500—20—600
2 Inspectors	...	...	450—10—500
4 Ditto	...	...	350—10—450

The Commission have suggested that questions relating to the salary of these officers should be determined by the local Government when the reorganization of the Department is taken up. They consider that an incremental system of salary is suitable for these officers and that it should be continued.

The Commission have also recommended the creation of the post of a Chief Inspector on Rs. 1,000—50—1,250. This Government have already had under consideration the question of the appointment of a Chief Inspector on the aforesaid salary.

5. Strength of the staff.—The Commission have advised that the cadre of the Boiler Department should be expanded to keep pace with the work to be done. At present there are seven permanent and one temporary Inspectors ; and the demand of the Department, in view of the extension of the Act and of the increase in the number of boilers inspected, is for one Chief Inspector and nine Inspectors.

6. Leave.—The Commission have recommended that as the service is wholly recruited in India all future entrants to the Boiler Inspection Department should be under Indian Service leave rules, and that no distinction should be made in favour of officers who are not statutory natives of India.

Under the existing rules regulating the grant of leave to Boiler Inspectors, officers with a European domicile already enjoy the benefits of the European Service leaves rules, while those with a Indian domicile are under the Indian Service leave rules.

7. It is requested that any remarks or criticisms which any person or body of persons interested may desire to offer on the points discussed in this resolution may be forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Marine Department, not later than the 30th May 1919.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette for general information.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

THIRD AND FINAL FORECAST OF THE SPRING OILSEED CROPS OF BENGAL, 1918-19.

(NOTE.—On an average of the 5 years ending 1916-17, the area under linseed in Bengal has represented about 5·8 per cent. and that under rape and mustard 29·5 of the total area under these crops in British India.)

Character of the season.—As already reported in the preceding forecasts dealing with the spring oilseed crops, the season was unfavourable at sowing time and for the subsequent growth of the crop owing to continued drought from October to December. The rainfall of January and February came too late to materially affect the outturn. The latter was therefore much below the normal.

Area sown.—The total area under oilseed crops (excepting sesamum, returned by District Officers) amounts to 1,304,800 acres as against 1,333,500 acres of last year, representing a decrease of 2·1 per cent. The decrease is due to the unfavourable weather conditions prevailing at sowing time.

Outturn.—According to the estimates of District Officers the outturn of the different kinds of oilseed crops for the Province as a whole (excepting sesamum) worked out at 66 per cent. against 82 per cent. of the normal last year.

Taking 6 maunds per acre as the normal rate of yield for linseed, 5½ maunds for rape and mustard and 4½ maunds for other oilseeds, the total yield of all kinds of spring oilseeds is estimated at 1,868,000 tons against 237,500 tons last year.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

Final Forecast of the Wheat Crop in Bengal, 1918-19.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1916-17 the area under wheat in Bengal has represented some 0·4 per cent. of the total area under wheat in India. The ratio of irrigated wheat acreage to total wheat acreage in (a) British India and (b) in the Territory now reported on, has in the five years ending 1916-17, averaged (a) 41·1 per cent. and (b) 16·7 per cent. respectively).

Character of the season.—As already reported the crop suffered considerably owing to the early cessation of the monsoon, and the consequent lack of soil moisture at the time of sowing and in its early stages. There was no rain in October, November and December. The rainfall in January and February though beneficial was too late to secure a normal crop.

Area sown.—The total area sown this year is estimated at 114,500 acres against 121,000 acres last year. The decrease in area is due to want of moisture at sowing time.

Outturn.—An yield of 70 per cent. and upward is reported from the districts of Dacca, Faridpur, Midnapore, Rajshahi, Jalpaiguri, Darjeeling and from 50 to 67 per cent. in Murshidabad, Jessore, Burdwan, Birbhum, Bankura, Hooghly, Malda and Pabna, while Nadia and Dinajpur return percentages below 50.

According to the estimates of the District Officers the provincial outturn works out to 61 per cent. of the normal against 69 per cent. of the last year.

Taking the normal yield at eight-half maunds per acre, the total yield for province works out to 21,800 tons against 33,002 tons last year, showing a decrease of a little over 33 per cent.

At the end of April the wholesale average price of the wheat at the principal marts of the province was Rs. 6-15-3 per maund or about 30 and 33 per cent. higher than the current prices at the corresponding period of last year and in the year preceding, respectively. The average wholesale price of common rice in the principal marts at the end of April was Rs. 6-6-6 per maund or about 85 per cent. and 10 per cent. higher than the rates in the corresponding periods of last year and the year preceding.

Nadia ...	23,100	13,400	9,400	67	33	nd of February to March. Normal.	The weather has not been favourable. Considerable damage has been caused by drought. The outturn is much below the normal owing to want of timely rainfall.
Murshidabad ...	60,3800	31,200	22,600	67	50	March. Normal ...	The weather was not favourable at first owing to continued drought after sowing which damaged about half the crop, but the rainfall in February has done some good.

Burdwan ...	2,000	2,000*	2,000*	83	58	Middle of March Normal.	The weather was unfavourable up to middle of January owing to drought. The rainfall in January did some good to the crop. Since then the weather has been favourable except at Katwa. Late sowing and want of moisture at sowing time and subsequent drought account for the low outturn.
Birbhum ...	5,000	4,100	4,100	83	67	End of March. Normal.	About 33 per cent. of the crop has been damaged owing to continued drought at sowing time, but since the rainfall in January the prospects have been fair.
Bankura ...	3,600	3,600*	3,600*	83	67	End of February. Normal.	The weather has been fair since the submission of the second forecast. The low outturn is due to drought and insufficient rain.

Rajshahi ...	8,500	7,800*	6,500	70	70	Middle of March. Normal.	The decrease in area was due to want of rain at sowing time. The outturn is anticipated to be below the normal owing to absence of rain which has injuriously affected the crop.
Dinajpur ...	1,500	1,400*	1,300	52	40	Ditto ...	The weather condition has not been favourable owing to absence of rain.
Jalpaiguri ...	800	500	500	75	85	By the end of March. Normal.	The weather has not been favourable. The crop is poor owing to continued drought.

Rangpur ...	3,000	3,400*	3,400*	100	80	First week of March. Normal.	The outturn is expected to fall 20 per cent. below the normal owing to continued drought.
Pabna ...	16,000	12,000	12,000	70	60	Middle of March. Normal.	The weather was favourable at the time of cultivation, but continued drought since October last retarded the growth of the crop and caused damage to the extent of about 40 per cent. The rainfall in February has improved the condition of the crop to some extent.
Malda ...	60,000	35,000	35,000	60	65	First week of March. Normal.	The dry weather since sowing time to January hampered the growth of the crop. DISTRICT REPORTS ON WEATHER AND CROPS.

For the week ending on the 9th May 1919.

Summary.—The rainfall was general throughout the province. More rain is, however, wanted, especially in Northern Bengal. The sowing and weeding of jute and autumn paddy continue. In some of the eastern districts sowings are approaching completion. The harvesting of summer rice is almost finished. The outturn is tolerably fair. The standing crops are generally thriving under favourable weather conditions. The prospects are hopeful. The average price of common rice for the province has risen by about 4·6 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week. Distress continues in Bankura, where 8,979 persons were in receipt of gratuitous relief and 5,000 persons were engaged daily on an average on District Board works. Agricultural loans were also given. In the Brahmanbaria subdivision the average number of persons engaged daily on test works was 797.

(1) During the period of closure of the Tolly's Nala at Samookpota, boats laden with firewood will be allowed to proceed to or from the river Bidyadhari or the Bhangore khal through the Circular or Kristopur Canal and the Tolly's Nala vid Kidderpore on payment of two rupees per hundred maunds of measured maundage for passage through these canals. All other cargo boats will pay a rate of one rupee and twelve annas per hundred maunds of measured maundage.

(2) Boats plying under this concession will not be allowed either to load or to unload their cargo along the Circular Canal the Kristopur Canal, or the river Hooghly. Infringement of this rule will render such boats liable to the ordinary tolls in force for the Circular Canal.

(3) (a) Boats laden with cargo other than firewood may pick up extra cargo, either in the Kristopur Canal, the Circular Canal or the river Hooghly. The toll collectors at Chitpur, Kristopur and Dhappa, respectively, will, in that case, assess and collect the extra toll due on the cargo at twelve annas per hundred maunds, provided the maundage of the boat does not exceed that when it originally entered at Dhappa or Kristopur.

(b) If there is an excess at the time of leaving Tolly's Nala a rate of two rupees and eight annas per hundred maunds will be charged on the extra cargo at Kidderpore. This will entitle the boat to pass beyond Dhappa or Kristopur without any further payment

(c) If cargo is picked up either in the Hooghly or in the Circular or Kristopur Canal the extra toll on the extra amount will be charged at the rate of one rupee and twelve annas per hundred maunds.

(4) For the purposes of reckoning demurrage charges under item 11 of this schedule on the boats herein defined two extra days will be allowed over and above those provided for vessels plying in the Tolly's Nala.

THE EXCESS PROFITS DUTY RULES.

Short title.

1. These rules may be called the Excess Profits Duty Rules, 1919.

Definitions.

2. In these rules, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "the Act" means the Excess Profits Duty Act, 1919 (X of 1919);
(b) "section" means a section of the Act;
(c) "Board" means a Board of Referees appointed under section 8; and Changes of Ownership.

Where change of ownership has occurred between 1st of April 1912 and the beginning of the accounting period

3. Where between the 1st April 1912 and the beginning of the accounting period there has been a change of ownership of the business, the standard profits shall be determined in accordance with clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 6, except in cases where the person by whom duty is payable in respect of the business makes an application that the provisions of the Act shall apply as if there had not been a change of ownership.

Limitation for and contents of application under rule 3.

4. (1) An application under rule 3 shall be presented to the Collector on or before the 15th July 1919:

Provided that the Collector may receive an application after that date if he is satisfied that the applicant had sufficient cause for not presenting it before that date.

(2) An application shall state which of the options specified in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 6 the applicant elects for the determination of the standard profits of the business.

Where change of ownership has occurred during the accounting period.

5. Where there has been a change of ownership during the accounting period the duty shall be assessed separately for the portions of the accounting period corresponding to the different ownerships. The duty may be assessed for each portion of the accounting period on any person owning or carrying on the business immediately before the end of such portion, and each of such portions shall be deemed to be the accounting period for the purposes of the proviso to section 4 and of clause (a) and the first proviso to clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 6; and in all such cases the provisions of section 6 shall apply for the determination of the standard profits of the business as if there had not been a change of ownership.

Method of assessment

6. On receipt of an application under rule 4 and in the case of an assessment under rule 5, the Collector shall determine the standard profits of the business according to the method desired by the person by whom duty is payable and may make such modifications in applying the Act and these rules as may be necessary to make the basis on which the standard profits are determined the same as that on which the profits of the accounting period are ascertained.

7. Where under rule 5 duty is assessed on a person in respect of the profits of a business for a period of less than one year, the standard profits of the business shall be proportionately reduced and the proviso to section 4 shall be construed as if there were substituted for the amount of thirty thousand rupees a proportionately reduced amount.

Where change of ownership has occurred after the end of the accounting period and before the 1st of April 1919

8. Where there has been a change of ownership after the end of the accounting period and before the 1st of April 1919, the duty may be assessed on any person owning or carrying on the business at the end of the accounting period.

Liability in special cases.

[Modification of section 31 of Act VII of 1918 as applied.]

Agents.

9. In the case of any agent of any person residing out of British India being in receipt on behalf of such person of any profits chargeable to duty under the Act, the duty may be assessed upon and recovered from such agent in like manner and to the same amount as it might be assessed upon and recovered from any such person if resident in British India and in direct receipt of such profits, and all the provisions of the Act and these rules shall apply accordingly.

[Modification of section 82 of Act VII of 1918 as applied.]

Administrators-General, etc.

Non-residents.

11. (1) In the case of any person residing out of British India, all profits or gains accruing or arising to such person, whether directly or indirectly, through or from any business connection in British India shall be deemed to be profits accruing or arising within British India, and, subject to the provisions of the Act and these rules, shall be chargeable to duty in the name of the agent of any such person, and such agent shall be deemed to be for all the purposes of the Act and these rules the person by whom such duty is payable: [Modification of section 33 of Act VII of 1918 as applied.]

Provided that any arrears of duty may be recovered also in accordance with the provisions of these rules from any assets of the non-resident person which are, or may at any time come, within British India.

(2) Where a person not resident in British India, and not being a British subject or a firm or company constituted within His Majesty's dominions or a branch thereof, carries on business with a person resident in British India, and it appears to the Collector or the Chief Revenue-authority, as the case may be, that, owing to the close connection between the resident and the non-resident person and to the substantial control exercised by the non-resident over the resident, the course of business between those persons is so arranged that the business done by the resident in pursuance of his connection with the non-resident produces to the resident either no profits or less than the ordinary profits which might be expected to arise in that business, the profits derived therefrom or which may reasonably be deemed to have been derived therefrom shall, subject to the provisions of the Act and these rules, be chargeable to duty in the name of the resident person who shall be deemed to be, for all the purposes of the Act and these rules, the person by whom such duty is payable.

Agent to include persons treated as such.

(2) When both a petition and an appeal have been preferred by one person and such person desires that the appeal be referred to a Board, the Chief Revenue-authority shall adjourn the hearing of the petition until receipt of the decision of the Board on the appeal, and shall then proceed to hear and to pass such order on the petition, conformably to the provisions of section 8, as it thinks fit, and shall communicate such order to the Collector.

(3) When only an appeal has been preferred and such appeal has been referred to a Board under section 8, the Chief Revenue-authority shall, on receipt of the decision of the Board thereon, communicate such decision to the Collector.

Penal assessment.

21. If the Collector or Chief Revenue-authority in making any assessment under the Act is satisfied that any person by whom duty is payable has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars in connection with any business to which the Act applies, and has thereby caused the standard profits of the business or the profits during the accounting period to be calculated respectively above or below their real amount, the Collector or the Chief Revenue-authority may direct that such person shall pay either on the difference between the amount of profits liable to duty as finally ascertained and the amount of such profits calculated according to the particulars originally returned by him or, if according to such particulars no duty was payable, on the whole amount of profits liable to duty as finally ascertained, a duty at a rate not exceeding one and a half times the rate which would otherwise have been payable :

Provided that when a person has presented a petition or an appeal under rule 14 the Collector may treat the person as not being in default so long as such petition or appeal is undisposed of.

(1) When a person is in default in making payment of duty or, where instalments have been fixed, of any instalment of duty, the Collector, in his discretion, may recover from him a sum not exceeding one and a half times the amount of the duty or instalment, as the case may be, either as if it were an arrear of land revenue, or by any process enforceable for the recovery of an arrear of any municipal tax or local rate imposed under any enactment for the time being in force in any part of the territories administered by the Local Government to which the Collector is subordinate.

[Modification of section 36 of Act VII of 1918 as applied.]

Regulations and Signals with respect to Submarines.

No. 119 (second publication).—The following particulars, etc., relative to the above, issued by the British Admiralty (No. 542 of 1919), are republished :—

In order to avoid risk of collisions, etc., arising from the difficulty of recognising submarines operating in the vicinities of seas adjacent to Japan, vessels navigating or operating in the localities where submarines might be met with are warned to take notice of the following signals :—

(i) During the operations of submarines two B flags of the International Code are displayed at the masthead or yardarm of the vessel accompanying the submarines, indicating that such submarines are operating within the radius of 5 sea miles. If necessary the direction with respect to the parent vessel will be indicated by signals in the International Code.

(ii) When vessels recognise any such parent ship exhibiting the above described signal it will be necessary to observe closely her movements and any further signals exhibited by that vessel, and moreover to keep a sharp look-out over the surface of the sea.

(iii) As submarines usually avoid the channels most used by navigation (except where this is impracticable), vessels should therefore, as far as is possible, endeavour not to proceed out side such usual channels.

REPORT ON DISTRESS IN THE DISTRICT OF BANKURA FOR THE WEEK ENDING 10th MAY 1919.

Famine or scarcity has not yet been formally declared.

Rainfall was satisfactory. Twenty-two test works were in progress during the week, 4,691 workers having been employed on the works on the last day of the week. The decline in numbers on works is temporary, being due to inception of agricultural operations. Works are being opened in new areas owing to the return of emigrants. Private works have been undertaken on a small scale. Gratuitous relief is being given in 51 unions; the number of persons relieved during the week was 11,807, including 391 weavers relieved by the Co-operative Industrial Union and the Weavers' Relief Committee and 299 persons relieved by the grant of paddy husking advances; besides 189 better class poor were relieved. Distress is gradually extending to new areas owing to the exhaustion of local resources and private charity. Landless classes, and especially the old and infirm, widows and orphans and dependants of emigrants are the most affected. The relief measures are adequate. The physical condition of workers and public health are satisfactory. Crime is normal. No wandering is reported. Emaciation is noticeable. Fodder and water are adequate. Cloth is being distributed to the destitutes. Loans are being advanced. The price of common rice has risen and varies from 5¾ to 6¼ seers per rupee. The stocks of rice are much reduced. Steps are being taken to import Rangoon rice.
